Democrats Start Work Today.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A draft of a Democratic national platform, authorship undisclosed, but reported to bear the approval of President Roosevelt, is ready for preliminary study here today by members of the resolutions subcommittee. The President is said to have suggested condensation of the draft, which contains 1,200 to 1,500 words, and in some quarters in Washington it was hinted that the President might aid in reducing wordage.

President Roosevelt is reported to have expressed a desire for a platform so short that its full text might be printed on newspaper front pages. Predictions were that the rough draft might be trimmed to 800 words or fewer.

Work on Platform Today.

Members of the 23 member subcommittee, which was appointed last week by Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, were en route to Chicago last night. Those arriving today are scheduled to start work forthwith. The subcommittee, headed by Rep. John W. McCormack, house majority leader, contains 11 members of congress, including Rep. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, co-chairman with McCormack. Eight of the 11 consistently have supported New Deal policies.

Eleven members are women. The subcommittee represents 18 states, and it will report to the full resolutions committee after it is appointed by the convention.

May Start Hearings Tomorrow.

Public hearings are scheduled to be started Monday morning in the Stevens hotel, two days in advance of the convention. Word last night indicated that they may start earlier. Some members leaving Washington said some groups might be heard tomorrow, but this will be decided at the meeting today.

Meanwhile Mayor Kelly, back from a trip east, said he looked for some battles at the convention, which he said would not be a "cut and dried affair."

Gov. Kerr of Oklahoma, the keynoter, also spoke of battles. Kerr said controversy was normal at Democratic conventions. One contest he specified would be over the Vice Presidential nomination. "The boys may have some fun over that," he remarked. When asked, he asserted that he was not a candidate for second place.

Illinois Ready to Follow Roosevelt.

The mayor, who said he had been away on personal business, declared he had not seen President Roosevelt.

On the matter of a Vice Presidential nominee the mayor expressed the opinion that the Illinois delegation would go along with any choice the President might indicate.

"I think the convention will follow the President's wishes—if he expresses a preference," he said. As to whether there might be an open contest, he remarked that "everybody has a right to present names."

Meanwhile surmises over the Vice Presidential nomination were in the hotel gossip. These dealt largely with the unpopularity of Vice President Wallace in the agrarian regions of the midwest.

Sen. Lucas Seems Willin'.

Plenty of possible candidates for running mate are under blankets. Sen. Lucas of Illinois is on the scene. He is at the Stevens hotel with his brother, Stephen A. Lucas of California, not as an avowed candidate but in a "Barkis is willin'" mood apparently. The Illinois Democratic convention, without voting on it formally, gave Lucas a send-off for the post.

It was announced that the executive committee will make the following recommendations for committee chairmanships: Sen. Murdock, Utah, credentials committee; Robert W. Kenny, attorney general of California, rules, and Gov. McGrath of Rhode Island, permanent organization.

M.P.s Assail Britain Over Robot Attacks

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—While the labor ministry imported thousands of service men and building workers to London today for "first aid" repair of damaged houses, members of parliament criticized the government for overoptimism and inadequate protection against flying bombs.

Emanuel Shinwell.

Despite demands for another statement on the German robot raids, Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee said Prime Minister Churchill would not make any announcement now. However, Attlee said that if the M. P.'s insisted on a secret session the government would have to meet commons' wishes.

Laborite Emanuel Shinwell said that "those who are suffering the effects of flying bombs and are inadequately protected against them, because of the absence of pre-vision and in spite of optimistic assurances given by the government recently, should have more information from the government within the limits of security."

Nothing to Add Publicly.

Attlee rejected Shinwell's criticisms and reiterated that Churchill did not think he could add publicly to what already has been said.

Conservative Archibald Southby also demanded a statement in a secret session "because the people in the affected areas are not satisfied that all has been done that can be done."

Edgar Granville, Independent, said that the best way to dispose of the suggestion that the "government was caught napping" by the robots would be a statement to commons.

"I think anybody who listened to the prime minister's speech will realize the government was not caught napping," Atflee retorted.

Second Raid Shelter Opened.

Home Secretary Herbert Morrison announced that London's second deep raid shelter would be opened tonight and the third very soon.

He told the M. P.'s, who had complained that bombed out people were finding difficulty in getting bunks in the new shelters, that he had ordered preference be given those who had lost their homes. He also said many people in safe areas had offered to send indoor shelters to the danger zones.

All resources of the British building industry are being concentrated on repairing damaged houses, the labor ministry said. The thousands of builders and service men brought to London will be housed in hostels, and private homes.

Bombs Kills 12 Children.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, July 13 (AP).—Two Japanese admirals, one of whom directed the attacks on Pearl Harbor and Midway, died on July 7 on Saipan, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced tonight in a bulletin.

One, Vice Adm. Chuichi Nagumo, was commander in chief of the Central Pacific area of the imperial Japanese navy. He was in command of the Japanese forces that attacked Pearl Harbor and in command of the carrier task force that was wiped out at Midway.

Japanese buried on Saipan Island in the Marianas now number about 16,000, Adm. Nimitz' bulletin said.

Isle Off Saipan Occupied.

Adm. Nimitz said Rear Adm. Yano was killed on the same day.

Simultaneously he announced that elements of the 2d marine division had landed on Maniagassa Island on July 12 [west longitude]. The island is two miles north of Mutcho point on Saipan Island and controls the entrance to Tanapag harbor.

While the marines were landing on the tiny island, "whose defenders were quickly overcome," enemy dead were being buried on Saipan.

Now that Saipan is in American hands, artillery bombardment and navy gunfire is neutralizing Tinian Island, on which there is a Japanese air field.

Major Gap in Jap Line.

Promising speedy action against the Nipponese, Nimitz's bulletin said, "The seizure of Saipan constitutes a major breach in the Japanese lines of inner defenses and it is our intention to capitalize upon this breach with all means available." It added:

"It is now clear that Saipan Island was built up by the Japanese as the principal fortress guarding the southern approaches to Japan and as a major supply base for Japan's temporary holdings in the South Seas areas. Saipan was long the seat of the Japanese government for the mandated Marianas, and Garapan town was the headquarters of the commander in chief, Central Pacific area. The topography of the island lent itself well to defense, and elaborate fortifications manned by picked Japanese troops testified to the importance which the enemy attached to the island."

The sea borne attack on Guam and Rota Islands was carried well into the second week by American task force smashes reported by Adm. Nimitz.

Cruisers and destroyers of a powerful fleet shelled Guam on Monday and Tuesday, making four consecutive days of naval bombardment of that American island lost early in the war.

Carrier aircraft bombed and strafed Guam and near-by Rota on Tuesday and Wednesday, carrying the aerial attack thru the ninth straight day at Guam and eighth at Rota.

New York, July 13 [Special].—New York police tonight assigned every officer on the city force to the task of finding 6 months old Barbara Anne Goggin, kidnaped early this morning from her crib in the New York Foundling hospital.

Altho they began the most intensive search since the Lindbergh baby kidnap-murder 12 years ago, police were without any substantial clew. Apparently the infant, whose parents, police said, have neither money nor enemies, was taken from the carefully guarded and locked institution under the very noses of nurses and attendants.

Late tonight authorities were satisfied the child was not taken by mistake by a disgruntled parent as had at first been surmised.

The missing baby's father, Walter Goggin, a plumber, pleaded thru the press that his daughter, if held by a kidnaper, "be taken care of and given proper food." His wife, Anne, 30, mother of three other children, underwent an operation today at the Roosevelt hospital for a gall bladder condition and was not told of her baby's disappearance.

U. S. OIL DEAL UP TO COMMONS, EDEN DECLARES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—Foreign Secretary Eden told the house of commons today that no commitment would be made without commons' sanction by a British delegation that will soon go to Washington, D. C., it is reported, to discuss the oil question. Lord Privy Seal Beaverbrook will head the delegation.

Asked whether the house could be assured that Beaverbrook "won't give too much away," Eden said the delegates would carry out instructions agreed upon by the war cabinet.

5 More Flee State School; Guard Bound

As officers hunted three of 24 inmates who staged a break from the Illinois State Training School for Boys near St. Charles Wednesday, five others escaped last night after threatening to kill their guard and tieing him in a chair with a bed sheet.

The five latest fugitives are Chicago boys, two of whom have been paroled twice and returned twice to the school for crimes including burglary and strong-arm robbery. They were inmates of Cleveland cottage.

Two Seize Custodian.

Richard Eddy, managing officer, said two of the boys, John Nosik, 16, of 3243 N. Hamlin av., and Anthony Perez, 15, of 8900 Green Bay av., surprised their custodian, John Adams, 58, when he returned to the second floor dormitory after completing his half hourly round.

Forcing him into a chair at the point of jackknives, Perez and Nosik were joined by Victor Obos, 16, of 1736 N. Wood st., armed with a paring knife; Robert Chamberlain, 18, of 2241 Seminary av., and John Nowicki, 17, of 3041 S. Kedzie av. The five bound him, then dashed downstairs and climbed thru a window.

Before Adams freed himself and sounded an alarm of the second break in 24 hours, the five had a 7 minute start in which to scale the 13 foot fence inclosing the school and flee the grounds.

Two squads of state policemen, detailed at the school to prevent a repetition of Wednesday's break, were touring other sections of the ground at the time. The five apparently eluded a posse which pursued them into the country side.

Take Disciplinary Action.

Eddy said disciplinary action had been started against those who participated in Wednesday's break. He conferred with State's Atty. Seidel of Kane county regarding criminal charges against seven of the 24 who stole an automobile and attempted to burglarize a tavern after they escaped.

They are Vincent Litwicki, 16; Alfred Bartosik, 14, and Walter Racinowski, 16, of Chicago; John Brant, 14, of Decatur; Wesley Beaty, 16, Rockford; Thomas Thario, 15, East Peoria, and Robert Duff, Coffeen, Montgomery county. They are charged with larceny and burglary.

All except three of the 24 were apprehended on the school grounds and in an area within six miles soon after the break. The three still being sought are George Lakins, 16, of 1440 S. Spaulding av.; William Lamont, 15, of 817 N. Oakley blvd., and Eugene Martin, 16, Negro, Peoria.

YANKS AT EDGE OF ST. LO; WIN 7 FRENCH TOWNS

Advance on Lessay and Periers.

BY E. R. NODERER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 13.—With advanced patrols already probing in the outskirts of St. Lo, American troops tonight were pressing in upon that ruined Nazi fortress from all sides.

Advancing under an avalanche of shells from American artillery, doughboys stormed hills overlooking the town and crossed four of the seven main roads leading into the communications center. Infantry and armored forces moved upon the town from the north, northeast, northwest, east, and southeast.

Gain 300 Yards to Mile.

Gains of from 300 yards to more than a mile were made all along the 40 mile American front, and seven towns were swept up in the general advance against fierce German resistance. These gains also put the Yanks three miles north of Periers, German stronghold on the center of the line, and two miles north of Lessay, enemy bastion on the west coast.

In reaching dominant ridges a mile and a half east of St. Lo, the Yanks captured La Boulaye and advanced to the edge of La Barre de Semilly. In the northwest they advanced a mile to Le Misnel Durand. Between St. Lo and Periers, other troops reoccupied Le Desert, cleaned out St. Andre de Bohon, captured Gournay, and were driving thru the Bois du Hommet, a thick woods used by the Germans as a supply dump.

Big Gain Near Periers.

The Americans made one of their biggest gains north of Periers, where they seized St. German, three miles northeast of the town, and Gorges, four and a half miles north. Here they wiped out a Nazi salient and shortened the Yank line.

Driving on Lessay, the Yanks captured Vesly, only two miles away, and seized Hill 92, most important German high ground northeast of Lessay. Eastward from here the American line runs in a solid arc to threaten Periers.

Along the coast the last Germans were cleared from La Lande Mauduit swamps and the Americans drove another mile south to Bretteville sur Ay, north of Lessay.

On the British end of the front, no major fighting was reported but it was evident Gen. Montgomery's forces were preparing to come to grips with the mass of German armored units in the flat plain below the Orne river. The British recaptured Maltot, but northeast of Caen lost Colombelles.

Bad weather held down air support over the battlefront, but fighters and fighter-bombers managed to attack a few targets.

ALGIERS PAPERS O. K. ROOSEVELT'S RULING ON DE GAULLE POWER

ALGIERS, Algeria, July 13 (AP).—French newspapers editorially approved President Roosevelt's announcement of July 11 accepting the French national committee as the working authority for civil administration of metropolitan France.

The newspapers printed the President's remark on the committee's power to issue currency, but omitted his definition of Gen. Eisenhower's authority, as well as his statement that the United States was not recognizing the committee as the provisional government of France.

[Mr. Roosevelt said it would be up to Gen. Eisenhower as allied supreme commander to declare which zones are ready for civilian administration and which must remain under military control.]

Gate to Baltic Falls in 5 Day Street Battle

LONDON, July 13 (AP). — Wilno, gateway to the Baltic and capital of the soviet Lithuanian republic since 1940, fell to the Red army today after five days of street fighting in which more than 8,000 Germans were killed and 5,000 captured, Moscow announced tonight.

Continuing advances to the southwest placed the Russians less than 30 miles from East Prussia.

Several hundred towns and villages were taken in soviet advances all along the central, Baltic, and Finnish fronts, the soviet midnight war report announced, with noteworthy gains being made in the steady encirclement of Daugavpils, big rail hub in southern Latvia.

Near Anchor of Nazi Lines.

One of the day's significant advances was in the center, where Russian troops reportedly took a town 60 miles northeast of Brest Litovsk, anchor point on the Germans' next defense line and border city in the 1939 German-Russian partition of Poland.

This represented a 20 mile advance and confirmed German broadcasts which admitted the Russians had broken thru a German security line in that region.

The soviet war bulletin also made official Berlin's earlier reports of withdrawals in the north, where two Red armies are pounding toward the Baltic sea.

Stalin Cites His Son.

Fall of Wilno first was announced by Marshal Stalin, who ordered a 24 salvo salute from 324 Moscow cannon and cited his young son, Vasily, an air force colonel, for participation in the capture.

Wilno [Vilna] fell to the 3d White Russian army which finally liquidated the German garrison of the communications center linking White Russia, Poland, and the Baltic states. Several days ago it had been by-passed by large Russian forces.

Close in on Kaunas.

As five Red armies hammered at the enemy from the Latvian border to the Pripyat [Pripet] marshes, the German radio said Russian troops were only 12 miles east of Kaunas, capital of Lithuania and last bastion protecting the avenues to East Prussia in that region.

German troops are withdrawing along the border of Nazi ruled Poland, one German announcer said.

The closest soviet approach to German territory was toward the Suwalki triangle, which was added to East Prussia after the conquest of Poland in 1939.

Break Thru on 100 Mile Front.

The newest threat to the Germans was the offensive of the 2d Baltic army against Latvia. This breakthru was reported expanded to more than 25 miles deep and 100 miles wide after two days of fighting.

South of this front, the 1st Baltic army flung out a left hook less than seven miles from the middle Latvian border and near Daugavpils.

GANDHI PLEDGES HE'LL BE GOOD AND AID ALLIES

NEW DELHI, India, July 13 (AP).—Mohandas K. Gandhi has pledged not to renew his campaign of civil disobedience during the war. He also promised to help the allied war effort and envisaged a Nationalist government of India under a British viceroy.

His statement, in which he foresaw the viceroy as being "like the king of England guided by responsible ministers," failed to elicit any general approval from either Britain or India.

Hero of Two Wars; Burial Today.

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

U. S. 1ST ARMY HDQ. IN NORMANDY, July 13.—Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., 56, soldier son of a soldier father, died last night of a heart attack as he rested in a captured German truck in Normandy.

Gen. Roosevelt, whose father was the 26th president of the United States, had landed at "H" hour on D-day with an assault company of the 4th infantry division in the invasion of the Cherbourg peninsula, his third amphibious assault landing in two years. Since then he had been at the front every day his division was in the line, in his capacity as acting assistant division commander.

Visited by Son.

Gen. Roosevelt died peacefully last night at 11:50 o'clock, two hours after his last visit with his son, Capt. Quentin Roosevelt. Tomorrow he will be buried in the American military cemetery containing other 4th division soldiers. His body thus will rest in the soil of France, which holds the body of his brother, Quentin, who was killed at Tere en Tardenois, not far from Chateau-Thierry, in World War I.

"Gen. Roosevelt was really a battle casualty," said Maj. Gen. R. O. Barton, division commander. "All day long he rode the lines. He spared himself nothing. In fact, he had been out yesterday at the command posts cheering the men, helping the commanders and helping me.

"He was the most gallant soldier, officer, and gentleman I have ever known, without exception. There is not a G. I. soldier in the 4th division but will feel his loss severely, and that goes for the officers and commander, too."

"Expected Big Day."

Neither Gen. Barton nor army physicians had been able to repress Gen. Roosevelt's desire to be at the front "where the trouble was." Yesterday he had shrugged them off with his contagious, wide mouthed grin and said that he felt fine.

"We went out to the front as usual," said Lt. Marcus O. Stevenson, San Antonio, Tex., who had been with the general as his aide since December, 1942. "First he went to the unit which was making the attack to encourage the men. Then in the afternoon he visited another which was to attack today, and then we came back here. He told me that we would get an early start this morning, as he expected a big day."

Last night after dinner Gen. Barton dropped in for a visit in a tent near Gen. Roosevelt's new caravan, which included a German vehicle that ordnance men had refitted with a bed, electric lights, and a writing desk.

"Very Happy with It."

"The general was very happy with it," Stevenson said. "There he could write letters to his wife and his children, and there, behind his black-out curtains, he could read his beloved Shakespeare and 'John Brown's Body.' He could quote any passage from Shakespeare and, as we drove along in a jeep, he used to recite aloud."

When Gen. Barton arrived Roosevelt was talking over a combat problem with his aide and two young staff officers. Gen. Barton then suggested getting away from the war, and Gen. Roosevelt at once began telling amusing incidents of his civilian life.

After Gen. Barton left, Gen. Roosevelt's son, who is with the 1st division, arrived. To his son Gen. Roosevelt admitted that he felt "the old machine is pretty well worn."

At 11:15, after Quentin had gone, the general suffered a heart attack. He called Lt. Stevenson and became unconscious soon afterward. A headquarters physician was summoned but said the general was beyond medical aid.

At 11:30 Gen. Barton returned and was with Gen. Roosevelt until the end.

Capt. Roosevelt was immediately notified and reached 4th division headquarters at 2 this morning.

"Gen. Roosevelt has been not only my inspiration," said Gen. Barton, "and has thus contributed thru me great influences and inspirations to his division, but has personally endeared himself, inspired and urged on and made happy every fighting soldier in the unit. He is our own and while he still loved the 1st division [with which he served previously] I feel that he went out as a 4th division man. Certainly we claim him as such—our very own."

There is one 4th division unit which feels that Gen. Roosevelt is its own, too—Company E, 2d battalion infantry. Refusing the normal role of his position to come in later with the supporting waves, Gen. Roosevelt had hit the Normandy invasion beach with this company at "H" hour in the first assault boats and helped them fight their way off and inland.

Twice before Gen. Roosevelt had landed with assault waves with his first military love, the 1st United States infantry division. As assistant division commander, he landed with the leading boats near Oran, Algeria, Nov. 8, 1942.

Again when the 1st division landed on Sicilian beaches near Gela, "Teddy" Roosevelt was in the vanguard. Wherever correspondents went along the African and Sicilian fronts, there they would find Gen. Roosevelt going as far forward in his jeep as German fire would let him.

Became Liaison Officer.

After the Sicilian campaign, when the command of the 1st division was reorganized Aug. 30, Gen. Roosevelt became senior liaison officer with the French army. From the last war he wore the French legion of honor and the croix de guerre with two palms, and in the Mediterranean fighting he added the title of grand officer to the legion of honor and two palms to the croix de guerre. Wounds had won him a Purple Heart wtih two clusters.

Later Gen. Eisenhower sent him as his personal representative to Corsica and Sardinia in command of all allied troops there for three weeks. He was then reassigned as senior French liaison officer on the 5th army staff and went to Italy with the first elements of the French corps.

Then last February he was reassigned to the 1st army and late in March was attached to the 4th division.

In addition to his military career in the last war and this one, Gen. Roosevelt distinguished himself as assistant secretary of the navy, governor of two United States possessions, as statesman, explorer, business man and Republican leader. He was editor of Doubleday Doran and company, publishers, before he returned to the army upon the outbreak of war in December, 1941.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Alexander Roosevelt; three sons, Lt. Theodore III., U. S. N. R.; Lt. Cornelius Van Shaack, U. S. N. R., and Capt. Quentin, all of New York; a daughter, Mrs. William McMillan of Baltimore, Md.; two sisters, Alice Roosevelt Longworth of Cincinnati, O., and Mrs. Richard Derby of New York, and a brother, Lt. Col. Archibald Roosevelt, New York. His brother, Maj. Kermit Roosevelt, died a year ago while serving in Alaska and was buried there.

ALWAYS A FIGHTER.

To Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. the invasion of Europe culminated a career rarely matched in his lifetime for extraordinary excitement and many-sided adventure.

And altho he fought men and hunted wild animals over most of the world, and altho he was crowding 60 and was a grandfather, he remained tough and wiry, shaming far younger men with a driving energy that spared himself least of all.

Returning to Britain from the Mediterranean area early in 1944 he was taken off an airplane and placed in a military hospital for treatment of lobar pneumonia. He was under strict orders to take it easy and put the war out of his mind for a while.

Pneumonia couldn't get him down, but the kind, restrictive talk of hospital attaches did.

Six rows of ribbons—badges betokening many campaigns, wounds and decorations—coloring his tunic, attested to the facility with which he got into the fighting where it was hottest.

He had an odd, tuneless way of laughing. His ambling gait on parade played hob with proper marching, and a British correspondent in the Mediterranean said he had a head like a battered Apollo—but the foot soldiers loved him, and he was a man made for Armageddon.

Cared for by Wife.

Roosevelt was as much in love with his wife, Eleanor, as the day he married her.

She served with the Red Cross in France in the last war and helped care for her husband when he was wounded. She came overseas again this time and directed a Red Cross club in Britain for many months.

For Gen. Roosevelt, his sons, and all other Oyster Bay Roosevelts who have worn Uncle Sam's garb, death has canceled a date. A short time ago Gen. Roosevelt said:

"We've agreed that when we're together again after this war we'll get into our slickest uniforms, drink one perfect cocktail apiece, then dine in the fanciest restaurant in New York. We'll be there to look and to be looked at. Just that one fling and then back to work."

front lines with heterogeneous rear area troops, the Germans fought on grimly today among Normandy's hedgerows while the Americans advanced steadily toward St. Lo and Lessay.

If our progress seems slow it should be remembered that this checkerboard of earth walls woven together with tree roots, and old bushes is as much our army's enemy as are the Germans. It has produced fighting which led Maj. Gen. Charles Harrison Corlett, 54, of Espanola, N. M., commanding a corps, to declare it was worse, in many ways, than jungle fighting in the Pacific. Gen. Corlett, a veteran of the Attu campaign, commanded the 7th division in the assault on Kwajalein atoll in the Marshalls group.

Wreck Train of Tanks.

But at least, as a result of American air activity today, we won't have to contend with one German armored force which was heading north from Loire. Flyers broke up this train containing flat cars loaded with 12 tanks and 100 other cars and left the wreckage burning at Anciens, near Angers.

From the heights of hill 147, east of St. Lo, the battle scene today was a continued story from late yesterday only it was worse. Every attempt to move down the hill or attempt to fight down the road on thru the hedgerows brought immediate blasts from German artillery on the hills south of the road. Skillfully shifting their mobile 88s and 105 mm.'s, the Germans shot every time a doughboy showed himself. And it was impossible to move without a soldier revealing some portion of his anatomy.

Shells Blast Area.

In an effort to silence these guns our artillery threw concentration after concentration on these hills. All day the sound of shells blasted the air and in many cases it had its effect. Even tough German paratroopers were surrendering, unable to withstand any longer this incessant pounding.

But others fought on. From St. Lo where the Germans had run guns into houses in an old campaign maneuver to make strongpoints of them, came occasional shell fire. ings from our artillery.

In the marshland sector southwest of Carentan the fighting remained equally bitter. There, one American force was fighting along a 2,000 meter front hemmed in by swamps and soggy ground against Germany's best paratroopers and soldiers from the reich division and the 17th SS [elite guard] division.

Bazookas Bag Tanks.

Recently the Germans thickened this area with a few more tanks and more artillery. But the Yanks knocked out five more Mark IV.'s and V.'s with bazooka teams and two by 57 mm. anti-tank guns. One bazooka fighter let a tank get within 20 yards of him before firing. Another knocked out a tank from the side as it passed.

So swiftly are the Germans throwing in reserves and replacements as they get them, an officer said, that on one day recently replacements arrived at 2 p. m., having marched a considerable distance. At 6 o'clock many had been killed and a number were prisoners.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Following is the Thursday German war report, as broadcast by Berlin and recorded by the Associated Press:

"The enemy, owing to his heavy losses in the Caen area and to the west, confined himself yesterday to intensified artillery activity.

"Northeast of St. Lo, however, he attacked our front after a drumfire lasting for hours and supported by strong formations of battleplanes. Parachutists and infantry foiled all enemy attempts at a breakthru and inflicted heavy losses. There was bitter fighting the whole day between the Vire river and Sainteny area, as well as between the gorges [swamps] and the coast. Numerous enemy attacks were repulsed here. Local dents achieved by the enemy were ironed out in counter-attack or sealed off. Twenty-seven enemy aircraft were downed over the beachhead and occupied western Europe yesterday."

REPORTS GUERRILLAS KILLED 700 NAZIS IN ONE FIGHT IN FRANCE

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 13 (AP).—More than 700 German soldiers were killed in a recent battle with the maquis [guerrillas] in France, a British colonel said today. He is liaison officer between the command of the French forces of the interior and allied supreme headquarters.

He asserted the resistance movement in France had grown to proportions far greater than the allies had hoped.

The colonel exhibited a map of a completed operation timed with D-day. It showed where railroads had been cut 800 times, "not once but repeatedly." The cutting of wires, he added, had forced the Germans to depend almost entirely on radio. At one time, the colonel asserted, every telephone line out of Paris had been cut, and lines to Bordeaux are out "every other day."

VICTORIA CROSS GIVEN CANADIAN, A HERO IN ITALY

OTTAWA, Ont., July 13.—Announcement of award of the Victoria Cross, highest military decoration in the British empire, to Maj. John K. Mahony of the New Westminster regiment, was made here today.

On May 24 his company was ordered to establish a bridgehead across the Melfa river, in Italy. Maj. Mahony crossed under machine gun fire and was wounded in the head and twice in the leg. His bridgehead was enclosed on three sides by cannon as close as 100 yards and faced a company of infantry and machine guns. Under fire for hours, Maj. Mahony and his men beat off two counter-attacks by tanks and infantry. The company was reduced to 60 men, with all except one officer wounded, but it held until the remainder of the regiment got across.

Two other Canadians have received Victoria Crosses in this war.

Liberated Normandy Flies Tricolor for Bastille Day

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, July 13 (AP).—Every city, town and hamlet in liberated Normandy—most of them scarred by war—proudly flew the tricolor tonight in anticipation of the celebration of Bastille day tomorrow.

before leaving. At least 12 were killed.

"The line disappeared in the debris," said an eyewitness.

Robots Strike Again.

After giving Britain a one night respite from flying bomb attacks the Germans loosed a few of the robots over the southern counties tonight, but first reports indicated there had been no casualties. An official announcement made no mention of bombs falling in the city of London itself, which had been free from attack the three previous nights.

Another 22,000 evacuees left London for the provinces. They boosted to more than 100,000 the number, mostly women and children, who have fled robot threatened areas.

Insurance companies are receiving many inquiries from people whose homes have been looted after being hit by roobts. At present such looting risks are not covered by private or government insurance schemes. Bombed out Londoners, including even children, are taking turns in guarding each other's houses.

Bombs Glide in Now.

The government warned that some of the flying bombs now glide a considerable distance instead of dropping almost vertically when their motor stops. The only warning the gliding bombs give is a "slight whistling noise."

It also was disclosed that some of the bombs turn a complete circle before diving, but usually they continue a straight course. Some have dived to earth with the motor still running.

Robots Hit Yanks in France.

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, June 19 [Delayed]—(AP).—Flying bombs of the type now descending on London have been sent against troops on the American beachhead in Normandy.

At least one has been identified by aviation ordnance officers and parts of another have been found.

It is difficult to tell the Nazi bomb from a heavy shell when it hits, particularly in areas under intense gunfire.

SERVICE GIRLS' BABIES RAISE BRITISH QUESTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—Miss Irene Ward, a Conservative, inquired in the house of commons today regarding the status of illegitimate babies born abroad to members of the women's services.

Home Secretary Morrison replied that the status of such children was determined by law. The most he could do, the secretary added, was afford facilities for naturalization when such children reached proper age.

When Miss Ward asked whether the secretary would consider an alteration in the law, Morrison replied, "You must not try and set the war office against the home office."

GERMANS FIGHT YANKS BOMBING MUNICH 3D DAY

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—Communications and other war targets concentrated around Munich were hammered today by more than 1,000 American heavy bombers, which smashed this fourth largest German city for the third day in a row and finally forced the German air force to come up and fight.

The great fleet of Flying Fortresses and Liberators, completing an unprecedented 60 hour assault on the Munich area, also pounded Saarbruecken, 200 miles west of Munich.

Unlike the previous two days, Nazi fighters attacked the bomber fleet and 10 American bombers and five fighters, from an escort force of 500, failed to return. Eight German planes were shot down, six by the bombers and two by fighters.

Danville Gunner on Raid.

Sgt. Elmer Browning of Danville, Ill., a ball turret gunner, said: "We received four direct hits from German planes which came in waves of 10 to 12. They came down out of the sun and hit us almost before we had a chance to see them."

The Munich assault brought the total of bombs rained on that area in three days to approximately 9,000 tons.

The Swiss radio said American bombers again flew over Switzerland and that one crashed after the crew bailed out. Seventeen of the 46 bombers missing on the two previous Munich raids landed in Switzerland.

Munich Still in Flames.

Bomber crewmen said they could see fires still burning in Munich from yesterday's atack by 1,200 heavy raiders.

Both Munich and Saarbruecken are vital points on rail lines leading to Hitler's southern front.

Allied Mediterranean air force bombers returned to the assault on the German oil supply today, striking storage tanks and rail facilities in northern Italy. Up to 500 heavies attacked half a dozen fuel and rail targets, including the Porto Marghera and Trieste oil storage tanks.

European Fishermen Get New Warning to Quit Sea

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 13 (AP).—A new warning was broadcast tonight to all fishermen to stay out of the coastal waters from Bayonne, near the Spanish frontier, to west of the Frisian Islands, off the northwest coast of Germany. The broadcast said that Gen. Eisenhower found it necessary to extend a former order for two weeks.

TURKEY MOVING TOWARD ALLIES IN NEW TALKS

'Closer Co-operation' Predicted.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Turkey is moving rapidly toward the allies, it was learned authoritatively today, and may take a concrete step in support of the allied war effort within a matter of days.

Talks have been going on for three weeks between Turkey and the United States, Britain, and Russia. The conversations are continuing and the outcome will determine the next move.

[Earlier dispatches said conversations were under way in Ankara, Turkey, London, Moscow, and probably in Washington.]

Cut Nazi Trade 50 Pct.

Ever since the conference at Cairo, Egypt, last year of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Turkish President Ismet Inonu, Turkey has been inching over into the allied camp, and within the last two months the pace has stepped up considerably.

Turkey has already cut her overall trade with Germany by 50 per cent, in addition to complete stoppage of chrome exports.

The next move may be a severance of all economic relations with Germany, with the possibility that a break in diplomatic relations and eventually war would follow.

Meanwhile, Laurence Steinhardt, American ambassador to Turkey, who is in Washington conferring with President Roosevelt, told correspondents at the White House that he was looking for "much closer coöperation" from Turkey soon.

Pointed Toward War.

While there is no indication that Turkey will declare war immediately, that is the direction in which present developments seem to point. Turkey's entrance into the war would open an entire new front against Germany, and could cause German collapse in the Balkans. The Nazis are believed to have insufficient forces there now to hold back the Turkish army.

Opening of the Dardanelles and thus of a direct sea route to an all-year Russian port.

Would Get Bases.

Obtaining near-by bases to bomb vital Balkan oil fields and industrial installations, including strategic Ploesti in Rumania.

A short route for flying lend-lease planes into Russia all year around.

Control or capture of several thousand Nazi agents sprinkled thru the middle east who manage to use Turkey as their base of operations.

The Turkish government has been convinced for some time, an authoritative source said, that the allies would win the war. Military successes on the Russian, French, and Italian fronts have impressed them deeply.

3 American and 3 British Destroyers in List.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Of the several thousand ships that took part in the June 6 invasion of Normandy, 15 were lost, it was announced today—seven American and eight British.

American losses included three destroyers and the former $4,000,000 Grace liner Santa Clara, renamed the transport Susan B. Anthony. The British admiralty in London said the Susan B. Anthony sank in the channel without the loss of a soldier. Most of the troops aboard were transferred to other ships with their equipment. Some 50 or more of the 400 naval personnel aboard were unreported, but most were believed safe.

Chicagoan a Survivor.

Among the Susan B. Anthony's naval survivors was Lt. Lawrence Wesner, 631 W. 111th st., Chicago.

American destroyers lost were the Corry, Glennon, and the Meredith. Also lost were the destroyer escort Rich, minesweeper Tide, and the fleet tug Partridge. Commanding officers of all vessels except the minesweeper survived, altho two were wounded.

The 8,183 ton Susan B. Anthony [Santa Clara] was one of the transports that took part in the invasions of North Africa and Sicily. During the Sicilian operation she was subjected to five night air attacks, during one of which she shot down two twin-engined bombers.

Three Destroyers Lost.

British losses in the Normandy invasion included three destroyers, the Boadicea, Swift, and Svenner; the frigates Mourne, Blackwood, and Lawford; the trawler Lord Austin, and the auxiliary Minister.

Commander Wounded.

Corry Sank U-Boat.

The Corry was one of the best known destroyers in Atlantic service. Only recently her gunfire and depth charges destroyed a German U-boat. Her skipper received a Legion of Merit award for this action. In addition, she participated in convoy service.

The Meredith, bearing the name of another destroyer lost in an air attack off Guadalcanal in October, 1942, went into service early this year. She crossed the Atlantic in May on escort duty on one of her first assignments.

The Glennon also was one of the newer destroyers, having been commissioned in October, 1942. She operated with the service force of the Atlantic fleet for some time and then moved across the Atlantic in convoy duty. Her first action was in the invasion of Sicily last July when she was commended for accurate supporting fire.

Commissioned in 1943.

The destroyer escort Rich was commissioned in October, 1943, and after training in the Bermuda area was assigned to coastal convoy duty.

The fleet tug Partridge originally was commissioned as a minesweeper in 1919, but was assigned to duty as a fleet tug in June, 1942.

ASSERTS ALLIED DRIVES WEAKEN NAZI RESERVES

Foe Is Still Strong, Patterson Says.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The pressure of allied offensives on three fronts and in the air is wiping out German man power reserves and forcing the enemy to make crippling reductions in army supply and combat reserve units, Acting Secretary of War Patterson declared today.

A Nazi military order seized on the Italian front, he said, disclosed that several months ago the enemy already had been forced to the arbitrary reduction of all supply units by 25 per cent, and of all rear echelon combat units by 20 per cent.

Nazis Stiffen in Italy.

All German soldiers under 30 were ordered into front line combat outfits, without replacements in the units from which they were taken, and all soldiers up to 38 were ordered to be ready for front line duty as soon as replacements could be made.

Enemy resistance is stiffening before the Nazi mountain line from Pisa to Rimini in Italy, said Patterson, with the apparent intent to try to keep the allied armies from reaching the ports of Leghorn on the Mediterranean and Ancona on the Adriatic.

Calls Nazis Efficient.

Patterson said that despite its diminishing reserves, the German army still is not regarded by allied commanders as anything but a strong and efficient organization, which is forcing the allied armies to fight hard for every foot of ground they take.

The smashing advances of the Red army, the pressure in Normandy, and the continuing allied advances in Italy are slowly drawing a ring tight around the enemy, but "we get nothing without sweating and fighting for it," he said.

The general picture of the war against Germany is encouraging for the future, Patterson said, "but our present task of forging ahead against an efficient enemy organization remains a hard one."

Nazis Say Terror Grips People.

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—One of the gravest broadcasts ever to come from Nazi Germany declared tonight that "terror grips the hearts of many of our people" and that "Germany's fight for life and death is on."

The broadcast, as heard by the London Evening News, warned: "Before the peril can reach the heart of our beloved country we will turn this continent into a maelstrom of destruction where only one cry is heard—the cry for blood.

"This holy war must now become a really total war. Every one capable of drawing breath for forging or using a weapon must now be in it. We must have the very last man."

Gen. De Gaulle Back in Algiers for Bastille Day

ALGIERS, July 13 (AP).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle arrived home tonight from his trip to the United States and Canada—in time for tomorrow's Bastille day celebration.

Will Take Test

Thirteen Tilden Technical High school boys 17 years old were sworn into the air forces enlisted reserve yesterday by Capt. F. A. Wilgus, president of the Chicago army air forces examining board, to swell Tilden's contribution to the air forces to more than 200 in the last year. Within a short time after his 18th birthday each boy will be ordered to an air forces training center, where he will take an aptitude test to determine whether he will be assigned to pilot, bombardier, navigator, or gunner training. Those selected for the first three jobs will be trained for a year before they are ready for combat duty.

GERMAN SHIPS' ANTI-INVASION DRIVE CRUSHED

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—The British navy in nightly battles over a 300 square mile area "completely defeated" efforts by German destroyers and E-boats to pierce British landing areas during the first three weeks of the Normandy invasion, it was announced tonight.

More than 50 British warships, including destroyers, frigates, corvettes, trawlers, and light coastal forces took part in the engagements. It was estimated that 40 E-boats and several destroyers were damaged in these clashes. Only one British destroyer was damaged, and that superficially.

The Germans sent E-boats in packs, then destroyers, then E-boats in pairs, then a mixture of E-boats and destroyers, and then a combination air and sea attack. The enemy sometimes attacked from the Cherbourg side, and sometimes from Le Havre.

ARMY MESSAGES FOR RETURN OF YANKS BANNED

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The war department has decided to discontinue transmitting to theater commanders requests for soldiers overseas to be returned to this country because of illness in the family or other emergency reason.

Henceforth, those making such a request will be asked to give it to the American Red Cross which, after an investigation, will make a recommendation.

TRAGEDY, DEATH STALK REFUGEES IN RUINS OF CAEN

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. FORCES IN NORMANDY, July 13.—The important city of Caen, which was the luckless scene of bitter fighting for five weeks, still is the only haven for thousands of homeless refugees whose sole possessions are the clothes on their backs and the thin pallets on which they sleep. There are shortages of hospital facilities, of vehicles to remove civilians to near-by Bayeux, and of disinfectants and insecticides.

French physicians say there are some cases of diphtheria and typhoid. They also fear the spread of venereal diseases which are present at an alarming degree.

Power System Knocked Out.

The only water available is hauled by hand from the town pumps. The sewerage and electrical systems were knocked out by the heavy allied bombings, which also killed many French civilians.

Adding to the suffering of the civil populace, the Germans continually shell Caen.

Altho many blocks in the center of the town now are only a tumbled mass of rubble under which lie uncounted French dead, a building used as a state school and monastery suffered only minor damage. Thousands eat, sleep, and find shelter there. In what formerly was the dining hall old people and the injured lie atop marble tables, while in one corner there is a rough medical laboratory.

Throngs Sleep in Cellars.

In the building's cellars people of all ages and sexes sleep in such close proximity that it is impossible to walk without stepping on "beds." Because the cellars formerly were used as the monastery wine caches the only light is thru small windows.

Caen is a distressing sight. A few persons poke hopelessly thru the debris in search for some small things which might still be useful. Large signs announce the death penalty for looting. Some shops have been patched up, but there is little trade.

As we drove into Caen I could hear an artillery duel and saw fire mushroom up in one sector of Caen. There has been some sniper activity. One Canadian dispatch rider was killed as he rode down a street.

Illinoisan Aids Refugees.

The estimated 8,000 refugees in Caen are being assisted by a civil affairs unit headed by Maj. Earle Shelley of Kitchener, Ont., whose mother, Mrs. Louis McLauth lives at 7352 N. Seeley av., Chicago. His staff includes Capt. Eli Borkon, Carbondale, Ill., unit medical officer, whose wife lives at 4441 Hyde Park blvd., Chicago.

In Caen I had a firsthand sample of what German mortar fire is like. There were explosions near-by which peppered a group of correspondents with tiny bits of stone. I received two microscopic cuts on the face.

Compare Casualties

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Announced American battle casualties in the present war are approaching the total casualties incurred in the first world war. A total of 187,028 army casualties announced today by acting War Secretary Patterson brought to 235,411 the overall total of officially announced casualties on the ground, in the air, and at sea. The first world war's overall total was 278,828.

The army casualties include 33,240 killed, 77,449 wounded, 38,142 missing, and 38,197 prisoners. The navy list is composed of 20,362 killed, 14,127 wounded, 9,433 missing, and 4,461 prisoners.

In Italy, army casualties toltal 70,399 thru July 3. Of the total, 12,655 were killed, 47,457 wounded, and 10,287 missing.

South Side Flyer Dies in Raid Over Romania

Mr. and Mrs. George G. Ryan, 6810 Lowe av., were informed yesterday that their son, Lt. George G. Ryan Jr., 23, was killed April 16 during operations over Romania. He was a navigator on an army bomber. Lt. Ryan is survived by his parents, his wife, Jean, and a sister, Patricia, a lieutenant in the army nursing corps.

RIVER FOREST FLYER KILLED IN WAKE RAID

Second Lt. Clarence [Bud] Sauer, 23, navigator on an army bomber, was killed June 29 in an attack on Wake Island, his mother, Mrs. Lillian Sauer Peters, of 726 Ashland av., River Forest, was notified yesterday by the war department. He was a graduate of Luther institute and attended the University of Chicago, where he was a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He enlisted in the air forces Oct. 7, 1942, and left the United States April 26, 1944. Memorial services will be held at 11 a. m. July 30 at the Grace Lutheran church, Bonnie Brae av. and Division st., in River Forest.

PRINCE, RADIO AID OF DUCE, IS SEIZED IN ROME

ROME, July 13—(AP).—The prince of San Faustino, husband of the former Mrs. Lydia Macy of New York, has been detained by allied authorities for questioning, along with his father-in-law, Gen. Allessandro Bodrero.

During Mussolini's Fascist rule the prince made propaganda broadcasts in English over the Rome radio. The princess said her husband and father were arrested July 4 by American intelligence service men in plain clothes. She said:

"He has been held incommunicado. As far as I know, they made no charge against him. It seems a long time to hold a person for questioning. My husband spoke on the radio for Italy, but he is an Italian and wanted to do what he could to help his country, much as he regretted being in a war against America. His mother was an American and he likes America."

ERIC JOHNSTON URGES U.S. CASH REBUILD RUSSIA

He Says Stalin Seeks to Avoid More Wars.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—President Eric Johnston of the United States Chamber of Commerce, advocating greatly expanded trade with Russia after the war, today expressed the conviction that Dictator Stalin is interested only in developing the soviet union and in avoiding further conflicts with other nations.

Eric Johnston.

Johnston, just returned from a five week trip to Russia where he talked with Stalin, told a press conference that "Stalin's complete desire is to rebuild Russia and not to engage in further world conflict if he can avoid it."

Urges Credits to Russia.

Advocating the extension of large long term post-war credits by private American capital to develop United States-soviet trade, the chamber of commerce head said: "In my conversations with Stalin, we both took it for granted that capitalism can do business with communism."

He said Russia is the most collectivist state in the world, and growing more so, while the United States is the most individualistic nation.

"But we can work together," Johnston said. "We do not conflict in world trade. Neither of us wants more territory. A prosperous United States and a prosperous soviet union will go far toward preserving peace after the war. Russia is eager to settle down to a long period of peace."

Expects Russia to Repay.

Johnston said Russia would welcome long term loans from the United States to be used for the purchase of many types of industrial machinery, and perhaps merchant ships. Such loans would probably run 10 to 30 years, he added. The soviets, he continued, are determined that such loans would be repaid.

He said repayment could be made largely in metals, such as copper, manganese, platinum, cobalt, and nickel, and in such items as furs and timber. We are short on most of these metals, he observed.

"Our potential trade with Russia is almost unlimited," said Johnston. "The only limit is the amount of credit we want to extend. If American private capital doesn't want to advance funds, it might be done thru some federal agency, such as the Export-Import bank."

Suspicion Is Decreasing.

The Russians' suspicion of Americans is lessening and they have a growing desire to coöperate with us, he said. He also reported that the soviet union is beginning to give outsiders more information and more access to what is happening within its borders. The Russians are developing an intense nationalistic spirit and believe Russia "can do anything."

Previous domestic censorship of Russian history, including that of the czarist days, is being relaxed.

Johnston, who had a three hour conference with Stalin, said the premier has a "twinkle in his eye" and a great sense of humor.

Johnston said he told Stalin and other soviet officials that communist activities should not be fostered by Russia in America. The Russians denied they were promoting communism here, he said.

Report Repatriate Trains Are Stalled Inside France

IRUN, Spain, July 13 (AP).—Three trains carrying approximately 900 British internees, the first contingent of a mass civilian exchange with the Germans, were reported stalled today nearly 100 miles east of Bordeaux, in the heart of French Maquis [guerrilla] territory. Meanwhile, Germans who arrived by boat from North Africa for the exchange wait in Lisbon.

Americans Converge on Livorno

(Story in adjoining column.)

AMERICANS WIN NAZI CITADEL ON ROAD TO LIVORNO

ROME, July 13 (AP). — American troops have captured the German stronghold of Lajatico, 17 miles inland from the Italian west coast, in bitter fighting and tonight were reported battering slowly down the Era valley toward the Arno river, first main obstacle in the enemy's "Gothic line" defenses.

Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's doughboys cleaned out the last German suicide squads in Lajatico yesterday, taking 150 to 200 prisoners, and pushed north in their drive to flank the big port of Livorno, whose strong defenses virtually have stalled the Americans for a week.

Late dispatches placed the flanking forces less than 12 miles from the point where the Era river empties into the Arno northeast of Livorno, whence the broad Arno valley stretches west to the sea between Livorno [Leghorn] and Pisa.

Beat off Nazi Attacks.

Inland from Lajatico other allied forces prepared to assault key road centers commanding the approaches to the "Gothic line." After beating back several Nazi counter-attacks, French colonials won positions from which they could strike at Poggibonsi, which guards both the Elsa river valley approach to the Arno and the main highway northeast to Florence, 21 miles away.

The bitterest fighting in this sector was for Hill 218, two miles southwest of Poggibonsi, which the French won two days ago. The Nazis counter-attacked yesterday in an attempt to regain the height, but the colonials held and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy.

Menace Road Junction.

Arezzo, key road junction 36 miles east of Poggibonsi and southeast of Florence, was under constant probing by British 8th army patrols. A major attack on it appeared to be imminent. An allied officer said the Germans had massed more than 70 big guns around Arezzo.

Citta di Castello, another German-held road junction in the upper Tiber valley, was menaced by 8th army troops four miles from its outskirts. Gubbio, a communications hub 48 miles south of Rimini, Adriatic anchor of the "Gothic line," was under assault by Indian troops.

BASTILLE DAY · MESSAGE GIVEN FRENCH BY F.D.R.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—President Roosevelt tonight saluted "the heroic people of France" in a Bastille day statement in which he expressed confidence that within a year hence they will be "liberated alike from the invader and from the puppets of Vichy."

The President commended the French for their fighting in Normandy and in Italy along with American, British, and Canadian forces, and spoke of the deep friendship of the American and French peoples.

"Together, the French and American peoples stand today, united as they have always been when the cause of freedom was endangered. Together, we shall win, and France shall be free!" he said.

FIGHTING TEXAN WIPES OUT GUN NEST ALL ALONE

Private's Heroism at Salerno Disclosed.

Washington, D. C., July 13 [Special].—A fighting young Texan, who lied about his age to get into the service, emerged today as a new American hero. The youth, who won the medal of honor at Salerno when he ruined a German defense position single handed, is Sgt. James M. Logan, 22, of Luling, Tex.

He was Pvt. Logan on Sept. 9, when he got disgusted with the way the Italian invasion was going and took matters into his own hands. The situation looked bad; his company had advanced less than a mile from the beachhead and was under heavy German machine gun fire.

The wickedest gun was behind a stone wall right in front of them. Then the German infantry started streaming thru a gap in the wall to get at the Yanks, who were in a ditch.

Rushes Out to Attack.

That's when Logan got sore and took charge of the campaign. He scrambled out of the ditch and started shooting at the German infantry. The enemy machine guns splattered him with dirt and rock splinters, but he never noticed them as he operated his semi-automatic M-1 rifle. And he didn't waste a shot.

His Garand rifle cracked three times and the first three Germans thru the wall fell dead. The other Nazis retreated behind the wall, but their machine guns still tried to mow down the lone Yank. Then Pvt. Logan charged the machine gun.

Defying the heavy but inaccurate fire Logan dashed 200 yards to the front of the wall, then crawled along until he was opposite the gun.

Captures Germans' Gun.

Suddenly Logan sprang to his feet, fired two shots across the wall and then leaped over it, right into the middle of the machine gun nest. He shot two more Germans and the rest of the crew fled.

Pvt. Logan swung the Nazi gun around and went to work with it, mowing down the fleeing crew and other Germans beyond them. When he ran out of ammunition, he smashed the gun and decided to go home. Then he discovered two Nazis trying to sneak away along the wall. One was an officer.

He covered them with his rifle and marched them back to the battalion command post. After turning over his prisoners, Logan returned to his company and found it in trouble again.

Solves Another Problem.

The problem was a German sniper, firing from a house about 150 yards away, who had tied down the company and "inflicted heavy casualties." Logan picked up his trusty rifle and charged the house. Four other snipers went to work on him, but missed.

Logan kicked in the door of the house. The sniper ran down stairs to meet him but the Texan got in the first shot. That was the end of the sniper.

Then Logan clinched the medal of honor by volunteering to lead three reconnaissance patrols deep into enemy territory. Each time he brought back the desired information.

Logan claimed he was 18 when he enlisted in the Texas National Guard on Aug. 4, 1936, but the family Bible says he was born Dec. 19, 1921, so he must have been under 15.

NATION HONORS FALLEN HERO OF AERIAL BATTLES

Gilson, Ill., July 13 [Special].—A sober, humble crowd gathered under the big oak tree in Harley Stickell's front yard here today to offer their quiet congratulations as high military honors again were bestowed on his son, Lt. John Stickell, a farm boy who became one of the most distinguished flyers with the British air force and the United States navy before he met his death in action.

Lt. John Stickell.

Neighbors and friends gathered at the Stickells' after word was received that the navy posthumously had awarded the young pilot the navy cross, the distinguished flying cross, and the air medal for heroism in action against the Japanese during the month before his death on Dec. 21, 1943.

Bombs Jap Oil Base.

The citation accompanying the navy cross told how Lt. Stickell volunteered for a bombing strike against a Japanese oil storage depot on Jaluit Island last December. He flew at tree-top level thru heavy rain and intense anti-aircraft fire, and, altho severely wounded, scored a direct hit on the oil storage base.

Lt. Stickell previously had won, during his two and a half years of service with the British air force as a bomber pilot, the distinguished service order, Britain's second highest medal for bravery, and the distinguished flying cross. His citations for these honors credited Lt. Stickell with being an "outstanding operational officer who completed his duties regardless of opposition and other difficulties."

Joins Navy for Action.

Lt. Stickell, who was 29 at the time of his death, completed 45 missions with the R. A. F., hitting many targets in Germany and Italy. He resigned from the British force when he was threatened with being given a job as an instructor. Offered a major's commission by the United States army, he refused it to accept a lieutenancy in the navy because it assured him of action.

The story told of Lt. Stickell by his boyhood friends is the simple one of an American farm youth who worked in the fields, tinkered with motors, and then learned to fly for his country.

"Johnny didn't like to kill," one of them said, "but he knew what to do when it was necessary. He grew up in a small town, went to school, and then went to war. That he and some of his kind won't be coming back is America's greatest loss."

LIBERALIZE LIST OF MAGAZINES SUPPLIED G. I.'S

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The army today denied reports that it had banned certain magazines from circulation among soldiers.

It also issued a "memorandum for the press" which said, "following two months' careful examination into soldier preferences, a new and comprehensive list of magazines of general circulation is expected to be announced by the army next week."

It had been charged that the army had banned distribution of several magazines to troops, among them Harper's, Atlantic Monthly, American Mercury, the Nation, and the New Republic.

MANY MASTERS' HANDS ON WILNO SINCE WAR OF '18

City's Fate Frequently Source of Friction.

The political disposition of Wilno [Vilna], the Baltic gateway city captured by the Red army yesterday, has been a source of friction in eastern Europe since World War I.

On Dec. 8, 1919, the allies laid down a provisional eastern frontier for Poland, the so-called Curzon line. This gave Poland the province and city of Wilno. The bolsheviks, with whom the Lithuanians were at war, then held the city.

Three months later the Lithuanians, by arrangement with the Poles, were on the point of recapturing Wilno when it fell instead to Polish troops. The Russians recognized the Lithuanian claim to Wilno in the Lithuanian-Russian peace of July, 1920.

Taken Again and Again.

In the succeeding Polish-Russian fighting, soviet forces took the city. When the Poles drove back east, the Russians handed Wilno to Lithuanian troops in August, 1920.

Polish troops took the city back two months later, breaking the agreement whereby the Poles recognized the Lithuanian occupation of Wilno.

After the Lithuanians seized Memel in January, 1923, the conference of ambassadors assigned Wilno to Poland. Lithuania refused to accept the ruling, even tho she was given Memel and an area known as "Lithuania Minor."

Joins Soviet Union.

Since 1920, Russia has maintained that Wilno was Lithuanian. The Russians occupied Wilno in September, and returned it to the Lithuanians in October.

In 1940 a Communist dominated parliament was chosen in Lithuania. It proclaimed Lithuania a soviet socialist republic, and the country was incorporated into the soviet union on Aug. 3, 1940. Wilno is the capital of the soviet socialist republic.

Lithuania, and with it Wilno, were overrun by Nazi troops in 1941.

NAZIS ADMIT MORE RETREATS ON SOVIET FRONT IN WILNO AREA

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Continued German retreats on the Russian front were admitted by Berlin yesterday, altho it asserted that in several sectors Russian attacks were beaten off. As recorded by radio monitors in New York, the official Nazi war report had this to say of the Russian front:

"In the southern sector local soviet thrusts were repulsed. In the Kowel area, repeated enemy attacks collapsed with heavy losses.

"In the central sector, heavy defensive fighting still is going on between the Pripyat [Pripet] and the Dvina rivers. While west of the Szczara river all soviet attempts at a break thru were foiled, our divisions in the area south of Wilno detached themselves further toward the west. At Alytus [Lithuania], German troops in a strong counter-attack inflicted heavy losses.

"In the area southwest and southeast of Daugavpils [Latvia] our troops are engaged in hard fighting. East of Opochka, repeated major soviet attacks were repulsed and local dents were sealed off."

Red Cross Appeals Again for Protection of Civilians

GENEVA Switzerland, July 13 (AP). —The international committee of the Red Cross, recalling that as early as 1940 it had appealed for the protection of civilian populations in war zones, made public today another call upon "all men and women of good will to exert influence so that irreparable wrong which human beings are inflicting upon humanity may now cease."

Up from the Sea . . . In "Ducks"

A new and secret weapon until a few months ago, the GMC "Duck" has now become a valued veteran of invasion campaigns from Sicily to the South Pacific. Part boat and part truck, it combines the performance and advantages of both. Loaded with fighters, food or fighting equipment, it can travel from ship to shore, and back again, with a simple shifting of controls. On land, the "Duck's" powerful engine and sturdy, six-wheel drive chassis carry it over regular road or tough terrain, right along with the famous GMC 2½ ton, "six-by-six" Army truck. In the water, chassis and tires add stability and seaworthiness to the big, buoyant, all-steel hull, making for "smooth sailing" in heavy surf and high seas. 'PANTY-WAIST BRIGADE' HIT BY MRS. PATTERSON

Publisher Assails State Department Clique.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—The Washington Times-Herald tonight published the pictures of 20 youthful state department employes under the heading, "Some state department boys who do not choose to fight."

The accompanying story was written by Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, publisher of the newspaper. The story and pictures occupied an entire page.

The story said in part:

"Mr. Roosevelt has just planted a time bomb on the doctors of America. If it goes off, the fault will be largely their own. The time bomb is this: That the President refuses to allow any draft deferments of boys in college preparing themselves for medical training.

Suggests Rich Field.

"He says the army needs all the able bodied young men it can get, and that pre-medical students now in class would not become practicing doctors before 1948.

"If the army needs all the able-bodied young men it can get, we politely suggest that the army should cast its eye on the state department. There it will discover, like so many pearls in so many oyster shells, an assortment of rich, able bodied, and unmarried boys of no particular use to any one."

"Panty-Waist Brigade."

"We do recall," the story continued, "that quite a few of these state department members of the 'panty-waist brigade' [and isn't that vulgar?] have declared that they'd 'give up their eye teeth' to get into this war. Well, why don't they give them up and throw their molars in for good measure? Is it because they are a bit shy about risking their blood and guts and tears into the bargain?

"You see, the President, in his infinite wisdom, has deferred these state department boys. According to their version of the story, they would not be accepted in any active branch of the service. They are forbidden to enlist.

"Now that, of course, is just so much tripe. All they have to do to join up is resign their jobs in the state department, splash their careers and their sweet futures overboard, if need be, as so many millions of other young men have done, whether they wanted to or not."

Raps William Bullitt.

Mrs. Patterson said that if some of America's older "statesmen," such as former Ambassador William Bullitt had ever come into contact with reality and the tougher side of American life; instead of the "satin smooth" surface of their own confines, they would not have kept their "light minded, playful attitude" toward war.

"The President himself," the story said, "has no first hand knowledge of war either, we might add. Like his little boy friends [Drew] Pearson and [Walter] Winchell, he stayed far away from the battlefields of the first World war.

"Altho at that time a young man, and in perfect physical condition, he 'did his bit' as assistant secretary of the navy—right here in Washington."

List Men, Qualifications.

JAPS RETREAT AFTER A RALLY NEAR MOGAUNG

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HDQ., Kandy, Ceylon, July 13 (AP).—Japanese retreating in north Burma have yielded the village of Pyindaw, where they apparently tried to rally for another stand eight miles southwest of their fallen stronghold of Mogaung, Adm. Louis Mountbatten's bulletin announced today.

West African Nigerians and Chinese wrested the village from the Japanese after a day of bitter fighting, and the Nigerians pursued the enemy southward.

Chinese patrols moving east along the railroad from Mogaung reached the area of Myitkyina, 30 miles east, the main Japanese barrier to the allied drive thru the Burma jungles toward isolated China.

FIGHTING YIELDS TO DUSTY PEACE AT HOLLANDIA

Yankee Supply Base Takes Shape.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLANDIA, Dutch New Guinea, July 13.—Two months ago a cloud hung over Hollandia, a cloud of gunfire that was the prelude of the American invasion. Today a cloud of dust hangs over Hollandia. It is the postlude of the invasion and denotes ceaseless activities of a comparatively peaceful nature.

Never a day goes by but what at least 15 Japs are killed, but Hollandia has changed from a fighting area to a supply base. Several miles of highway and a few miles of country road have been cut thru the mountains and over the swamps, and despite frequent rains the dust is so thick that one can hardly see a truck ahead.

A lack of gasoline kept Jap planes aground when the American planes roared in over Lake Sentani, but the American air corps here will never encounter a similar handicap. The latest methods insure a constant supply.

There are ships in the harbors and docks are being constructed for direct unloading. Land has been leveled for warehouses.

Camps are being built on grassy slopes and in kapok and cocoanut and cocoa plantations. Telephone lines are everywhere.

Veteran Is Boss.

Boss of it all is smiling Brig. Gen. Emer Yeager, tanned by years in the tropics. A veteran at this sort of thing, he directed the organization of the first southwest Pacific air base at Darwin, and later others at three forward hot spots.

If you want transportation you see Lt. Joe Graw, 1335 Rosemont av., Chicago, and if you want a cot to sleep on you see Pvt. Jerry Clute, 1241 E. 70th st., Chicago, who was a teacher at Coldwater, Mich., for seven years.

First surveys revealed few good camp and warehouse sites, and Gen. Yeager had troops drain a swamp near the beach. Now, with roads being completed, there are enough sites. Gen. Yeager plans to have a garden planted on the former swamp, believing that the virgin soil will produce enough vegetables for the hospitals, at least.

"If it had not been for the Japanese supplies here we wouldn't have been able to meet all our deadlines," Yeager said.

Tents, trucks, and radios were at places of need. Bombs at the airport saved hauling in our own. The Japs provided even some delicacies, such as coffee, jams, and crabmeat.

"All in all," said Yeager, "it's fun." He paused, then added, "Well, at least interesting."

HEAVY LOSSES DEALT TO JAPS IN GUINEA TRAP

ADVANCED ALLIED HDQ., New Guinea, July 14 [Friday]—(AP).—The 45,000 Japanese trying to break out of a trap northwest of Wewak, New Guinea, have suffered heavy losses, headquarters announced today.

Gen. MacArthur said a large enemy force moved west on Wednesday to attack Aitape and smashed into Yank outposts. Strong artillery and air support backed these positions.

The fragmentary battlefront reports, covering action until daylight Wednesday, made no mention of an enemy breakthru anywhere, but a headquarters spokesman said the preliminary assaults were checked only after the most savage fighting of the New Guinea campaign.

Bombers Attack Enemy.

As the big scale battle built up, Bostons, Mitchells and Beaufighters of the far eastern air force sprayed 53 tons of explosives among Nipponese concentrations.

Gen. MacArthur had announced yesterday that the by-passed 18th army forces of Gen. Hatazo Adachi opened the attack Monday. These Japs appear to be in a hopeless position inasmuch as they are more than 600 miles behind the most advanced Yank positions on Noemfoor Island, off north Dutch New Guinea.

Ahead of them are massed blocks of Yank invasion forces at such points as Aitape, Hollandia and Maffin bay.

25,000 Combat Troops.

While reconnaissance reports indicated 45,000 Japanese were in the trap, a headquarters spokesman said fewer than 25,000, perhaps, were combat troops.

The purpose of the enemy, the spokesman said, was to try to crash thru westward toward the northwest coast or possibly to some point between the American bases at Aitape and Hollandia. Those two beachheads are 125 miles apart.

Headquarters also reported another air raid on Yap, in the western Carolines. Attacking bombers dropped 28 tons on the Japanese base and shot down three of 15 interceptors on Wednesday.

ILLINOISAN GETS D.S.C. FOR TAKING 7 JAPS' PILLBOX

WITH THE ARMY, South Pacific [Delayed]—(AP).—For single handedly storming and recapturing from the Japanese of an American pillbox on Bougainville, Tech. Sgt. Earl J. Cashmore of Wadsworth, Lake county, Illinois, has been granted the nation's second highest military honor, the distinguished service cross.

The citation said Sgt. Cashmore first attacked the pillbox with rifle grenades, then crawled under intense fire to within five yards of it and hurled hand grenades. He then crawled back and obtained a submachine gun and charged the fortification twice, firing thru the slits of the pillbox. When his ammunition was exhausted, he used grenades and a borrowed rifle to continue the attack.

Seven Japanese, who had taken the pillbox in a night attack, were found dead in it.

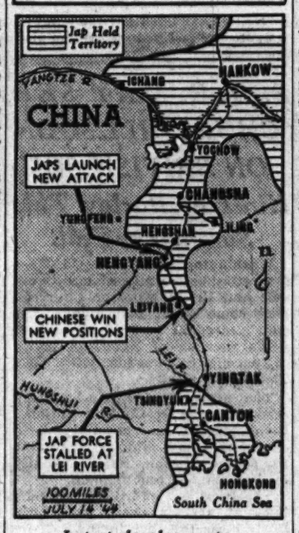
War in China



Latest developments.

CHUNGKING, China, July 13 (AP).—The Japanese have launched a strong assault on Chinese lines in the suburbs of Hengyang in an apparent attempt to revive their flagging drive to erase the last 160 miles standing between them and their goal of splitting China in half.

Japs Stalled in South.

Japanese fighting northward from Canton in an attempt to join those coming down from the north were stalled at the Lei [Linchow] river, 12 miles below Yingtak.

A heartening factor was the reported Chinese capture of positions south of Leiyang, 32 miles south of Hengyang, and the approach of another force from the west on Yengyang, 25 miles northeast of Hengyang.

FLYER ON TRIAL IN BEHEADING OF AUTO DRIVER

Tucson, Ariz., July 13 [Special].—With completion of testimony by 12 military and civilian witnesses, the prosecution virtually completed its case today in the court martial at Marana field here of Lt. Howard E. Stittsworth, 21, Wakefield, Kas., pilot, who is charged with murder and violating flying regulations. The trial will be resumed tomorrow.

Lt. H. E. Stittsworth.

Plane from Luke Field.

A passenger in Lt. Stittsworth's plane, Lt. Dean C. Fundingsland, who testified today, was convicted of two lesser charges Monday in a court martial at Williams field, Arizona. The plane in which the two men flew was based at Luke field, Arizona.

Mrs. Nepple, wife of the deceased man, also appeared at the trial. She haltingly confirmed testimony of George D. King, the other passenger in the auto, who described the crash:

"The airplane was coming right in our face on the highway," he said. "It looked to me like it was on the highway. I said, 'There's a plane.' He [Nepple] said, 'My God,' and turned the car to the right."

According to other testimony, the auto crashed thru a wire fence and continued more than 500 yards into the adjoining desert before stopping. King, who was in the back seat, said he got out of the car and opened the front door.

His Head Torn Off.

"Mr. Nepple had had his head torn off, he said.

The prosecution, attempting to prove that Lt. Stittsworth had "buzzed" an army truck and another civilian auto before the fatal crash, introduced testimony to support this contention.

Corp. Hammond Waugh of Luke field said he was inspecting lights on an auxiliary field June 22 when a plane flew toward his truck, coming to within 12 or 15 feet of it.

Daniel F. Stewart of Los Angeles said he was driving southeast toward Phoenix when he saw "a plane coming toward me, practically on the road." He added that he turned off on a shoulder of the road and ducked "under the windshield."

He said he saw an automobile behind him leave the road.

The plane's propeller, shorn off at both tips, was introduced as evidence along with photographs of marks on the highway.

F.D.R.-WALLACE TICKET BOOMED BY REDS AND CIO

Daily Worker Approves of Fourth Term.

Washington, D. C., July 13 [Special].—Communist and Congress of Industrial Organization support was thrown behind a Roosevelt-Wallace Democratic ticket today.

The Daily Worker, official organ of the Communist party in the United States, came out editorially in favor of a fourth term for President Roosevelt, describing him as a commander in chief and "American spokesman on a world scale."

Referring to Vice President Wallace, the Communist publication said, "We are not greatly impressed by the argument that he is unpopular." It said that with the President immersed in military and policy problems, "the country needs a Vice President who is both capable and a consistent supporter of the President's policies."

Bewails Loss of Willkie.

The Daily Worker charged the Republican party, if it should win the election, would not represent "a continuity of leadership" in America. This conclusion, the paper says, is based partly on the Republican party's "rejection of Wendell Willkie and his program."

Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist party and president of the recently formed Communist Political association, which ostensibly took the place of the party, became editor in chief of the Daily Worker last June 26.

Browder was the Presidential candidate of the Communist party in 1936 and 1940. When the party was dissolved in New York last May 20 in favor of the political association, Browder said the party had no Presidential candidate of its own this year for the first time in 25 years.

William Z. Foster, frequent Communist Presidential candidate before Browder and until May 20 the national chairman of the party, said in a speech at Muskegon, Mich., July 5 the dissolution of the Communist party was "simply an adjustment" to enable the Communists to support President Roosevelt for a fourth term. He contended the Communist party has not gone out of business but simply has reorganized to adjust itself to the political situation.

Murray for Wallace.

Philip Murray, president of the CIO, told a press conference in the capital today that the CIO will go down the line for Wallace's renomination as Vice President at the Chicago convention next week.

"The CIO is definitely committed to support Vice President Wallace for renomination," he said. "We have no other choice."

Previously the CIO's political action committee had come out in favor of Mr. Roosevelt's renomination, too, making its ticket the same as the one indorsed by the Daily Worker.

During the course of the conference, Sidney Hillman, chairman of the political action committee, announced the formation of a new group known as the national citizens political action committee to do the election work that the labor committee is prevented by law from doing. It will be financed by contributions.

Hillman is chairman of the new committee, which has an executive body of 11 members.

Lt. Tom F. Knudson.

Lt. Tom F. Knudson, 27, an army air force pilot, was killed in action over Holland April 8, the war department notified his mother, Mrs. F. E. Hanshaw, 8032 S. Hermitage av., yesterday. Lt. In the army for two years, Lt. Knudson had been overseas since last September. He received his wings at Williams field, Phoenix, Ariz., on May 20, 1943.

HOSPITAL SPED INTO MARIANAS BY WISCONSINITE

[By a Marine Corps Combat Correspondent.] [Distributed by the Associated Press.]

SAIPAN, Marianas Islands.—The United States navy has established a modern hospital in two large buildings here which recently housed a big Japanese radio station. It has been invaluable in providing treatment for the 15,053 American casualties sustained here.

The hospital has 20 doctors, 160 corpsmen, and 750 cots. Principally responsible for its development in just 12 days was Lt. Comdr. E. R. Hering of Shell Lake, Wis., who came ashore with the initial landing force.

The first known emergency operations on marines wounded on Saipan were performed by surgeons in Charan-Kanoa, native town on the southern part of the island, two days after the initial landing and only one day after the town had been seized. Now four operating rooms run day and night, with the doctors working in shifts.

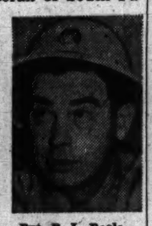
Soldier to See Son

MRS. SOPHIE P. JEDINAK.

Pvt. Russell L. Poole, 27, of 1540 E. 65th pl., a veteran of South Pacific fighting, was given court permission yesterday to visit his divorced and remarried wife to see his son, Russell Jr., 5, if he is accompanied by a policeman.



Pvt. R. L. Poole.

Poole is on a furlough in Chicago from an army hospital in Springfield, Mo. He petitioned Judge John A. Sbarbaro in Superior court for an order permitting him to visit his former wife, Mrs. Sophie Jedinak, 26, of 10408 Campbell av., to meet his son while he is in the city. His attorney, Irving Eisenman, said Mrs. Jedinak did not want Poole to tell the child that he is the boy's father.

Mrs. Jedinak, also in court yesterday, said Poole wanted to see her, not his son. She said he had been argumentative with her and her husband. She divorced Poole June 1, 1943. Judge Sbarbaro ordered her to permit Poole to call to visit his boy at any time with a policeman, and he also restrained her from taking the child out of the jurisdiction of the court.

WAR SECRETARY IS ASSAILED AT NEGRO MEETING

Negro soldiers expect civilian members of their race to "call for the resignation of Secretary of War Stimson, if need be" to halt segregation and brutal treatment in military service, Capt. Grant Reynolds, former army chaplain, last night told delegates to the war time conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, meeting in the Metropolitan church, 41st st. and South Park way.

"The Negro soldier," said Reynolds, "if he must die, wants that death untainted by the stigma of race discrimination and he expects the progressive forces among his own people will so represent him they will call for the resignation of Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, if need be."

Charges Officers Prejudiced.

Reynolds, a Negro Congregational minister in Cleveland before serving two years as a chaplain, declared Negro soldiers are "still segregated and brutalized as they daily serve under prejudiced southern whites, too many of whom regard them as no higher than beasts of burden."

The former chaplain said he knew from personal experience of the Negro soldier's feelings because he lived with them in barracks when white officers would not permit him to occupy quarters built by the war department for the use of its officers.

The Negro soldier, Reynolds said, wants the elimination of southern officers specifically chosen "because of their alleged knowledge about handling the Negro"; he is "sick and tired of being subjected to travel conditions which not only insult his manhood but seriously affect his patriotism"; he is equally tired of being trained in that section of the nation which "is more concerned with fighting the Civil war than in making preparations to resist Hitler."

Demands Change in Policy.

Reynolds called for a change in war department policy of inducting newly drafted Negro troops into labor battalions, regardless of their qualifications and the refusal to give Negro officers positions of command commensurate with their training and capabilities. He urged the abolition of intrarace conflict he charged was designed by southern officers to set at odds northern Negroes against their southern brothers by placing southern Negroes of inferior preparation and capabilities above northern Negroes having superior training.

In the afternoon session George M. Johnson Jr., associate director of the President's committee on fair employment practice, warned that, even with the closest coöperation of government, labor, and management, there will be from 7 to 12 million unemployed in the post-war conversion period. Gloster B. Current, executive secretary of the Detroit branch, N. A. A. C. P., declared "The Negro can only hold his job if there is enough employment to go around."

Ex-Judge Named Chairman.

William H. Hastie, former judge in the Virgin Islands and now dean of Howard university law school in Washington, was named chairman of a resolutions committee composed of 44 members elected by delegates and 10 selected from the board of directors. Sub-committees were named to consider various resolutions submitted, among them being two adopted by Baptist ministers' groups opposing the trend of the N. A. A. C. P. toward political activity. The resolutions committee will report to the conference tomorrow.

F. D. R. MAY SEE CHURCHILL SOON ON BRITISH SOIL

Hints at Parley This Summer or Fall.

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—A meeting between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill may come about before long, the way cleared in part by Mr. Roosevelt's revision of American policy to permit coöperation with Gen. Charles De Gaulle.

The problem of Anglo-American relations with De Gaulle's National Committee of Liberation has been one of the most difficult to trouble the course of affairs handled jointly by Washington and London.

The President and the prime minister at various times have been fairly close together in their desire not to recognize the committee as a provisional government. Mr. Churchill's position, however, has been complicated by the fact that his own foreign office has favored recognition.

No Talk Date Indicated.

Had the recognition issue remained in an unsettled condition, it undoubtedly would have colored the discussions between Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill.

No date for these talks has been indicated. The President, however, has hinted at news conferences that he expects to see the prime minister this summer or fall and that he probably would make the trip to Britain instead of having Mr. Churchill come to the United States.

For a long time, Gen. Eisenhower, lacking an allied directive, relied on French coöperation along the lines informally agreed to with French Gen. Koenig, De Gaulle's representative.

Coöperation Upset.

The informal nature of the Eisenhower-Koenig arrangements is regarded here as having contributed to the breakdown in coöperation between De Gaulle and Eisenhower in the hours immediately before the invasion started. It was not until about two weeks after D-day that the allied command finally worked out coöperation with the French on a day-to-day basis.

The talks held by Mr. Roosevelt and De Gaulle broke the jam, even tho they are understood to have been of a general nature.

The whole setup is to be formalized in an agreement based on a draft already worked out by British and French officials in London.

[Copyright: 1944: By the New York Times.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Vice President Wallace was understood tonight to know just what President Roosevelt will say on his behalf for renomination as a running mate. It was said to be acceptable to him.

It was not disclosed, however, whether the statement will go as far as was suggested in a rough draft form reported to have been submitted by Wallace at one of their three meetings since the Vice President returned from his Chinese-Russian mission.

The third meeting was held today. After it a noticeable wave of relief swept among the Vice President's supporters here.

May Be in Letter.

In some quarters it was anticipated the release and distribution of the statement would be left largely to the discretion of the Wallace faction, that it would take the form of a letter addressed, if not to Wallace, to either Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, or to Sen. Jackson [D., Ind.], who will be permanent chairman of the national convention which convenes at Chicago next Wednesday.

It was predicted the letter would say something like "if I were a delegate to the Democratic national convention I would cast my vote for Henry A. Wallace for Vice President."

Political significance was attached to the possibility the President might address his statement on Wallace to Hannegan or to Jackson. Such an approach, it was contended, probably would carry more weight with the convention than would a personal expression directed to the Vice President.

Draft Shows Warmth.

The tentative draft of the President's statement was understood to show considerable warmth in his appraisal of the Vice President, officially as well as personally, but to give no indication his expression of preference constituted a demand upon the convention.

Pressure has been reported put upon the President during the last week to include in his statement the names of others who would be acceptable to him if the convention did not renominate the Vice President. The present draft of the statement was understood to mention no other names.

DEWEY ASSAILS NEW DEAL IDEAS ON 'EXECUTIVE'

Outlines His Philosophy of Government.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., July 13.—Gov. Dewey, in his closest approach to a campaign speech since he accepted the Republican Presidential nomination, this afternoon outlined his philosophy of politics and government to a group of high school girls in the senate chamber here. His audience was the mock state administration for a day of the Empire Girls' state, a class studying government sponsored by the American Legion auxiliary.

"There have been in recent years," the governor said, "two tendencies in our public life which have worked to separate government from the people. One has been the development in Washington of a concept that the executive department of the government is apart from and superior to other branches of government and is above the people.

Hits Pressure Groups.

"The other has been the growing aggressiveness of various pressure groups and special interests who push their particular claims so vigorously that they tend to act as a wedge between government and the broad interests of the people.

"One of the big tasks of the next few years will be to bring the government closer to the people and to bring the people closer to the practice of self-government. . . . That we shall succeed in restoring government that is close to the people I have no doubt."

After being introduced by the girl governor, 16 year old Violet St. Clair, Dewey said he was happy to see young women taking an active interest in government. He said public service offered a promising career for women, and he named a dozen women who hold responsible positions in his own administration. He said government will be improved by the participation of women.

Halleck to Call Today.

In the streets of Albany today 450 demonstrators from New York City and about 200 more from upstate protested with placards in favor of the federal ballot for soldiers and sailors. The New York legislature enacted a statute for service men to vote and Gov. Dewey has sustained this law.

The demonstration was by an organization known as the Citizens Non-Partisan Committee for Service Man's Vote, which lists the American Youth Democracy [formerly known as American Young Communists] as one of its member groups.

Late in the day Dewey received Eduardo Gonzalez, Republican national committeeman from Puerto Rico. Gonzalez told reporters his country is anxious to rid itself of Rexford Tugwell, former New Deal brain truster and the present governor.

F.D.R. NAMES HIS EX-PARTNER AS RED CROSS HEAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—President Roosevelt today appointed his former New York law partner, Basil O'Connor, as chairman of the American Red Cross. The job pays $12,000 a year.

Basil O'Connor.

O'Connor will finish the term of Norman H. Davis, chairman since 1938, who died July 2. The term expires Dec. 11. Appointments are for one year, but the incumbent generally can look forward to a long tenure. George L. Harrison, president of the New York Life Insurance company, has been acting chairman since Davis' death.

O'Connor is head of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. He is 52 years old and was educated at Dartmouth and Harvard.

G. O. P. JUBILANT OVER HIGH VOTE IN WASHINGTON

Seattle, Wash., July 13 (AP).—Washington state Republicans rejoiced today over a primary vote topping the Democratic totals for the first time since the Roosevelt landslide in 1932.

In the primary Tuesday the Republican vote for 11 candidates in the senate race, on the basis of latest returns, was 161,037, compared with a Democratic vote for three candidates of 128,044. In the race for governor Republicans cast 216,250 votes, while Sen. Mon C. Wallgren, Democrat, unopposed, was given 81,182.

In five of the six congressional districts the G. O. P. vote was impressively larger than that given Democratic candidates.

Gov. Langlie, whose vote for renomination was more than 35,000 above the total cast for all four other candidates in both parties, claimed a Republican victory was in sight in the fall.

MURPHY QUITS AS DIRECTOR OF STATE LABOR

Robert L. Gordon Is Named to Post.

Francis B. Murphy of Wilmette, state director of labor since 1941 when his appointment by Gov. Green brewed a storm of resentment among the Illinois State Federation of Labor [AFL] unions, yesterday submitted his resignation, effective July 31. Murphy will be succeeded by his assistant, Robert L. Gordon, 44, of Urbana.

Gov. Green, praising Murphy's administration of the office, said "It is with genuine regret that I accept your resignation, but the manner in which you presented the request leaves me no alternative."

In his letter of resignation, Murphy said he was retiring "at this time because the relations of the department with organized labor and industry showed they were not only appreciative but in thoro accord with the policies of the administration."

Assailed CIO Friendliness.

The federation objected to Murphy's appointment chiefly on the ground that he was at the time head of the Deep Waterway Coal and Dock company of Chicago. Federation officials, who also assailed Murphy's reputed friendliness for the CIO, said they were "astounded" the governor had appointed as director a man who "doesn't carry a union card."

Reuben Soderstrom, president, and Victor A. Olander, secretary of the federation, had demanded retention of the preceding director, Martin P. Durkin. On the other hand, the CIO had demanded Durkin's removal, and Ray Edmundson, then head of the CIO in Illinois, solidly supported Murphy for the post.

Murphy also said he was giving up the directorship because he wanted to devote more time to his family. He could not be reached last night for further comment.

Well Known to Labor.

In his selection of Gordon, the governor picked an acting director who, he said, is widely known in state labor union circles. Gordon was commissioner of public works for Urbana until he was named to his present post in 1941.

He has been president of the Twin City Federation of Labor for five years, secretary of the painters' union nine years, and a delegate to the Illinois State Federation of Labor conventions 14 consecutive times. As a brakeman on the Peoria and Eastern railroad, Gordon was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Similar Careers

The next governor of Illinois will be a lawyer, a graduate of a Chicago law school, a former prosecutor who gained fame in his successful legal fights against gangsters and racketeers, a veteran of World War I., who resides at 5349 Sheridan rd. and is a member of Bob o' Link Golf club. But don't jump to conclusions.

Gov. Dwight Green, Republican nominee for reëlection, is a lawyer, a graduate of the University of Chicago law school, a former United States district attorney who figured prominently in the conviction of Al Capone. He served as an army aviation instructor in World War I., resides in the Edgewater Beach hotel at 5349 Sheridan rd. and is a member of Bob o' Link Golf club.

But State's Atty. Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic nominee for governor, also is a lawyer, a graduate of Kent College of Law, who gained recognition in his three terms as state's attorney for his successful prosecution of gangsters, served in the navy in World War I., maintains his residence in the Edgewater Beach hotel at 5349 Sheridan rd., and is a member of Bob o' Link Golf club.

ORDER BY ICKES CUTS ANTI-KNOCK CONTENT OF GAS

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Secretary of Interior Ickes, petroleum administrator for war, tonight announced that refiners have been directed to change specifications of civilian gasoline from 72 to 70 octane, thus reducing its anti-knock content.

The action, effective tomorrow, was taken because of increased needs of the army and navy for 100 octane aviation fuel, Ickes said.

"Ever increasing demands from the military for fighting gasoline make it necessary that, for an indeterminate number of months to come, there be a reduction in the quality of gasoline used by the American public," his announcement said.

DEMOCRATS PUT WOMAN IN KEY PLATFORM POST

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

Dean of women in congress, Rep. Mary Teresa Norton of New Jersey, who is serving her 20th year in the national legislative body, is scheduled to arrive today for her sixth Democratic national convention. She is a delegate at large.

As the first woman co-chairman of the resolutions subcommittee on platform in the history of the party, Mrs. Norton is expected to attend a preliminary meeting of the committee today.

The veteran congresswoman will be one of six women at the convention whose candidacies for congress have received the party blessing in the primaries and who are campaigning for election this fall. Two of them are named Douglas.

Winner Over Six Men.

Mrs. Paul H. Douglas of Chicago is Democratic nominee for congressman at large from Illinois. The other is Helen Gahagan Douglas, actress, nominee in the 14th congressional district in California and one of two women who will address the national convention. Unlike the Illinois candidate, who ran unopposed in the primary, the Californian won her nomination in a race against six men.

Also unlike Chicago's Mrs. Douglas, the California nominee campaigns under her own name, the one by which she is known in the theater, Helen Gahagan. However, both are married to captains. Capt. Paul Douglas, University of Chicago professor and alderman before his enlistment, is overseas with the marines, and Capt. Melvyn Douglas, former actor, is overseas with the army.

Second Illinois Woman in Race.

Another Illinoisan among the women candidates for congress will be Ruth Grandy Fillingham, Democratic nominee in the 17th district, who lives on a grain and dairy farm near Pontiac. Remaining candidates are Mrs. Elsie Stanton, who is running in the 10th district in Ohio, and Miss Marie Bickert, candidate in the 8th Wisconsin district. All except Mrs. Fillingham are convention delegates.

Two more women aspirants coming for the convention still await the decision of the party primaries. One is Sen. Hattie W. Caraway of Arkansas, candidate for reëlection, who is being opposed by four men in the state primary July 25. She will be a delegate at large. The second nomination seeker is Mrs. Cecilia Garvin, candidate to congress in the third Wisconsin district in the primary Aug. 15. A convention delegate, Mrs. Garvin is chairman of the Juneau county Democratic committee.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins will be among Democratic women leaders at the convention, as will several wives of cabinet members—Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, Mrs. Jesse H. Jones, and Mrs. Francis Biddle.

KEMPER NAMED FINANCE HEAD BY REPUBLICANS

New York, July 13 (AP).—Herbert Brownell Jr., Republican national chairman, announced today the appointment of James C. Kemper, 57 year old Chicago insurance executive, as chairman of the Republican national finance committee.

James S. Kemper.

Kemper, who was present at the press conference at which Brownell announced the appointment, said a tentative budget for the Presidential campaign had not yet been drafted, but his object was "a balanced budget come hell or high water."

"We won't spend any money we don't raise and we won't raise any money we don't need," Kemper said.

Kemper, who is president of the Kemper Affiliated Insurance companies and the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company, will take a leave of absence from his business without pay, Brownell said.

TRUMAN TELLS FRIENDS 'NO' ON VICE PRESIDENCY

Kansas City, Mo., July 13 (AP).—Sen. Truman [D., Mo.], in a statement to the press late today declared he did "not want the Vice Presidency," and said he sincerely hoped the Missouri delegation to the Democratic convention in Chicago next week would not indorse him for that office.

"It is difficult to make my friends believe me when I say I do not want the Vice Presidency," the Missouri senator said.

G. O. P. DUMPS ITS 6TH DISTRICT CONGRESS ENTRY

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

In an action said to be without precedent in either party, the Republican regular organization yesterday dumped the G. O. P. nominee for congress in the 6th district on the ground that he preached intolerance.

The nominee, Charles J. Anderson Jr., 1816 Monroe st., has indicated he will stay in the race. A candidate will be chosen Monday to be entered as an independent with the support of the regular organization.

In the three-way contest Nov. 7, G. O. P. leaders privately admitted they will have no chance of beating the Democratic incumbent, Thomas J. O'Brien. O'Brien has been criticized for his blindness to gambling while sheriff and as a New Deal rubber stamp in congress.

Edward F. Moore, 30th ward committeeman and former G. O. P. county chairman, presided at the meeting of party west side ward and west township leaders in the Bismarck hotel.

Challenges Democrats.

"The Republican party means what it has always said about Americanism," Moore said. "Intolerance has no place in our way of life. To match our stand for principle, the Democratic party would have to repudiate Sen. Bilbo of Mississippi and many other peddlers of hate. That will not happen."

Anderson turned down an invitation to appear before the district committee and defend himself. In the April 11 primary he defeated the regular organization candidate, Marvin Kurth, Stickney township committeeman. Some politicians explained Anderson's victory by saying Anderson had "a better ballot name."

Anti-Jewish and anti-Negro expressions of Anderson were alleged in a report to the G. O. P. by Edward F. Clamage, chairman of the anti-subversive committee of the American Legion in Illinois. Anderson has been active in many organizations supporting such sentiments since 1938, Clamage charged.

Report Two Have Declined.

Clamage asserted that Anderson said Jews controled the financial system and would wreck this nation unless checked. He also charged Anderson with proposing that the Negroes be sent to Africa.

Leo Lowitz, president of the Lincoln Republican league, and William E. King, Negro, 2d ward committeeman and nominee for congress, also asked the 6th district G. O. P. committee to repudiate Anderson. It was done unanimously by resolution.

It was reported that the independent candidacy has been offered to Lowitz and to Paul Rothenberg, 24th ward committeeman, but that they declined to make the race.

WEAPONS SHOW CONTRASTS U. S., AXIS EQUIPMENT

Reveals Superb Job Done by Quartermasters.

High quality of the food, clothing, and equipment supplied to the United States army by its quartermaster corps is brought into sharp contrast with German and Japanese items in displays at the "Weapons of War" exhibit in Burnham park, south of Soldiers' field.

Seven branches of the army service forces are represented in the war show, which is free to the public and open daily from noon to 11 p. m. Other exhibitors are the corps of engineers, medical department, transportation corps, ordnance corps, signal corps, and chemical warfare service.

Supplies 72,000 Items.

The quartermaster corps supplies virtually everything used by a soldier. In global warfare ranging from the equator to the arctic thru mountain and desert it is required to buy and stock more than 72,000 items to perform its gigantic task.

In the "Weapons of War" show, conducted in conjunction with the treasury department in the interest of the 5th war loan, the quartermaster corps exhibits outstanding examples of food, clothing, and equipment used by the three armies.

The principal difference between food supplies to Japanese soldiers and those of the United States and Germany is in the variety and energy values.

Japs Get Vitamins.

Rice still is the basic food of the Japanese soldier, but this is supplemented with fish, meat, rye, or vitamin pills. The German ration consists of stew mixes, rye soup, and canned meat and vegetable combinations.

The United States "C" ration contains six cans weighing three pounds with enough food to sustain a man for a day. The "K" ration contains three one meal units—breakfast, dinner, and supper—with directions for preparation in various ways. The emergency "D" ration is a bar of concentrated chocolate which will sustain a man for a day under emergency conditions.

A sham battle is a feature of the quartermaster exhibit. Stands are provided for 3,000 spectators who see uniforms of three nations on living models and a vivid encounter between two combat teams, dressed in American and German uniforms.

Gov. and Mrs. Green and their daughter, Nancy, today will be guests of the transportation corps at the show and will have luncheon aboard the cargo ship in the lagoon.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. Jessie S. Stevens, 5630 Kenmore av.]

THE QUESTION.

Does being beautiful have any disadvantages?

WHERE ASKED.

Roseland State Theater, 11020 Michigan av.

THE ANSWERS.

Betty Lee, singer, 3727 Pine Grove av.—The chances of getting a good looking husband are usually slim if you're a good looking girl. Fellows have the idea that if she's beautiful she doesn't know how to cook, sew, or keep house. A pretty girl is nice to take out, but as for marrying one—they'll usually choose a plainer girl.

Shirley Choisser, student, 5541 W. 63d pl.—Good looking girls have a harder time making friends and being accepted among a group of girls because jealousy is involved. They're usually discussed behind their backs as being beautiful but conceited and unfriendly. The fellows accept them readily and this angers the girls.

Margaret Nelson, fashion model, 7436 Ellis av.—A lot of people have the misconception that if a girl is beautiful she's probably dumb. If you get ahead because you have brains they give you credit for using your good looks to the best of your ability. I'd rather have comments on my intelligence than my beauty.

Betty Madsen, telephone operator, 5033 N. Neenah av.—Being able to put on make-up to good advantage often makes a girl beautiful. Then when she goes swimming or gets caught with her hair in curlers or minus lipstick people often make the remark, "She's not really pretty at all." They expect you to look pretty on any occasion.

Shirley Chlebowski, student, 4045 Hirsch st.—It's embarrassing to walk down the street and have strange men say, "Hi, Babe" or "Hey, Mabel"—and then whistle or howl. Then, too, some remarks men make about girls make them feel self-conscious. There's no reply that fits the comment.

Marion Reise, hat model, 8419 Phillips av.—A beautiful girl has an easier time getting boyfriends than a girl who isn't as attractive but she has a harder time keeping them. If you give a fellow a good excuse for not being able to go out on a certain evening he immediately gets jealous. He isn't as sure of himself as he would be with a more average girl.

3,600 EMPLOYES IN CAN COMPANY PLANTS STRIKE

Approximately 3,600 employes in 10 plants of the American Can company and the Continental Can company in the Chicago area went on strike yesterday to protest a war labor board directive which gave them only a part of the wage increases which they sought. The strike was called by the CIO United Steel Workers' union.

The plants affected by the strike are 100 per cent in war work. Shortly after the strike was called, officials of the army quartermasters' department here and the WLB took steps to end the strike.

Edgar L. Warren, regional chairman of the WLB, sent telegrams to the CIO officials, demanding that the employes return to work immediately to stop interruption in war production.

Pay Boost Granted.

The directive issued by the WLB granted the employes of three plants of the Continental Can company a raise of 7½ cents an hour for men and 10½ cents for women, bringing the wage scale to 77½ cents for men and 67½ cents for women. The employes in these three plants had asked for an increase of 10 cents an hour for men and 13 for women, which would bring the scale to the level being paid in two of the Continental plants on the south side.

The employes of the American Can company plants, who were being paid the level fixed by the WLB directive, were denied an increase to the scale paid in the two south side Continental plants.

C. V. Trickey, manager of industrial relations for the Continental Can company, said that the higher wage in the two south side plants was approved by the WLB last December. He said the employes in other company plants asked for a similar increase which the company agreed to, if approved by the WLB.

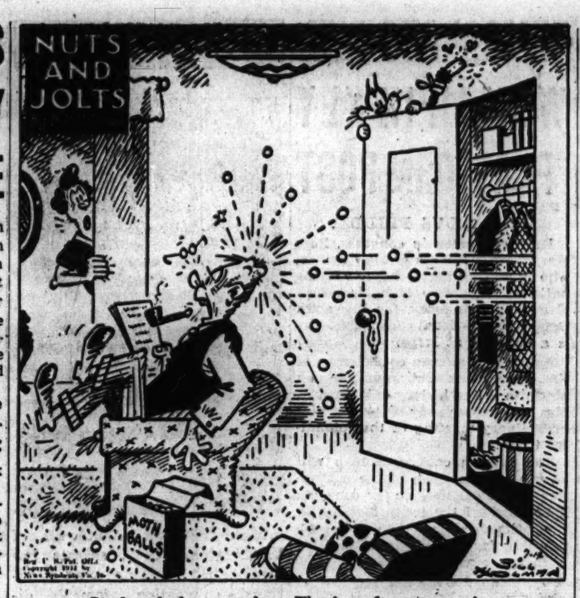
Officials Are Puzzled.

Union officials said that they could not understand how the WLB could agree to the higher wage in one plant and deny it in other plants doing the same kind of work.

Labor officials said that they feared that the strike would spread to practically all can manufacturing plants in the area, affecting more than 8,000 employes.

The plants affected by the strike are three of the Continental Can company in Chicago, four plants of the American Can company in Chicago, two of its plants in Maywood and one in Joliet.

Gordon Kellogg, vice president of the American Can company, said that the strike may endanger the pea and cherry packs. Cans for the fresh fruit and vegetable packs must be manufactured during the actual harvest season and were rolling off the production lines when the strike was called, he said. It is possible for a large portion of the harvest to be lost in a matter of hours, he reported.



Confound those moths. They're after me again.

2,500 WIN BACK PAY INCREASE FOR 16 MONTHS

A war labor board order from Washington, D. C., that the General American Transportation company of East Chicago, Ind., pay a 5½ cent per hour blanket wage increase to all employes, retroactive to March 1, 1943—more than 16 months—was announced yesterday by Lester Thornton, sub-district director of the United Steel Workers union [CIO] at East Chicago.

Thornton said the back pay due employes totaled a half million dollars and that company officials had promised to make payment within 30 days. Peter DeRose, president of the plant local 1133, said that 2,500 workers would benefit. At a mass meeting Wednesday night, they voted unanimously to buy at least one $100 war bond each with their back pay.

A year ago the union grievance committee reopened contract negotiations with the company for a basic pay raise from 72½ cents to 78 cents. The regional WLB sanctioned the new contract, but the company filed an appeal, which has been under consideration by the NWLB since that time.

'WAR CARGO' IS LOAD OF LIQUOR; DRIVER IS FINED

When Sgt. Ralph Cantanese on July 6 sought to arrest Charles Turner, 26, of 3845 West End av., for speeding his truck thru three stop lights on Elston av., Turner protested he was rushing an order of vital war supplies.

"And you're interfering with the war effort," Turner continued as a sympathetic crowd gathered and became hostile to the policeman.

In Safety court yesterday Sgt. Cantanese revealed just what was the vital war cargo being hauled by Turner. "It was a load of 900 cases of liquor," he told Judge William V. Daly.

SEWER BELIEVED TO BE SOURCE OF LAKE POLLUTION

Recent coliform bacteria tests indicate that a submerged sewer outlet is polluting the lake in the vicinity of Hammond, Ind., less than six miles from Chicago south side drinking water intakes, Public Works Commissioner Hewitt said yesterday.

John R. Baylis, Chicago water purification engineer, said that if the suspected sewer is discharging only 9 million gallons a day, which he held would be a conservative estimate, it would spread a pollution of 400,000 coliform bacteria count per 100 cubic centimeters of water over an area 10 miles square and 25 feet deep. This area would include the Dunne and 68th st. cribs.

Asks Mayor for Data.

Hewitt said that if the existence of the sewer can be proved, it would give Chicago a new argument in its long standing petition to the federal government to permit more lake water to be diverted into the Calumet and the Chicago rivers. He wrote yesterday to G. Bertram Smith, mayor of Hammond, to ask whether Smith knows of the sewer.

Information concerning the size and location of the sewer outlet, and the size of the populated area, and the number of industries it serves, was requested by Hewitt. He said it probably is at least three feet in diameter. A. J. Shafmayer, assistant chief engineer in the city department of sewers, said a 36-inch sewer with a flow of two miles an hour would discharge 14 million gallons of waste into the lake in a day.

Reports Hammond Blameless.

Mayor Smith told THE TRIBUNE last night that no Hammond city sewer empties into the lake. He suggested that a private industrial sewer may be the source of the pollution referred to by Hewitt, and said that Hammond's effort to get its industries to treat their sewage "is a long story." Whiting, Ind., which does not have a sewage treatment plant, has a sewer outlet in the lake near the Hammond city line, Smith said.

Public works department employes tested a sample of water taken from the Hammond bathing beach on July 11, and reported it had a presumtive coliform bacteria count of 9,200,000 per 100 cubic centimeters of water [about one-half a glass full]. A coliform bacteria count of more than 50 does not lend itself to simple chlorination.

Other test counts Hewitt reported were: 79 million on June 21; 13 million on July 6; 2 billion, 400 million on June 27, and 7,800,000 on June 12.

BLAME SLEEP PILLS FOR DEATH.

Fred Dalbke, 43, a World War I veteran, died yesterday in Hines hospital, apparently from an overdose of sleeping tablets, taken in his room in the Sears-Roebuck Y. M. C. A., 3210 Arthington st.

ARREST 2 CIO WOMEN PICKETS IN UNION ROW

Two CIO women pickets were arrested yesterday outside the plant of the United Wall Paper Factories, Inc., 3930 Federal st., where there is a jurisdictional dispute between CIO and AFL unions. Mae Ella Nelson, 38, Negro, of 3647 S. Dearborn st., was charged with assault for striking Leo Clemens, 4938 Justine st., an AFL truck driver, with a small frying pan. A charge of disorderly conduct was placed against Lilly Mae Lindsay, 39, Negro, 4008 S. Park Way, for refusing to move away from an entrance. Both will be arraigned in Woman's court today.

20 OF 26 BADGER DELEGATES TURN DOWN WALLACE

Milwaukee, Wis., July 13 [Special].—A national Democratic party telephone poll of Wisconsin's 26 delegates to the Democratic national convention in Chicago next week today revealed that 20 of them are opposed to Henry A. Wallace for the nomination for Vice President. The 20 indicated they were for United States Sen. Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky over Wallace, who made a speech here last March branding American business men as "Fascists."

The delegates will not commit themselves formally until they have caucused on the Vice Presidency at their convention headquarters at the Stevens hotel, Chicago, next Monday.

Thomas R. King, Oconomowoc, Democratic state chairman, sent out notice for the caucus today.

Wisconsin delegates, who expressed a preference for Barkley over Wallace, fear the effect of Wallace's nomination on the solid south, and point to the senator's ability to get along with all factions in the senate. They pointed out that he has the confidence of New Dealers and anti-New Dealers.

It was also learned today that King has been asked to put Barkley in nomination for the Vice Presidency. He would not say what he intended to do about this.

80% IN CHICAGO WORK 48 HOUR WEEK, WMC SAYS

More than one and a half million Chicagoans—more than 80 per cent of the city's full time working force—are putting in 48 to as many as 80 hours a week in war work or essential civilian industry, the war man power commission said yesterday.

Lester Brown, area WMC director, said he estimated that, on reports submitted within the last two weeks, nearly 1,500,000 war plant workers, or four-fifths of those in war work in Cook and Du Page counties, are on a 48 hour or longer week. Nearly all production employes work 48 or more hours, he said, but many office workers are not required to put in so much time.

His survey covered only businesses and industries employing eight or more persons, he said. An even higher percentage of employes of small businesses—food stores, offices, cleaning plants, and other civilian activities—are obliged to work long hours because of scarcity of workers, Brown said.

Walter Rokosik, 27, of 1424 S. Albany av., a janitor, was injured yesterday when he was crossing 15th st. near Kedzie av. A rope dangling from a passing truck caught his right foot and dragged him several feet, causing cuts and bruises. The truck driver was Harold Rovitz, 3127 15th st.

PLAN 1,304 MILE ROAD TO CIRCLE LAKE MICHIGAN

Milwaukee, Wis., July 13 [Special].—A post-war highway around the 1,304 mile shore line of Lake Michigan, to be known as the Lake Michigan National Memorial highway, is being sponsored by the Lake Michigan Shore Drive association, Alfred J. Buntin, Milwaukee director, said here today.

Buntin said the proposed highway "would provide employment to many thousands of persons for several years."

In discussing financing of the huge project, Buntin said that it appears "at the present time" that the federal government will pay 40 per cent of the cost, with the balance to be paid out of city, county, and state funds and gasoline tax revenues.

Buntin said the highway would not necessarily be a water edge drive, but probably would wind along bluffs in some localities and skirt the lake at some places.

There would be no intersecting roads, they either being overpassed or underpassed, with turnoffs similar to those on the Chicago Outer drive.

It also is proposed, Buntin said, for various states to erect memorials, symbolic of their state, along the parkway in areas deeded by the state in which the route passes. Various fraternal and civic organizations, industries, etc., also would be permitted to erect memorials.

Maywood Continues Dry as Main Pump Quits Again

Maywood still will have to eke out its scanty water supply with water obtained from adjoining suburbs and the American Can company because its main water pump, which broke down last week, developed a vibration when it was put back into operation, making its use impractical, Milan Johnson, county public health engineer, announced yesterday.

What about travel conditions?

Travel conditions are different than they were in pre-war days.

Let's look at the facts:

Throughout the land, tens of thousands of men and women of our armed forces are now traveling across the country by rail.

The families of our fighting troops are taking trips to "see the boys" before they shove off for overseas.

Executives and war workers of essential industries are traveling between various plants on important missions.

It all adds up to this: More passengers than ever before are crowding the trains on the Santa Fe.

We are required to handle this unprecedented volume of passenger traffic with practically the same equipment we had in 1941. Building new passenger equipment has not been permitted since Pearl Harbor.

Our government has issued instructions to the railroads under Interstate Commerce Commission Service Order No. 213, effective 12:01 am June 27, to displace or remove any passenger in any accommodation upon any train, in order to provide necessary space for sick or wounded service personnel, and their attendants, transported pursuant to a medical certificate. We hope there will be little of this.

We of the Santa Fe will do our best to carry all the passengers we can, as quickly and comfortably as we can, but we ask this before you plan a trip this summer:

Unless your trip is essential, can't you put it off until we have a little better opportunity to carry you in the traditional Santa Fe manner?

DEFENSE RIPS EGAN FOR ROLE IN QUIRK 'JOB'

Witness Resents Charge He's 'Parasite.'

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

When James Egan had finished telling a jury yesterday the details of the gambling war murder of Martin [Sonny Boy] Quirk, defense lawyers called him the following names: "liar," "perjurer," "self-confessed murderer," "thief," "holdup man," "drunkard," "ex-convict," "moocher," and "parasite." He denied only being a moocher and parasite.

James Egan.

Then, when he told why he confessed his part in the murder and implicated his fellow gangsters, the defense lawyers sarcastically called him "public benefactor."

Confessed "to Save Lives."

"I confessed because First Assistant State's Atty. Wilbert F. Crowley told me that if I would tell the truth about the south side gambling war murders I would save 10 or 12 lives," Egan said.

Egan was the principal state's witness in the trial before Judge Harold G. Ward of James Fawcett, veteran gunman and survivor of many gambling war battles, Robert Bock, brother-in-law of the slain Danny Stanton, and Ray Deskovitz, gambling house employe.

He told how the gang sought for a month to get an opportunity to shoot down Quirk.

Once, he said, the gang showed some consideration for others. They had discussed the possibility of sniping at Quirk when he made his monthly "collection" at a handbook run by Jimmie O'Brien at 67th st. and Racine av.

Considered Children.

"We finally decided against shooting Quirk there because there is a parochial school near-by and the children usually were coming out of school about the time Quirk showed up there for his collection," Egan testified.

They finally followed Quirk home from the Hawthorne race track, Egan said, and when Quirk was passing 6620 Stony Island av. he, Egan, lifted his hat as a signal that "all was clear." Fawcett and Anthony De Lordo then fired at Quirk, the witness said, and he hurried away on foot while the others ran to a parked automobile.

It was when Egan mentioned that he and his associate in crime, Anthony De Lordo, were given $600 or $700 by John J. Williams, gambler for whom they worked, as part pay for the Quirk murder that the defense lawyers began their attack on the witness.

Two Cleared in Case.

"I object to this testimony because Williams and De Lordo were found not guilty of this murder by a jury some months ago," Atty. James M. Burke said to Judge Ward. "The case against them is over and the witness has no right to testify about them."

Burke attacked Egan with verbal savagery.

"The last time you told this story to a jury they didn't believe you, did they?" Burke taunted the witness.

"You have no regard for the sanctity of an oath, have you?" Burke again addressed Egan.

He Wanted Immunity.

Egan said his first consideration in confessing his part in the crime was to obtain immunity, and the state kept its agreement and gave him $300 and a ticket to California after dismissing the murder indictment against him.

Attorney Crane told the jury, in an opening statement, that Fawcett would prove an alibi. Fawcett was at the race track on the day Quirk was slain, as Egan said, but Fawcett left with an army sergeant, Ray O'Neill, who spent the evening with him and would testify for him.

Atty. Burke said his client, Deskovitz, was a "poor unfortunate, tubercular stooge and flunkey in a tavern who never knew Quirk, Fawcett, or Bock." He chided Egan for including Deskovitz in the murder confession.

ADMITS PAYING BRIBE MONEY TO SIX LEGISLATORS

Ex-Senator Says He Took Graft, Too.

Mason, Mich., July 13 [Special].—New details of Maj. Charles F. Hemans' admitted bribery of Michigan legislators were added in the legislative graft trial today by former Democratic Sen. Joseph C. Roosevelt, who testified he was errand boy and bartender in Hemans' hotel room headquarters. Hemans is a former Democratic regent of the University of Michigan.

Roosevelt testified that Hemans had bribed him in the 1937 legislative session when he was a senator, and said he knew an envelope containing cash which he said he delivered to Sen. Jerry T. Logie in 1939 contained a bribe, and admitted on cross-examination that he had neither been indicted nor granted immunity from prosecution.

Paid Six Bribes.

He said he personally placed bribe money in the hands of six legislator-defendants, recounted that 18 of the accused lawmakers came to Hemans' room on one or more occasions, and that eight of them had gone with Hemans into the bathroom in which Hemans testified he often paid bribes.

Roosevelt admitted that he had been drawing a salary from Wayne county and had been sent to the capitol to watch legislation affecting the county when he took a job from Hemans paying $50 a week and expenses.

Arrested on Two Charges.

The defense drew from him the admission he had been arrested in 1934 on a liquor charge and in 1935 on an election fraud charge. He said both were dismissed.

The defense made much of the fact he changed his name from Cupola to Roosevelt in 1930 or 1931 before he entered politics. He said he did so because his original name was a business handicap and that he long had admired "Teddy Roosevelt."

EXECUTIVE HELD TO FACE CHARGE IN NEW YORK

United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday ordered Joseph Glasser, 47, held for removal to New York to stand trial there on a charge of concealing assets of the Brand Binding Company of New York, of which he was president. Glasser is accused of fleeing to Chicago a year ago shortly before the company went into involuntary bankruptcy. Glasser was arrested a week ago at 4546 N. Racine av. When he was brought before Walker at that time he attempted to leap out the window in the hearing room, but was stopped by deputy marshals.

We should not have included the price of $119.50 in this advertisement, as the garments at that price did not conform to the above descriptions.

THE HEROES OF SAIPAN.

The cost of Saipan has been announced. It was 2,359 killed, 11,481 wounded, and 1,213 missing, a total of 15,053 men. Since the casualties in the first days of the invasion were extremely high, it must be feared that a great proportion of those listed as missing are dead—shot or drowned as they stormed the beaches.

This casualty list itself is a magnificent tribute to the American marines and soldiers who took the island and killed 95 per cent of the 30,000 Japs who garrisoned it. There used to be a theory that a regiment or division would stop fighting when its casualties reached 10 per cent in an engagement. Our losses of 15,053 are the approximate strength of a division. We had only three divisions in action. We lost one man in three. Their comrades not only kept on fighting but they kept on winning against foes who, they knew from their own and previous experiences, could be whipped only by being killed virtually to the last man. The heroes of Saipan are fit successors to the heroes of Bataan, whose survivors one day will be rescued by such actions as that just finished.

Saipan demonstrated that the rules of warfare have not been changed essentially by the advent of the airplane. Island strongholds were once useful only to the power that could maintain communications with them thru its fleet. They are still worthless in the face of an attacker who has superior naval and air power. We can take any island we want if we are willing to pay the cost, as Saipan has demonstrated. But we must never in another war call upon American soldiers to repeat the sacrifices made on Saipan and those that lie ahead before Japan is conquered.

Saipan is a monument to Japanese treachery. It was one of the islands which the Japanese engaged themselves not to fortify and which they did fortify in violation of their treaty obligations. In our hands it is a sword pointed at the throat of the Japanese nation. We must keep it so. We will defeat Japan, but we shall not annihilate a nation of 90 million people. For our future security we must maintain strongholds within striking distance of their home islands, so that they can be checked and punished promptly if the virus of world conquest ever infects them again. That is our obligation to the heroes of Saipan.

SHE DOESN'T TRUST AMERICA.

If Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt does not voice the official views of the administration she certainly reflects the thinking of the little circle around the President which molds his views. Her statement at Antioch college that she does not trust the United States thus cannot be dismissed as unimportant.

What Mrs. Roosevelt said was this: "I believe we will have to have some kind of police force which will watch us as well as other nations, so that no one country can accumulate superior strength. I do not even trust our own nation, altho I am sure we are a peace loving people, and I would like to feel sure some way was found which would watch us as well as other nations."

Mrs. Roosevelt betrays here the thought of the White House inner clique. It is an alien trend of thought. The palace guard is so imbued with alien tradition and alien illusions that it does not want the United States to be powerful. It wants some international agency to limit and defeat the national power. These people do not trust the citizens of America because they are not of them. Their primary devotion lies elsewhere, in foreign lands, and the only use to which they would put the national power is to serve those primary interests, to the certain injury of the people of the United States.

Mrs. Roosevelt says that she does not "even" trust our own nation to keep the peace. There appears to be a concession here that while the American people are not viewed as trustworthy they are somewhat more trustworthy than the other world powers. Our national record certainly would indicate this to be so, yet Mrs. Roosevelt, who does not trust us, is quite willing to put us under an international police force which would be controled by other powers which she implies, and which the record certainly shows, to be far less deserving of confidence. She would have the national power limited for the benefit of those nations that have her first allegiance and she would necessarily repose in those nations faith in their good intentions that she asserts she is unable to place in her fellow citizens.

Those who cannot trust America cannot expect Americans to trust them.

HAZARDS OF WAR.

A lady of our acquaintance has just had a letter from her son who is in training in the air corps. His recital of his daily routine served to chill her blood thoroly, consisting as it did of accounts of several near mishaps in his flight training during which his plane did various things that he hadn't expected it to do and which he wasn't sure at the moment he knew how to deal with. However, he has to date landed himself and the plane without damage and apparently considered that the hazards he had encountered would disturb his parents no more than they did him. In conclusion, he wrote: "I am sorry to tell you that I have a bad case of athlete's foot, but please don't worry too much about it."

THEY COULD HAVE DONE IT YEARS AGO.

Maj. Gen. Hershey, the draft director, ventured an observation the other day that the draft seems to be running smoothly and "will meet the demands of the future." At present, selective service is inducting able bodied men under the age of 26. Those between 26 and 29 who are "necessary men" are being deferred, and those over 30 who are working in any essential industry are also deferred.

The army and navy, which knew all along that younger men make the best fighters, and frequently said so, are being furnished a sufficient number of young recruits to meet their needs. The rest of the nation's male population, older men who are in war work and war contributing occupations, are able to keep their minds on their jobs because they know where they stand in the draft and do not have to worry about induction and the sudden breaking up of their homes.

Occasionally cases come to attention where draft boards send older men to the induction stations even today, and most of these can be traced to an over-strict adherence to the quota system. As long as blanket deferment for older men has been ordered it ought to apply to every man over 30 in an essential industry and the quota system, whereby individual boards have to furnish a definite number of men at each call, ought to be relaxed so that all unfairness is eliminated.

The whole nation, along with Gen. Hershey and the others in charge of the draft, has been relieved of frustration and worry by the common sense program that now governs the draft machinery. It is a pity, as these columns often have pointed out, that it could not have been put into effect back in the fall of 1940 to save American families and their bread winners the anxiety and turbulence which followed each contradictory and vacillating order issued by the burocrats in charge of the draft.

WHOSE DIPLOMATIC VICTORY?

Our government has accorded the French national committee recognition as the de facto government of the liberated areas in France. This is said to be a great diplomatic victory for Gen. de Gaulle, whose persistent effort to win recognition for his group met with only limited success until he came to Washington a few days ago to confer with the state department and President Roosevelt.

Gen. de Gaulle is Britain's Frenchman and if a diplomatic victory has been scored it seems much more probable that it is Britain's rather than a De Gaullist triumph. The de facto recognition can be cited as another evidence of the subservience of our diplomacy to the British foreign office.

Presumably, De Gaulle came here with two purposes in mind. One was to have his government in power in France at the time the new French regime is organized. That much he seems to have obtained. If, after the war, an election is held, the campaign will be conducted, the votes cast, and the ballots counted under De Gaullist auspices. His other aim was to obtain control of the French gold hoard in this country, amounting, in all probability, to several billion dollars. Whether he got it or not remains to be seen, but it can hardly be doubted that the next government of France will be accorded de jure as well as de facto recognition, and with it the money. With a favorable electoral situation assured, he can feel pretty comfortable about the future.

It is said that Frenchmen will coöperate more wholeheartedly with the allies as we give wider authority to Gen. de Gaulle and his colleagues. The assumption behind this statement is that the French care so little about liberation from the German yoke and have so little faith in our promises to restore their independence that they will work and fight against the Germans only if we hand France over to the De Gaullists. Perhaps this is true, but it sounds improbable on the face of it.

On the other hand, there is no doubt that the British government has much reason to want a regime in France that will be closely linked to London. The British, with this end in view, should place a high value on De Gaulle as the central figure of the post-war government of France. It may be doubted that Mr. Roosevelt would have yielded to De Gaulle alone, but the President has repeatedly disclosed his subservience to the British and it is altogether probable that the de facto recognition was just another triumph of British diplomacy in Washington.

THE ISLAND AIRPORT.

The American Association of Airport Executives which has been meeting in Chicago is considering establishing its national headquarters here. George P. Moore, executive secretary of the association, says that Chicago is the natural location for America's aviation center because it is centrally placed and because of Chicago's great aviation industries. He mentioned also the potential development of the city's airport facilities.

Certainly Chicago would welcome the national office of the airport executives. When Mr. Moore spoke of our "potential" airport facilities he put his finger upon the only barrier which stands between this city and domination of commercial world aviation after the war. Surely the point will not escape Gov. Green's planning commission.

Chicago can't be the aviation center of America with its present Municipal airport any more than it could be the nation's steel center with an old, broken down blast furnace. We need the world's best airport. We have the location for it on the downtown lake front. Once the project is started, no other city in the world could outstrip Chicago in airport accommodations because the site is free of flight barriers and can be extended in any direction by a man-made fill. Chicagoans can hope that the visit of the airport executives and their discussion of Chicago's air future will stir the city council also to active prosecution of the lake front airport project.

Haha Jima comes into the news, oddly enough, at a time when the Japanese have little cause to laugh. —New York Sun.

SONS OF AREZZO.

The allied armies in Italy are edging up to the Tuscan town of Arezzo; they may have taken it before these remarks get into print. It has great fame in the realm of art and letters, but a modern book on European tourism says, "most tourists pass it by," altho it is on the shortest road between Florence and Rome. The history of culture, however, refuses to by-pass Arezzo, and when English and American literature were lush with Italian atmosphere, it was frequently in the picture.

• • •

Arezzo was the birthplace of Maecenas, patron of Vergil and Horace; of Petrarch, who established the sonnet as a favorite verse form; of Pietro Aretino, Renaissance satirist who had a renewal of fame when American writers began to cultivate the lewd; and of Vasari, classic historian of Italian painting. A fictitious character named Caponsacchi was also born there; you will find him in Robert Browning's difficult narrative poem, "The Ring and the Book." Guides point out to Arezzo's visitors "Caponsacchi's church," which is Santa Maria della Pieve.

• • •

But Arezzo's most influential contribution to the arts seems to have been slighted by the guide books. We have consulted two without finding his name. He was a Benedictine monk named Guido who lived so long ago that his vital statistics are usually given with an approximation: circa 990. He may be called the father of modern music, for he invented the method of musical notation.

• • •

Guido d'Arezzo, as he is called, was the first music teacher to use the lines of the staff and the intervals between them. He also gave the first six notes of the scale the names that [with one exception] they bear today. Ut, re, mi, fa, sol, la: thus Guido baptized them. Ut for do is still in use in France and Italy. These were the first syllables of the lines of a Latin hymn which happened to form the scale, C, D, E, F, G, A. He is also credited with other technical inventions, and with important treatises on musical methods.

THIS SUMMER'S SONNET.

Now are the gates of summer open wide
And golden days invade the ripening fields;
Tamed is the season's wildness, and the stride
Of nature's pace to drowsy motion yields.
This is the midday of the busy year
When weary spirits toward siesta lean;
The highway hedges shelter feathered crowds,
The lazy flocks in cooling coverts lie;
Into the creaking hammock from the clouds
Creep julep dreams in tranquil, hot July.

Ah, no, ye gods, that was another time!
The wars are rampant and to rest is crime!

Mrs. G. A. writes: "My husband is in service and I have applied for government maternity care. I understand the government pays $4 a day for ward rooms, but since I have hospital insurance can I have a private room and let my insurance pay the difference?"

No. Under the plan for such care in Illinois a wife who has hospital insurance may use it to pay her hospital bill [it is not obligatory] and may request medical care. However, she may not use the plan in addition to the amounts obtainable for hospital costs under the maternity program. You may request medical care only, but if you use your insurance there will be no government contribution toward the hospital care. We have a bulletin giving full information on the plan. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for it.

GOUT—A METABOLIC DISORDER.

DESPITE the fact that we are not supposed to employ rich, luxurious dishes, gout continues to be a reasonably pertinent medical problem. The chances are that the malady will manifest itself with certain individuals because they have a tendency to manufacture uric acid out of almost anything

A lawyer of my acquaintance runs a high level of this material even when his meat intake is substantially decreased. In fact, with proteins practically eliminated from his menus, he will still exhibit an excessive amount in the blood. He is fond of cream and uses butter generously. Only when he restricts these edibles will he be free from acute symptoms.

Going back into the history of this patient, we find that his father and grandfather were sufferers from migraine. Attacks occurred between two and four weeks apart and were nearly always preceded by twinges in the great toes or other joint. It seems fair to assume, therefore, that we are dealing with a constitution that does not behave according to typical experience.

It was possible to make him comfortable with a low fat and low purin diet, provided he could take enough carbohydrates. Instead of coming every two or three weeks, seizures would appear at intervals of two to three months. Meanwhile, the quantity of uric acid in the circulation would be reduced, on the average, not more than 15 to 20 per cent. In other words, there was nothing spectacular about the treatment in getting rid of the supposed cause.

Most of us are familiar with the manifestations of this metabolic disturbance. The victim will usually waken in the wee small hours with pain in one foot or the other. The joint at the base of the large toe is commonly involved. With many, the heel, ankle, or instep will be the site of distress. As the night advances, suffering increases in intensity. It is described as "grinding" or "crushing." The patient may cry out at the slightest jar of the bed. Only with the coming of daylight, even in the presence of narcotics, will rest be possible. Fair freedom during the day may be observed. But after sunset the demon is prone to return. When the aching area is inspected, it will be found red and swollen, with the skin tense and shiny.

Soreness may pass from one toe to another, or inflammation may creep upward to the ankle or knee. If the disorder is a steady visitor, in time, deformities of the toes and fingers will be noted. Sometimes deposits of sodium urate will be observed just beneath the skin. These chalk-like depots may occupy bursae, the structures which are designed to facilitate the smooth movements of the tendons.

From the standpoint of drugs, cinchophen and neo-cinchophen are important allies. It should be said, however, that these preparations are not foolproof and occasionally will injure the liver. A number of cases with serious results have been reported. A fairly reliable remedy is colchicum. If given in adequate doses, it should bring relief within a few hours.

PORK.

P. B. S. writes: I am told that pork should be used sparingly during the summer months? Why is this?

REPLY.

No reason at all. Fat may be avoided because, when digested, it generates twice as much heat as lean meat.

POP FOR STONE.

H. H. writes: Is it true that drinking plenty of pop will help to pass a bladder stone?

REPLY.

Carbonated water long has been recommended for this purpose. Results are doubtful. Follow the counsel of your physician.

ARTHRITIS.

H. G. writes: How many forms of arthritis are there?

REPLY.

Commonly two—atrophic and hypertrophic. Many other conditions huddle under this name.

TABLE THE MOTION.

M. G. writes: Can prominent eyes be set back in their sockets?

REPLY.

Front Views & Profiles

Total War.

Said one Lake Forest matron in an all-too-intimate tone to an equally impressive lady: "Since D-day, my dear, I simply can't keep a thing on my stomach, but I can drink anything!"

Treasure-Trove.

Wild horses could not drag from this department the full name and address of Elizabeth R. It would not be safe. Bank presidents might turn yeggs, and we might even turn burglar if the government would come thru with a priority for a jimmy. But what Elizabeth R. did is no secret: she went exploring. The difficulties of travel being what they are, she did her exploring at home among the shadows and cobwebs of her attic. Here she found, and immediately pressed into use now that she is ironing her own curtains again, her old wide, but heavy and not automatic, ironing board. The covering was old and musty, so she started to disrobe it. Beneath it she found:

- 3 pre-war safety pins.
- 1 nonrusting straight pin.
- 2 one inch nails, one bent.
- 94 carpet tacks.
- 1 full size "honeycomb" bedspread.
- 1 crib size "honeycomb" bedspread.
- 1 heavy flannel pad for round table.
- 1 unbleached muslin sheet with metal laundry tag.
- 1 handmade sheet which had been turned and patched.
- 1 of her own bridal sheets which had split down the middle and had not been mended.

Such a treasure-trove moved Elizabeth R. to meditation on the theme of "do your own house work to do your own house work in three generations." She found herself wondering aloud if this could be another sign of the speed with which the modern world flies and whether the Democrats couldn't nominate their candidate in one hour instead of one day.

She wrote that she couldn't wait for our comment. Lady, it doesn't move us to philosophy at all. This battered mind now is filled with plans for housebreaking. We want that unbent one-inch nail.

Make 'Em Be Good.

"Honi soit qui mal y danse."

Americana.

In this department's recent travels it ran into the Improved Order of Redmen's female auxiliary [they call it an affiliate]. It does not have a commonplace title in its whole organization. The president is the Pocahontas. Other officers are the prophetess, the trustee, the guardian of the wigwam, the guardian of the forest, runners, and scouts. The Redmen call themselves the oldest fraternal organization in the United States, having organized when the Minute men dressed as Indians and threw that tea into Boston harbor. They engage in patriotic projects and are not Indians at all.

Nomenclature.

Recently this column mentioned an E. Pluribus Powell who is a resident of Polo, Ill. A spy writes hurriedly to say that his correct name is E. Pluribus Unum Powell, and that Polo also contains a boy called Welcome Brother Hanna. He had an older sister, and the family was so happy at his arrival that they made it titular. He has been trying to live it down ever since, we are told, and now is a sergeant in the army at Las Vegas. . . . But how many know that a successfully operating Drinkwater Gin Company is in Anna [Ill.]?

All-Out Effort on the Home Front.

Sgt. Monroe Winter writes [with dramatic illustration] that the G. I. mosquito bars are made by the Maiden Form Brassiere Company of New York. He enclosed the trademark tag for proof.

Perennial Problem?

And while the Declaration of Independence proclaims your right to the "pursuit of happiness," it does not promise you will catch her.

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

WHERE THE RIFT IS.

Chicago, July 9.—There is concern in some circles that a rift may develop between soldiers and "workers," and it has been suggested that the American Legion serve as "a liaison of patience and understanding to iron out prejudices on one side and mistakes on the other."

In general, there is little danger of a rift between soldiers and the rank and file of workers. The rift, if it continues to develop, will be between service men and the labor unions which, all told, include barely 15 per cent of the workers. Honesty of expression demands that we call a spade a spade and discontinue the use of the words "labor" and "workmen" when, in fact, we are merely referring to a minority group, whose connection with workmen is purely incidental.

It is the unions, not the workers, which disrupt the regular flow of essential war materials to the battle fronts. It is the unions which promote the strikes. It is the unions which are demanding the best jobs and the highest pay. The average worker or laborer has practically no voice in the situation and rightfully should never be referred to as a participant in the controversy.

H. J. D.

PUT THEM ON RECORD.

Chicago, July 10.—In view of the many small, "unauthorized" strikes, involving a half dozen to a few dozen workers, recently reported in the news, I am writing to suggest that in such cases if the news item could contain the names and addresses of the strikers it would, I think, have a salutary effect upon the situation and perhaps would result in the saving of a great many work hours. It surely would be an interesting item of news in connection with the story of the strike, and undoubtedly those who are trying to do their part toward finishing the war just as quickly as possible have a right to the names of those who are holding up and delaying the production of vital material needed, not on a single front, but on a half dozen battle lines.

ARTHUR WILLIAMS.

MILLIONS OF "BOYS AT THE MILL."

Chicago, July 6.—Sen. Lucas indulged in a hypocritical remark about the "American boy" at the Democratic state convention. He said: "In this great crisis, intelligent and discriminating people will not send a boy to the mill to do the job."

Now isn't that just like every other apostle of Mr. Again, Again, and Again? He wouldn't send a boy out to do a job, while right now he knows a couple of million of them are dispersed all over the world to attend to the "crisis" he refers to.

FRANK A. PODRAZA.

NOT OUT OF THE PLATFORM.

Chicago, July 6.—A local item in THE TRIBUNE on Independence day was titled "Four Persons Hurt as Plank Falls at Convention." It was described as a heavy plank. Judging from the list of the state convention's planks reported in the same issue, none was heavy enough to drop from anywhere. Could this near accident be an omen that the "Voice this time will come from the sky?" M. G. BOECKER.

POST-WAR PUBLIC WORKS.

Aurora, Ill., July 6.—Some post-war planning in respect to public works does not seem to work in the public interest. As soon as victory is apparent in the war, there will be a letting down of employment in war industry. This has been running at a high pressure for so long a time that no great hardship should be apparent for the several months necessary to conversion to peace time production. In fact, the workers should have a period of relaxation before entering upon a different and new work.

When peace time production gets into swing it should take two to five years to satisfy depleted inventories. There should be the least possible competition with peace time efforts from public works. When consumer demand has been satisfied and some slack in employment makes its appearance, then the public works program could be used to take up slack.

Such a program would not overstimulate immediate post-war employment and would serve a public necessity by furnishing employment when industry is reduced to satisfying normal needs.

JUSTUS L. JOHNSON.

BRIEF AND TRUTHFUL PLANK.

Lead, S. D., July 6.—According to press reports the Democratic committee is laboring earnestly in an effort to draft a brief and truthful platform for the coming Democratic convention. I suggest the following as squaring up to both these requirements of brevity and truth:

"We pledge the great Democratic party, in keeping with our party record during the last ten years, to take orders from Franklin D. Roosevelt and scrupulously execute them. Furthermore, we consider that it would be a reflection upon the ability and patriotic Americanism of our great President to incorporate any plank in our platform designed to regulate, control, or advise him in his administration. Moreover, it would be an idle and senseless thing to do, because our great President would not pay a bit of attention to any such planks in the platform if at any time they interfered with his discretion, caprise, or whims."

CHAMBERS KELLAR.

TOO LATE NOW.

Chicago, July 8.—Instead of worrying too greatly over a Vice President, the Democratic party would do well to pay more attention to a wise President.

2 SEDITION CASE DEFENDANTS GET SEPARATE TRIAL

U.S. Warned to Get Down to Direct Evidence.

Washington, D. C., July 13 [Special].—The 13th week of the mass sedition trial ended today with a session featured by sharp verbal exchanges, an admonition to the government to start offering evidence, and the elimination of two of the 29 defendants.

Defendants severed, for separate trial later, were Robert Noble of Los Angeles and David J. Baxter of San Bernardino, Cal. Chief Federal Prosecutor O. John Rogge requested the severance at a special hearing following the close of the day's hearing in the slow moving trial.

Noble, already under sentence of five years for violating sedition laws in California, was removed for "disorderly conduct in the courtroom." He vigorously protested the order but Presiding Justice Edward C. Eicher told him "the court is convinced your efforts have been to flaunt the reasonable and orderly process of the trial."

Objected to Attorney.

During the last two days Noble has jumped to his feet repeatedly objecting to moves made by Marvin Bischoff, his court appointed counsel. Bischoff replaced James J. Laughlin, barred last week by Justice Eicher from further participation in the trial as defense counsel after the attorney filed with the speaker of the house a petition for impeachment of Eicher.

Baxter's elimination was predicated on his partial deafness, making it difficult for him to hear testimony or "scarcely understand his own attorney" even with the aid of mechanical devices.

Rogge also asked for the severance of the case against James True of Arlington, Va., because of illness which has kept him out of court for more than a week. His attorney objected and urged the trial be halted until True can return to court.

A verbal exchange between Defense Atty. Claude Thompson and Justice Eicher resulted in the jurist ordering a deputy United States marshal to seat the attorney. The dispute was over the justice's order that Thompson not preface with an explanation a motion he desired to make.

Threatened with Contempt.

"I'll present the motion in my own way, not the way the court wants it," declared Thompson.

"Mr. marshal, will you seat Mr. Thompson?" the court directed after a few words exchange.

"But I am seated," the attorney retorted, taking his seat. "I'm not trying to be obstreperous, I'm merely trying to present my motion."

Pounding his gavel, Justice Eicher told Thompson he would give him an opportunity later to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court. Thompson was fined $200 earlier in the trial after an argument with the judge.

As presentation of evidence proceeded slowly, Justice Eicher called upon Prosecutor Rogge to give some idea when the government would complete presentation of documentary evidence and start offering evidence "directed specifically" at the conspiracy charges.

"The way this case is going," Rogge said later, "the government is unable to make any estimate."

DUTCH OFFICER WHO KEPT SHIPS FOR ALLIES HERE

The fact that he is on the Nazi list of wanted persons fails to disturb Lt. Eduard G. Serle of the royal Netherlands navy who was in Chicago yesterday as a guest of the Queen Wilhelmina fund, an agency of the national war fund and the Chicago community and war fund. Lt. Serle escaped from France with eight Dutch ships and took them, fully loaded, to England.

Lt. E. G. Serle.

Altho Lt. Serle was transferred to Australia before the allied invasion of France, he had a part in the action as commander of a division of minesweepers that cleared the English channel of German mines to make the way safe for invasion craft.

Lt. Serle, 35, entered the Dutch merchant marine service at 18 and in 1940 was a steamship agent in Paris. French friends helped him to escape after the fall of France. He returned to sea duty last year.

July 13, 1944.

THE Wheaton farm became an outdoor classroom yesterday, when 51 outstanding Illinois high school students visited every section of the farm as part of the 14 day educational course sponsored by the Illinois department of conservation.

The boys and girls, all between 14 and 16, represent 51 of the state's 102 counties. They were selected by leading educators and conservationists in their counties to attend the school, which opened Monday at the conservation department building on Fox Lake. The course continues thru July 22; between Aug. 6 and Aug. 19, a second group of 51 youngsters, representing the other 51 counties, will participate in an identical course.

Youngsters Get Farm Milk.

Only 20 of yesterday's visitors live on Illinois farms, but all of the eager youngsters were interested in the barn yard activities, the gardens, the sleek Angus and shorthorn cattle, the spotless dairy buildings, and the new field machinery. After a two mile hike thru the farm wood lots and around the ponds, the visitors ate a picnic lunch that included fresh milk from the farm's Guernsey herd.

The summer schools represent the state's first serious attempt to teach the subject of conservation to Illinois high school youth.

Taught Soil Conservation.

In the course, the 35 boys and 16 girls will receive classroom instruction from authorities in soil conservation, bird and animal life, flood control, control of river pollution, and similar subjects. In addition, they will visit THE TRIBUNE'S Fox river farm, the Curtiss Candy farms, the Yorkville Pheasant farm, and the Spring Grove fish hatchery.

Livingston Osborne, Illinois director of conservation, accompanied the group to the Wheaton farm. He said that one aim of the short course would be the formation of junior conservation clubs in every county. He also is working on a program to institute the study of conservation in Illinois high schools.

★The GARDEN★

CONTINUED drouth of the last month is beginning to affect gardens in vacant lots having no watering facilities. Gardeners' only recourse is to continue eliminating all weeds, which compete with the vegetables for water, cultivate between the rows with wheel hoes or tined cultivators to break up the topsoil and maintain a natural soil mulch, if possible, mulch some crops with grass clippings or clean straw.

Tomatoes are especially helped with straw or grass mulches to stabilize the plants' absorption of water and smother weed growth.

Cabbages, cauliflower, and broccoli are among the vegetables that should get major attention if gardeners have to carry water in sprinkling cans. A thoro soaking of the ground around the base of each plant will help. To prevent soil crust forming around the plants, it is advisable to use a hoe to draw dry soil over the soaked area, thus protecting the wet ground from direct sunrays.

HENRY C. LYTTON TAKES SWIM ON 98TH BIRTHDAY

Henry C. Lytton, founder and president of the Hub, celebrated his 98th birthday yesterday at his summer home at Little Silver, N. J., by going for a swim.

"I am feeling fine," the dean of State st. merchants wired friends and associates here. "I went for a swim this afternoon to commemorate my first swim 92 years ago in Rock Creek.

This message was sent to him: "We and all Chicago celebrate with you today. Job No. 98 completed with flying colors." It was signed by Mayor Kelly; H. M. McBain, as chairman of the State Street council, and A. C. Gunn, chairman of the Association of State Street Seniors.

DISCLOSE FIERY TRANSPORT WAS SENT TO HALIFAX

HALIFAX, N. S., July 13 (AP).—Censorship today permitted the disclosure that the United States transport Wakefield, which burst into flames off Halifax in 1942, was towed into this port after 2,000 persons aboard had been saved. It was announced some time ago that the Wakefield had burned.

The twisted hull of the former luxury liner Manhattan lay at a dock in Halifax for weeks. Every inch of woodwork aboard the vessel had been burned away and its great steel beams and plates had buckled.

The Wakefield eventually returned to sea. Given temporary repairs here, she was towed to the United States to be refitted for another war role.

Fugitive's Wife Tells of Many Movings.

Joseph Jablonski, 42, will be knows again as 7671-D when he is returned to Joliet penitentiary today to resume serving a life sentence for the murder of Albert N. Lawrence, druggist who was killed in an attempted holdup in 1921. Jablonski escaped from Joliet prison honor farm in 1933 and was arrested Wednesday at the Goodwill Manufacturing company, 1215 S. Laramie av., Cicero, where he was employed as a machinist.

Joseph Jablonski.

He must serve at least eight more years to attain the 20 years minimum requirement before a life prisoner is eligible for parole, according to the state parole board at Springfield. His only other recourse is to apply for executive clemency, which he may do at any session of the board, an official said. The next board meeting is in October.

All Identified by Victim.

Jablonski was 19 when arrested for the murder of the druggist in 1921. He confessed and named two others who entered the Pegram & Lawrence drug store, 1259 W. 79th st., with him. The three were taken to the hospital and identified by the druggist before he died.

In prison Jablonski studied engineering and later was one of the prisoners who helped in constructing the new prison farm at Stateville. As a reward he was assigned to the honor farm in 1928. It was during this interval that his sweetheart, his present wife, made regular visits to see him. She told reporters that he frequently escorted her to Chicago on these occasions. After she discovered she was going to have a child, she ceased her regular visits. Shortly afterward Jablonski walked off the farm.

Loses Bonus and Inheritance.

Jablonski had led her to believe that he was to be released from prison soon, Mrs. Jablonski said and shortly before the baby, Antoinette, was born he announced that he was free. She married him. It was not until three years later that she learned that he had escaped, she said.

She related, too, the story of their moving from neighborhood to neighborhood and her husband's living under the name of Joseph James to avoid detection. She said also that Jablonski had failed to claim a marine corps bonus of $1,500 and an inheritance from his father for fear of betraying his identity.

Jablonski was arrested by Detectives William Nihill and John O'Connor of the Maxwell street police on a tip, the source of which they refused to divulge. Since 1941 Jablonski had been employed at Goodwill Manufacturing company.

BUENOS AIRES 'QUINTS' TO HAVE BIRTHDAY PARTY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Franco Diligenti, who announced in March that they were the parents of quintuplets born last July, will open their home in a Buenos Aires suburb Monday for the children's first birthday party.

Diligenti, a rancher, said the guests will have an opportunity to verify the "remarkable development and vivacity" of the three girls and two boys—Carlos, Maria Esther, Maria Fernanda, Maria Christina, and Franco. He said they all like music, and sit up attentively when he plays the piano.

Diligenti and his wife, Vallotta, a 42 year old Italian woman, said they kept the quints' birth secret for eight months because of the way "crowds mobbed the Dionne home." Two of the infants were registered as twins at birth, and a third was registered in a different office. It was not until April that Diligenti asked for court permission to register the birth of the other two 'mystery quintuplets."

New York, July 13 (AP).—The Vichy radio today said that its earlier announcement of the death of former Premier Edouard Herriot was "erroneous" and that "Herriot is in excellent health."

SPUR HOME BOND SALES IN CITY'S LAGGING AREAS

Weak spots in the 5th war loan house to house campaign will be bolstered and coverage will be 100 per cent before the drive ends July 31, Philip R. Clarke, general chairman for Chicago and Cook county, announced yesterday. A day and night schedule has been worked out, he said, for office of civilian defense commanders and division heads to insure solicitation of all blocks.

Clark's announcement was the answer to complaints that some block areas had been neglected.

"Community commanders and division heads," Clarke declared, "are using every possible facility to recruit canvassers." He added that sound trucks will continue to visit lagging areas every night to aid in getting workers and promoting sales.

In the meanwhile bond sales climbed to a total of $1,024,704,000, or 114.62 of the overall quota of $894,014,000. This included individual bond sales of $188,010,000, or 67.77 per cent of the quota in that division, and corporate sales of $836,694,000, or 135.70 per cent of quota. Corporate sales closed last Saturday, but still are being tabulated.

Why your Life Insurance Companies urge you to Keep up the fight against rising prices

LAST YEAR, America's Life Insurance Companies helped bring home to every American the importance of joining in the nation-wide campaign to check runaway prices.

Every two weeks we published messages in newspapers throughout the country explaining why prices go up and showing what each individual could do to help keep prices down.

During this time, we as a nation have won many battles in our fight against runaway prices. In the past year price rises generally have been held in check.

One of the big reasons—if not the biggest—has been the good common sense of American men and women. Instead of going hog-wild with our wartime money, we have put away—and are putting away—more money than ever before into the safe places our government recommends—into War Bonds, savings accounts and life insurance.

Now is the time to Fight Harder

The important thing now is to keep up this good work. For the danger of rising prices is still threatening us and it's going to take double action to continue to keep the lid clamped on living costs.

Our government has its job—to keep price ceilings and rationing working smoothly and fairly. Our own job—the job for each and every one of us—is to abide by these price controls—and to save, not spend, every dollar that we possibly can, putting them into the productive channels that our government recommends.

If we didn't put our wartime money into these safe places—if we relaxed and began to spend this money, the cost of living would soar sky-high and standards of living would nose-dive.

This is why we must keep on saving and not buy anything we can get along without. And this is why America's Life Insurance Companies will continue throughout 1944 to point out that for the good of our country, for the good of each one of us individually, we—all of us—must throw every effort into America's fight against rising prices.

The financial health of America as a whole depends upon the financial health of every individual. This in turn depends largely upon how well informed each individual is concerning the part he must play in the general economic picture for his own best interests and in the best interests of his country.

Recognizing this, America's Life Insurance Companies are continuing this educational program as a public service to the 68,000,000 owners of life insurance and to every American citizen.

Now is the time to Protect your Future

Now is your golden opportunity to make big strides towards attaining real financial security. You may never again have as good an opportunity as you have right now.

Put your wartime money into War Bonds, a savings account and life insurance. Keep the War Bonds you buy. Set aside every War Bond you possibly can towards a permanent reserve fund that's not to be touched except in case of the most urgent emergency.

In this way, your War Bonds, along with your life insurance and savings account, will become the permanent backlog of protection that anyone must have to get ahead and stay ahead in life.

By taking advantage of this opportunity—by saving instead of spending—you will be helping yourself and your country in these three ways. You will guarantee the safer, happier future you have always wanted. You will help to hold down your present cost of living. And—you will be doing your patriotic duty towards helping to win the war.

SON REUNITED WITH MOTHER AFTER 18 YEARS

Soldier Had Been Told She Was Dead.

Tears were mingled with laughter at the La Salle st. station yesterday when Pvt. Christos Stathatos, 22, was reunited with his mother, Mrs. Athena Passiales, 523 S. Halsted st., after a separation of 18 years. Until the death four years ago of his father, who had taken him to New York when he was a child, Christos believed that his mother was dead.

Mrs. Passiales and her daughters, Miss Angie Stathatos, 18, and Marion Passiales, 13, were at the station long before the soldier's train was due to arrive. She looked often at the snapshot she held and then out over the crowded station, hoping to find her son among the service men who thronged thru the gates.

Soldier Is Excited.

When Christos stepped off the train, Mrs. Passiales struggled vainly to hold back her tears as she embraced the khaki clad figure. The soldier, embarrassed and nervous at finding himself suddenly in the midst of his newly discovered family, looked about for a place to deposit a damp towel which, in his excitement, he had forgotten to stow in his duffle bag.

The reunion was the result of letters by Miss Passiales to the veteran's administration in Washington, D. C., requesting information regarding her brother's whereabouts. She soon was put in touch with Christos, who is stationed at Grand Island, Neb.

Yesterday Mrs. Passiales told of the soldier's father taking him away from home one day 18 years ago to buy him a pair of shoes. They never came back, she said. She showed Christos the room in which he was born, the table where he had sat, his little boy legs not nearly touching the floor.

See Doubt Vanished.

Christos, who was a little surprised when first informed of his family, no longer has any doubt about Mrs. Passiales really being his mother.

"It's wonderful," he kept repeating.

His sister, Angie, was equally sure that the soldier is her brother. "He's got the same big ears my father had," she said.

In addition to the relatives who met him at the station, Christos was slated to become acquainted with a brother, George, 23, a married sister, Mrs. Mary Sfaras, and a half sister, Connie, 14.

The appointment of Woll was made at the request of his assistant, Kenneth S. Nathan. Judge Sullivan continued until tomorrow his ruling on a motion of the government to dismiss the President, as commander in chief of the army and navy, from the case.

EXPERTS ASSAIL QUICK G. I. 'CURE' FOR GONORRHEA

Charge It Frees Many Diseased Men.

San Francisco, Cal., July 13.—This country is losing an opportunity to deliver a terrific blow against gonorrhea, because, two health officials asserted today, some army, navy, and civilian doctors are discharging patients as cured when they still are capable of infecting others.

The statement was made by Dr. J. C. Geiger, San Francisco health director, and Dr. Richard A. Koch, head of the municipal veneral disease clinic, in a special report on gonorrhea carriers.

Geiger, Koch, and the late Dr. Earl N. Mathis demonstrated several months ago the existence of gonorrhea carriers.

Find One-third Carriers.

They found that about one-third of a large group of patients who had been treated with sulfa drugs and discharged as cured were still able to transmit the disease.

The health officers said instructions from the army surgeon general's office permit release of many soldiers from medical care as soon as they cease to show outward signs of the disease. They reported similar practices by navy and civilian doctors.

Demand More Tests.

The surgeon general's office said releases of this kind are permitted only in uncomplicated cases which clear up quickly, adding that there were "very few" instances in which those treated had caused infections in other persons.

Geiger and Koch contended that maximum results could not be obtained unless all patients were kept under observation until shown to be disease free by three standard laboratory tests spaced one week apart.

Judge John R. Sweeney in License court yesterday continued until Aug. 17 a hearing on a motion to vacate a fine of $200 against Harry Halperin on charges that the four story flat building he owns at 443 W. 17th st., is unsafe for habitation. Halperin's attorney, State Sen. Roland V. Libonati, asked the continuance and requested that an inspector from the city building department and the metropolitan housing council examine the building with Halperin to decide what should be done to comply with the building code. Mrs. Dorothy Rubel, director of the housing council, said several children had been hurt on the premises because of unsafe conditions.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster—Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

GARY MAYOR'S ACTION SAVES LIVES OF TWO

Quick thinking on the part of Mayor Joseph E. Finerty of Gary, was credited yesterday with saving the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Matthews, 620 Deming pl., Chicago, who floated aimlessly in their damaged sail boat on Lake Michigan Wednesday for nearly 12 hours. Matthews is employed in the roto-gravure department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Matthews and his wife put out from Belmont harbor early Wednesday, and about 11 a. m. broke the rudder on their 32-foot boat. By dusk, when they began sending up flares, they had drifted to a point 20 miles north of Gary. A Coast Guard cutter eventually sighted the flares and went out to rescue them. High waves made it impossible to tow the craft into any harbor except thru Burns ditch at Ogden Dunes, near the Gary Boat club.

Mayor Finerty was hosting the Optimist club at an annual affair when members noticed the cutter, pulling the crippled boat, attempting to put in at Burns ditch, where a 75-foot opening is flanked by piling. Seeing that the cutter would miss its course, the mayor stripped to his underclothing, tied a 100-foot rope around his waist and walked into the channel, holding a red torch in either hand. William E. Graham, commodore of the boat club, said the lives of the cutter crew and Mr. and Mrs. Matthews would have been lost had the two-story waves dashed the cutter onto the piling.

Patz said he lived at the same address as Mrs. Noble.

CONSIDER ASKING U. S. MONEY TO CONSTRUCT RAILROAD TERMINAL

After announcement by Gov. Green 10 days ago that he had initiated a state directed program to revamp Chicago's transportation facilities in the post-war period, Mayor Kelly yesterday met with representatives of 14 railroads to discuss a new railroad terminal to replace the obsolete Grand Central, Dearborn, La Salle street and Illinois Central stations.

When the meeting appeared headed for an impasse because the representatives said their railroads were unable to finance such a project, Mayor Kelly suggested that the federal government might finance the terminal. The representatives agreed to submit the proposed plan to their home offices for consideration.

In an effort to lift the city from its rut of the last two decades, Gov. Green on July 2 announced a plan to revamp the city's transportation facilities, including railroads, highways, airports, and waterways.

WAR PRISONERS' GARDENS TO GET AID FROM FUND

Part of the money donated to the community and war fund drive opening Oct. 2 in Chicago and Cook, Du Page and Lake counties will be used to buy tools and seeds for American service men who are prisoners of war, Stuart W. Cochran, chairman of the suburban division, said yesterday.

"We have received reports," said Cochran, "that vegetable and flower gardens have been laid out by prisoners of war in many camps."

Organizations which benefit from the fund and help to carry on the work include the U. S. O., U. S. O. Camp shows, United Seaman's service, War Prisoners aid and allied relief agencies. In Chicago the campaign raises money also for the Jewish welfare fund and the 187 health and welfare agencies of the community fund, but money from the appeal outside of Chicago goes only to the national war fund.

Cochran announced appointment of five regional chairmen. They are Edward B. Sherwin, 521 N. Sheridan rd., Highland Park; Clay E. Steele, 411 Elmore st., Park Ridge; Elmer H. Franzen, Itasca; John H. Wood, 3128 S. Wisconsin av., Berwyn, and Henry W. Heideman, 15609 Myrtle st., Harvey.

W-G-N BIRTHDAY EXHIBIT RECALLS RADIO'S INFANCY

Photos, Equipment Trace 20 Years' Growth.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Many memories of the early days of radio will be reawakened by the exhibit of broadcasting equipment and historic photographs which W-G-N will open at 10 a. m. tomorrow in connection with a week's observance of its 20th anniversary. Scores of memorable pictures and other graphic matter will be on display in Harmony hall, the passageway connecting Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio building.

The exhibit of equipment in the Tower public service office will tell the story of radio listening from the crystal set days to the present era of noise free frequency modulation broadcasting. The W-G-N exhibit will be free to the public. The doors will be open from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m., starting tomorrow and continuing thru Saturday, July 22.

Tribute to Initiative.

The initiative which has put W-G-N in the lead of broadcasting development for two decades is reflected in the pictures. One shows a scene at the Scopes' evolution [monkey] trial in Dayton, Tenn., which W-G-N broadcast exclusively back in 1925. Another of the same year depicts Rudolph Valentino being interviewed by Quin Ryan. A third shows Gloria Swanson, who has just opened in Chicago in "A Goose for the Gander," at a W-G-N microphone back in 1927. Arthur Sears Henning, head of the Tribune Washington bureau, is pictured interviewing Herbert Hoover long before he was President.

A picture holding historic significance is one showing Chicago police cars being equipped with radios by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE back in 1929. W-G-N broadcast all police calls during this experiment. The test proved so successful that the police department quickly adopted radio to help combat crime. Soon this type of communication spread from coast to coast.

Some Quaint Equipment.

The equipment exhibit will include many quaint items—one is a battery operated receiver made in 1916 in the days when radio was still called wireless. The broadcasting era is generally dated from election day, 1920, when KDKA, Pittsburgh, broadcast results of the Harding-Cox election.

Another piece which may attract considerable attention is a 16 year old television receiver. But the television era finally appears to be at hand. Continuing its spirit of pioneering, W-G-N already has taken steps toward building a television station after the war.

200 DISCHARGED VETERANS GIVEN TRAINING HERE

Two hundred discharged veterans of World War II. are receiving vocational training and rehabilitation in Chicago under the program of the veterans' administration, and applications of about 1,000 more are being processed, Cassius E. Hostetler, vocational rehabilitation officer at Hines Memorial hospital, said yesterday.

A dozen Chicago firms are coöperating with the veterans' administration in providing on the job training for many of the veterans. Others are getting schooling that will fit them for occupations in business and industry. Under the on the job training plan veterans are placed beside skilled workmen to learn trades.

During the training period an unmarried veteran may draw a disability pension up to $80 a month and a married man may get $90 and $5 for each dependent child. If he has dependent parents, he may get $10 a month for each.

Discharged veterans must apply for vocational rehabilitation within two years after discharge or two years after the close of the war. Applicants who go to the field office at Hines hospital are told to ask for a disability pension, and a rating board determines the degree of disability and whether he is vocationally handicapped.

NOT A SINGLE WAR TUNE IN 25 OF TOP HITS

Federal Tabulation Is Released.

Not a single war song is represented among the top 25 hits of the season, according to a tabulation just completed by the federal radio division of the office of research. This survey is based not on individual performances, but on the estimated size of the radio audience. Thus, listener ratings of programs were taken into account in determining the most popular tunes of the year ending July 1, 1944.

The favorite of the year, according to the survey, was "People Will Say We're in Love," from "Oklahoma." Approximately half of the hits were songs from motion pictures or theater productions. The Rodgers-Hammerstein musical comedy has another representative, "O What a Beautiful Morning" in seventh place.

"Mairzy Doats" Is 24th.

No. 2 hit was "My Heart Tells Me." Next in order was "Shoo, Shoo, Baby," "Besamo Mucho," "I Love You," "Paper Doll," a revival; "O, What a Beautiful Morning," "Long Ago and Far Away," "No Love, No Nothin'," "It's Love, Love, Love." Two other revivals were in 11th and 14th places—"Put Your Arms Around Me, Honey," and "I'll Get By."

Air Song Leads War Tunes.

Among the war tunes "Army Air Corps Song" outranked all others. However, its rating was only approximately a third as high as that of the No. 1 hit. And the "Air Corps" song is the only patriotic tune written during this war rating among the first five martial songs. Next in order were "Anchors Aweigh," "The Marines' Hymn," "Over There," of World War I. fame, and "Semper Paratus."

Leading the perennial favorites this year was Irving Berlin's "Blue Skies," with "Begin the Bequine," "Embraceable You," "Star Dust," "Night and Day," and "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" following in order.

Boards to Meet Here to Plan for Methodism

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Bishop J. Ralph Magee, successor to the late Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf as resident head of the Chicago [Illinois] area of the Methodist church, announced that the La Salle hotel will be the national headquarters of American Methodism the week of July 24, when 600 members of 16 national boards of the church will set up their programs for the next four years.

All 35 active bishops of the church, each of whom is a member of one or more of the 16 boards, will be present. The boards were named by the May general conference at Kansas City, Mo., and by the six jurisdictional [regional] conferences in the last month. The boards are composed of approximately equal numbers of ministers and laymen. Youth is represented by those elected from the Methodist Youth fellowship on boards which pertain to the age group of 12 to 24.

The boards will be convened by chairmen who are bishops. These boards include world service, pensions, missions and church extension, evangelism, temperance, publication, hospitals and homes, lay activities, interdenominational relations, central conferences, public information, courses of study for ministerial candidates, overseas relief, youth work, and women's activities.

The Church Federation of Greater Chicago has issued an urgent request to all its affiliated congregations for members to open their homes to service men and their wives who are stopping in Chicago. The announcement, made by Dr. A. W. Loos, secretary of the federation's department of ministry to service men, said many tired service persons are now being compelled to sleep on chairs in lobbies and U. S. O. centers. Dr. Loos also suggested that centrally located churches set up cots in suitable rooms and notify the federation of their availability. Rooms listed by the federation will be placed in the room registry service of the Y. M. C. A. It was added that service men expect to pay for such rooms as are made available to them.

The first Jewish broadcast from Nazi held territory liberated by the allies will originate in the Synagogue of Rome Sunday, July 23, and be carried over the National Broadcasting company network at 12:15 p. m., Chicago time. The program will be presented under auspices of the American Jewish committee in observance of the holiday, Tishah B'ab, which commemorates the destruction of the Jerusalem temple by Babylonians in 586 B. C., and by the Roman general, Titus, more than 650 years later.

There's no eye opener more refreshing than a glass of freshly squeezed orange juice. Many breakfasters who insist on a variety of morning cereals and a change in the egg dish and hot bread prefer a daily glass of this citrus juice to any other fruit.

Orange juice in dessert form may not supply the vitamin C contained in the morning refresher [for this delicate vitamin is soon destroyed when exposed to air], but it does offer plenty of flavor appeal thru the medium of these sweet dishes.

Orange sponge, a creamy, yet creamless dessert, makes a delicious top-off for a summer meal.

Orange Sponge.
[Serves six to eight.]

2 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
2 cups milk
½ cup sugar
3 eggs, separated
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
¾ teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice

Soften gelatin in cold milk for 5 minutes. Heat in double boiler until dissolved, then add sugar. Pour a little of the hot mixture slowly into the beaten egg yolks. Return to double boiler and cook about 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, cool slightly, then add fruit rinds and juice and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Chill until firm. To serve, garnish with orange sections and a fresh raspberry or cherry. [This dessert will separate into a clear layer and a layer of fluffy sponge.]

Orange sherbet is a treat which might be indulged in at least once during the summer months, in spite of the amount of sugar required. This is an especially delicious frozen dessert, one which we used a year ago in making our step-by-step pictures. Cut the recipe in half to serve a small family.

Orange Sherbet.
[Serves eight.]

1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
1½ cups sugar
1 cup water
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
2 cups orange juice
3 tablespoons lemon juice

Soften gelatin in 2 tablespoons cold water and dissolve in hot sirup made by boiling sugar and water for 5 minutes. Pour sirup gradually into egg whites, beating constantly; add fruit juices. Pour into large freezing tray or two small ones and freeze at coldest temperature. When nearly frozen, remove to chilled bowl and beat well. Return to refrigerator tray and freeze firm.

Orange puffs, a fritter-like dessert, are easy on the sugar bin, easy to make, and very easy to eat!

Orange Puffs.
[Serves four to six.]

1½ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons shortening
1 egg, well beaten
⅓ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated orange rind

Sift flour once before measuring, then sift with baking powder, salt, and sugar. Cut in shortening. Add orange juice and rind to egg and stir into flour mixture. Beat well. Fry by tablespoons in shallow hot fat, turning once. To serve sprinkle lightly with confectioners' sugar. Or serve with a hot pudding sauce, altho the delicate flavor of the orange in the fritter will be somewhat overshadowed.

Try Using Double Boiler to Render a Little Fat

The easiest way to render small quantities of fat is in a double boiler. The fat does not need to be watched closely and can be stirred occasionally. The chopped fat should not be packed into the double boiler as loose fat renders more quickly and more uniformly than fat which has been packed.

Tomato-Cheese Salad

1 No. 2 can tomato juice
1 bouillon cube
1 tablespoon minced onion
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 teaspoon salt
1½ tablespoons plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 cup cottage cheese
½ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons plain gelatin
¼ cup cold water

Heat tomato juice to boiling and add bouillon cube, onion, and parsley. Simmer 5 minutes. Strain. Add salt and 1½ tablespoons gelatin softened in ¼ cup cold water. Stir until dissolved and pour half the mixture into the bottom of an oiled ring mold. Chill until set. Combine cottage cheese and mayonnaise. Soften remaining gelatin in ⅓ cup cold water and melt over hot water. Add to cheese. Spread over tomato layer in ring mold. When set, top with remaining tomato mixture and chill until firm. Serve with garnish of lettuce and additional mayonnaise. MRS. ANNE DOWNS, 923 Humphrey av., Oak Park, Ill.

Pan Fried Pork Sausages—Place the links or patties in a cold frying pan, add a small amount of water, cover, and steam for five minutes. Pour off remaining water, if any, then cook uncovered over low heat, turning so that sausages will be nicely browned on all sides. Do not pierce the skins with a fork, but turn sausages with a pancake turner. [This new method of sausage cookery gives a finished product which retains meat fat and juices and results in little shrinkage.]

Success in Canning All in Knowing How; Booklet Will Tell You

Canning is not difficult; it's all in knowing just how. With a good set of directions even the novice can have splendid results. In fact the beginner often wards off failure by following rules to the letter, while the overconfident canner sometimes trusts her memory too explicity.

Canning directions which are complete and clear are given in Mary Meade's new booklet, "War Time Canning Guide." To order, send 7 cents in stamps to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune, or pick up a copy at Tribune Public Service office, 1 S. Dearborn st., or Tribune Tower Lobby, for 5 cents.

List of Debutantes for Season Grows Despite Postponements

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE list of debutantes for this season is growing slowly despite the fact that many young women tentatively scheduled for parties this year are postponing their debuts. Among the latter are Miss Patsy Roach and Miss Betty Bennett.

Miss Roach, daughter of the Edward A. Roaches of Highland Park, is of debutante age, but only just so, and her parents have decided to wait until next year, when world conditions may make the debut season a more normal one. Miss Roach is at the Montana ranch of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hosford Jr., but will return at the end of the month to join Miss Bennett and her parents, the Robert C. Bennetts of Highland Park, at their Conover, Wis., summer home in a house party that has gathered together for many years the same group of young women, among them Miss Barbara Jones and Miss Kathleen Watson, who will go north with Miss Roach, and Miss Christina Kelly, who is leaving for Conover with the Bennetts tomorrow.

Miss Bennett will return to the Ogontz school Oct. 1 and will be introduced to society next year. Miss Roach will enter Marymount-on-the-Hudson in the fall. Her sister, Mrs. Frederick Kent Blatchford just has returned to Highland Park to be with her parents while Lt. Blatchford is on sea duty.

The date of the debut tea which Mr. and Mrs. William Pratt Sidley will give in their Winnetka home for their granddaughter, Miss Elaine Sidley, has been advanced from Sept. 9 to Sept. 2 because so many young friends of the debutante will leave for college right after the Labor day week-end. The tea probably will be followed by dinner and dancing at the Indian Hill club. Mr. and Mrs. Sidley are leaving today to join their granddaughter and her parents, the William D. Sidleys, at their ranch in Encampment, Wyo., and the whole family will return to Winnetka Aug. 28. The bud's brother, William F. Sidley, who is in a navy V-12 program at Yale, hopes to come home for his sister's debut.

Here and There.

Just back from the Southwest Pacific, Capt. William O. Gallery is preparing to take over his new duties—those of captain of the unit of the naval air technical training command at 87th and Anthony sts. At present Capt. and Mrs. Gallery and their young daughters, Betsey and Marcia See, are staying in Hubbard Woods with Mrs. Gallery's parents, the George Sunderlands.

Capt. Gallery will assume his new command Monday, taking over the post which temporarily has been filled by Lt. Comdr. Frank A. Davis. For the last few months Comdr. Davis has combined the duties of captain and executive officer of the unit, and now that Capt. Gallery is taking command he will continue in the latter post. Capt. Gallery, a graduate of the naval academy at Annapolis, Md., holds the Legion of Merit, the distinguished flying cross, and a Presidential citation. He recently was promoted to captain from the rank of commander.

On the Calendar.

The South Shore Service league of the Chicago Maternity center, which gave a successful benefit cocktail party last year at the Racquet club, is planning another for Nov. 3 at the same club. Mrs. William Penn Budd is the general chairman, with Mrs. Aubrey Piggott, Mrs. George P. Hill, Mrs. Lawrence Barrett, Mrs. Frank Mackey, Mrs. Charles MacKimm, Mrs. Henry Lee Jr., and Mrs. Ira Beck among those assisting her. Mrs. Joseph J. Cavanagh will be in charge of the fashion show that will be part of the afternoon's entertainment. Mrs. G. Dudley Allman heads the league, whose members staff the clinic of the center on Fridays. This year the workers are wearing attractive blue pinafores. On their heads they place little white caps designed by Mrs. MacKimm and made by Mrs. Budd. Plans for the benefit were announced at luncheon yesterday at the Chicago Athletic association, with Mrs. Piggott acting as hostess.

Today's Events.

All the French societies in Chicago are taking part in a celebration of Bastille day today to be held starting at 4 p. m. in Pilsen park, with Henri de Lageneste, agent in Chicago for the provisional government of France, acting as honorary president. Robert Valeur, head of the French information and press services in New York, will be the guest speaker at a banquet at 7 p. m., and dancing will follow. The Camarades de Combat, the Dames Prevoyantes, the Fighting French Relief, the Filles de France, the Sororité Franco-Americaine, the Alliance Francaise, Les Rosettes et Rubans, the Cercle Francais, and the French clubs of Evanston, Glencoe, and other suburbs are among the organizations participating. Among those at the speakers' table during the banquet will be Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, who just has been appointed chairman of French war relief.

The Chicago Junior league's monthly party for transfer members who have come to Chicago recently from other cities will be held today at the Exmoor Country club. Mrs. Lawrence Oakes, Mrs. Edmond S. Cummings Jr., and Mrs. James M. Carry are in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. Paget Cady, whose recipe for "Hamburger Choo Choo" won a recent contest at the Key club, will be a special guest at luncheon there today, when she will receive her prize of a $25 war bond. The dish was named after Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins, who originated it, and whose nickname is Choo Choo. It consists of a thick slice of broiled tomato with a chopped beef patty on top, covered with Bearnaise sauce.

The Newberry Center league has chartered a bus to transport 100 children from the settlement house on Maxwell st. to Lincoln Park for its annual summer picnic today. Mrs. William E. Englehart Jr. has charge of plans for the day, which will include a tour of the zoo before luncheon. Altho the league will not meet during the summer months, members are busy with their war project of making slippers to be shipped overseas to Red Cross headquarters for use by convalescent service men.

Red Cross Sewing Group.

White Collar GIRL

Never a Dull Moment.

I'm tired of nervous apprehension;
Letters to "that man's" attention;
Quotations only half dictated
For transcribing not as stated;
Reports of endless length of typing,

Something that is pure enjoyment.
You've a soft position for me?
No, thanks! It would surely bore me!

Office Snoops.

Can't help but answer an article about the office snooper. The office where I work doesn't have one snooper, but at least five, and all proud of it! Nothing is secret, even tho marked "confidential." Such things as confidential information between one employe and another are out of the question. So I say an office with only one snooper is lucky! A MEMBER OF THE WCG.

One for the Books.

Having read with interest what some of the WCGs have written regarding supposedly good bosses, here's one for the books:

On cold, dreary mornings—coffee and rolls.

On hot days—ice cream or cold drinks in the afternoons.

Farewell luncheons for any WCG worker leaving his employ.

Anniversary gifts of roses.

Post-War Working Women.

"Women's post-war economic problems are solved in one sentence in a letter sent to the women's bureau, United States department of labor, by a young man writing about his industry. He concludes: 'Wishing you success in your work and hoping for the day when woman may relax and stay in her beloved kitchen, a loving wife to some man who is now fighting for his country. . . .'

"But it is wishful thinking to say that every Dolly the Draftsman and Emmy the Enginewasher will marry the man of her dreams and live happily ever after on his earnings. The problem of whether women are to work outside the home is as old as the problem of human needs. For decades hundreds of thousands of women in this country have worked, just as men have worked, to support themselves and to support dependents.

"Even before the war women were practically one-fourth of all workers and current estimates place the number at about 16½ million, or one-third of all workers. There is no reason to assume that any large proportion of these women will suddenly find it no longer necessary to work; on the contrary, great numbers will find it more necessary than ever. After the war, it seems probable, the number of women who will need to remain in the labor force will be around 15 million."

BY REA SEEGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 13.—Originals by Joseph Halpert on parade at the New York Dress institute's Press week once again made fashion news.

This particular showing was a most carefully screened collection of new creations, each a perfect jewel of smooth distinction, and with no tiresome repetitions of an overworked favorite silhouette or color. Outstanding were four new costumes in yarn dyed gray wool. Slim, distinguished two piece suits, one with a silver gray velveteen gilet, the other with fat rollo edging of the same gray velveteen and large buttons, won most applause.

Next in popularity with fashion writers was a charming little dress parade bolero of jaunty Scotch plaid, effectively braided and decorated with Victorian ball fringe and buttons. After that the dull black basic dresses trimmed with beaded edging in shallow scallops and the clever black crepe dresses, combined with satin in the back peplums or the front fake aprons, made a difficult choice for any one with a wardrobe to plan.

Halpert originals have the enviable quality of patrician restraint combined with the fresh snap of the unusual in drapery line or detail—quite some designing trick, if you'll ask those who haven't this gift. Halpert first introduced the sensational and beautiful black background cotton prints, those lovely summer dresses which are the equal in chic and color contrast of anything in printed silk. He also is known for distinctive detailed dresses that are wearable yet decorative without too much chi-chi.

His plaid wool jacket dresses, his deftly contrasted black with sand color dresses, and his utterly simple one piece dresses featuring the essence of tailored sleekness with the finest of fabrics, have earned the admiration and appreciation of all fastidious shoppers.

Thru the Looking Glass

This is the ideal time of year in which to knock off those five or 10 pounds of excess weight that you've been meaning to do something about but never got around to. You can start cutting down on your intake of food—and it won't bother you nearly as much in warm weather as it might in midwinter, when you need more food for fuel.

In other words, it's easier to fast a little bit now. It's easier, too, to be active. You're housebound in winter, perhaps, but you needn't be now.

Freak diets are out. Don't even try one. But if you want to lose a few pounds just cut down on the things that you know darned well are fattening. Don't skip breakfast, but drink a couple of glasses of water the minute you get up, then have a breakfast that's shaved down—one slice of toast instead of two, say of dry toast instead of buttered, and a boiled egg instead of a fried one. Skip the bacon for a couple of days and the cream in your coffee.

Walk at least some of the way to work; it's pleasant in the morning and the exercise helps your cause along. Be stiff with yourself in the matter of between meal nibbling. Eat no candy. Make your lunch a light one, of salad and clear soup and dry toast. It's ideal summer food and exactly right for your light dieting, too. Eat a good dinner but not an overabundant one. Limit yourself to one helping of the staples, and skip the desserts entirely unless they're composed of fruit. Walk in the evenings if you possibly can, taking deep breaths and striding along purposefully, with your tummy tucked in.

Skip alcohol—that again is much easier to do in warm weather—and take fruit juices instead. If you adopt a summer plan of light eating and drinking you can lose four or five pounds easily, with nary a hunger pang, in about two weeks. And you'll be awfully glad of it when fall rolls around.

Well Rounded Concert Given by Golschmann

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Vladimir Golschmann, conductor. Presented at Ravinia, Thursday evening, July 13, 1944. The program:

"Come Sweet Death"...Bach-O'Connell
First performance in Chicago.
Symphony No. 1, C minor.....Brahms
Polka and Dance, from "The Golden Age".....Shostakovich
"Quiet City," for Trumpet, English Horn and String Orchestra.....Copland
Gerald Huffmaa, trumpet.

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Brahms' First Symphony was the backlog of Vladimir Golschmann's second Ravinia concert with the Chicago Symphony orchestra last night, prefaced by good Bach and followed by contemporary moderns with a period by Ravel. It was an interesting performance, just as it was interesting Brahms, with an occasional discrepancy here, a touch of weakness there, but on the whole admirable music well planned and well played.

The symphony, like so much of Mr. Golschmann's music, had a list toward the sensuous, tho it by no means wore its heart on a flamboyant sleeve. The tone was warm and full, most of the orchestral voices were clear, the Alpenhorn sang superbly, and the strings had the full curve and bite of tone that can make Brahms electrifying. This was not a great performance—it made no attempt to be that—but it was often brilliant, often beautiful, and it had a sense of proportion that gave the final crescendo vitality and power.

The Bach was Charles O'Connell's transcription of one of the most beautiful songs ever written, the gentle compassionate "Come, Sweet Death." Mr. O'Connell's treatment of it is simple and quietly effective, not as overpoweringly beautiful as the more famous Stokowski orchestration, but more than welcome to the repertory because no one but Stokowski seems to be permitted to play his arrangement. The substitute is a good one and it was beautifully played.

But the virtuoso peak of the concert came at the end in the excerpts from "Daphnis and Chloe," always one of Mr. Golschmann's major successes. He led up to it with piquant performance of the dance and polka from Shostakovich Ballet "The Golden Age" and the sombre contrast of Copland's "Quiet City," effectively scored for trumpet solo, yet always sounding in the concert hall as if it should be heard remotely, as from afar.

But all this was prelude. The liquid brilliance of Ravel's wonderful score was launched as if a dam had broken to let the orchestra surge thru. It was iridescent music, layers deep in glittering beauty. The orchestra played superbly, with the solo violin rich and dark, the solo flute fleet in facility if not with quite the felicity of its matchless predecessor. It was, to Mr. Golschmann's credit, a fluent, sensitive, even a radiant performance of a memorable score.

Meanwhile, Ravinia has been having trouble with its printing, and would like to have a couple of errors corrected. Tomorrow night's concert, when Joseph Szigeti makes his final appearance of the season, again under Mr. Golschmann's direction, will begin at 8:30, as usual. The Sunday concert, Mr. Golschmann's farewell, starts at the usual 4 o'clock in the afternoon, not 8:30 at night as the program mistakenly announces.

Bette Jane Powell.

At 11 a. m. today 24 attractive SPARS and 31 Coast Guardsmen will give the first of 35 stage performances at the Chicago theater in the interest of SPAR recruiting. The show, called "Tars and Spars," is making a nation-wide tour of key cities, bringing the Coast Guard service message in songs, dances, skits, and personalities with an all-enlisted cast.

Two Chicagoans and one former resident of this city are among the feminine members of the cast. Yeoman 3d Class Bette Jane Powell, 535 Cornelia av., sings and dances in the show, which will have five performances daily. Miss Powell was graduated from Hyde Park High school and was a cashier and elevator starter in a loop store before enlisting in the SPARS.

A graduate of Mercy High school, Seaman 1st Class Kathryn Ann Pence is a member of the SPAR quintet. Her Chicago home is at 8033 Perry av. As a civilian she operated a comptometer machine in a railroad office.

Another graduate of Hyde Park, Marjorie [Midge] Parker, lived in Chicago for many years and is the leading vocal star of "Tars and SPARS," which came to the city from a run in Minneapolis.

Nell Keith, seaman 2d class, another member of the cast, enlisted in the SPARS when she learned that her husband, an army air force lieutenant, was a prisoner of the Germans. Pharmacist's Mate Melba Martindale has a husband serving overseas with the army, as has Storekeeper 3d Class Jeanne Freed, whose husband is on duty in the South Pacific.

The male star of the show is Chief Boatswain's Mate Victor Mature, former Hollywood star, who recently returned to the United States after 14 months of duty in Atlantic combat waters.

Eighty-eight new WAC recruits left Chicago yesterday for basic training in the WAC center at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. Three of them [Dorothy Harris, 2733 S. Spaulding av.; Carol Elizabeth Clark of Wheaton, and Cecily R. Ryan, 3536 N. Seeley av.] are only 20, the minimum enlistment age with consent of parents. Miss Ryan has four brothers in uniform, and her pet dog is with the K-9 corps for the duration.

An ex-WAC, Edna L. Fulten, 7130 Eggleston av., is another in the group. Margaret S. Maloney, 8102 S. Paulina st., enlisted to join her sister, Patricia, who is a WAC with the air forces.

Still another in the contingent, Betty Selden, 1512 E. 77th st., is the wife of an army sergeant reported missing in action. Patricia Carrington, 420 Melrose st., has a brother imprisoned by the Japs.

Mary Ellen Sullivan, 7015 East End av., is the third of her family to go into uniform. Her father is a captain of infantry, and her brother is a marine.

The WAC currently is conducting a procurement campaign. Recruiting headquarters is in room A-333, 166 W. Van Buren st.

Untruthfulness of 6 Year Old Is Not Serious

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I'm distressed about my 6 year old son because he has begun to fib about things. He has always been quite truthful up to now and, since we have never dissembled in our dealings with him, we can't understand why he resorts to it.

"Perhaps we should resort to drastic steps to stop this sort of thing once and for all, but somehow I don't believe it really goes very much below the surface . . ." So writes one mother.

Then another letter reads—"What is to be done with a child who takes things belonging to other children—actually brings them home?"

Don't be too distressed. I think, even in the best of families, little boys or girls may take something that doesn't belong to them or tell a lie now and again. It may happen once, perhaps twice, and then never occur again.

The young children who may offend our adult code of morals in these isolated acts usually are perfectly normal, happy children, with friendly and understanding parents.

The single untruth, or the single instance of "stealing," as we may label it, is not serious, not the first downward step! Yet an awful sinking feeling is experienced by most fathers or mothers when they behold their young offender's act. It it this fear that makes parents sometimes react in an exaggerated way to the first deviation from the truth and to the first small filching of a coveted object. Too often this sense of horror and shame are displayed to the child.

It is wrong to be so ready for real trouble and so apprehensive of character weakness in a child.

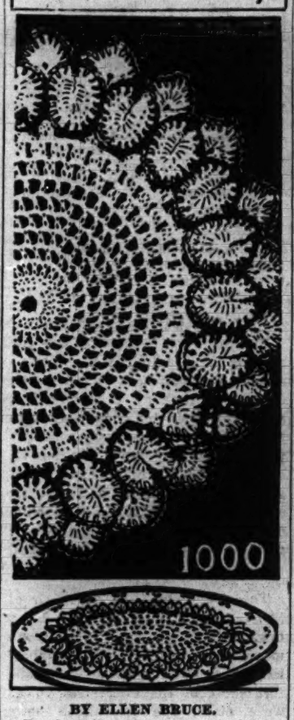
This sort of thing most often occurs around the age or 5 or 6, but may happen earlier, of course. The little child is by that time pretty well trained to tell the truth, and to distinguish between mine and thine. But, at the same time, he has not quite reached the age where he fully recognizes the intrinsic difference between right and wrong; his moral sense, we might say, is not fully developed. Conduct does not have the sharp black and white that it has at a later age. So, there may come to him a moment of—shall we call it temptation, fear of consequences, or a desire for some coveted thing that is not his own? In these borderline years when his inner promptings are mixed in motive, he says what is not so, or takes what is not his own.

It is not something that calls for great distress of mind, altho one can't help having a qualm or two, nor does it call for stern words and discipline. It's a problem that must be handled gently, diplomatically.

Crocheted Doily



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crocheted doilies with a dainty petal edge are extremely popular for summer table settings or as an individual doily to be used for decorative household touches. The petals are edged with a colorful ombre thread, and the whole is stiffly starched. The entire item is a quick and simple crochet piece.

For instructions in crocheting the petal edged doily, No. 1000, send 10 cents in stamps or coin, plus 2 cents t ocover mailing cost, to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th av., New York, N. Y.

Foot Troubles Start in Youth, OsteopathSays

Seven children out of 10 acquire some sort of foot trouble before they reach 16, and 70 to 80 per cent of adults have diseases or maladjustments of the feet, Dr. John M. Hiss, of Los Angeles, Cal., said yesterday at a meeting of the Academy of Applied Osteopathy in the Palmer House.

He warned that foot troubles may increase because children are not being supplied with new and larger sized shoes often enough to permit their feet to grow properly.

"If parents make their children wear their shoes longer than formerly because of war rationing," Dr. Hiss said, "their toes will become crowded, deformities will start, and the basis will be fixed for bunions."

He urged that adults keep their shoes in good repair now that they are wearing them longer. Shoes worn too long often lose their shape and permit foot and ankle disturbances to develop, he said. Heels should be recapped when they show signs of wear and running over, he added, or they may interfere with good posture.

Dr. B. L. Gleason, of Larned, Kas., speaking at a meeting in the Palmer House of the American College of Osteopathic Obstetricians, of which he is president, deplored the tendency of expectant mothers to fail to seek proper prenatal care because the offices of civilian doctors are crowded and waiting periods are long.

"An hour or two wait in a physician's anteroom certainly is time well spent, considering the suffering, grief, and expense it may forestall by nipping in the bud serious ailments and physical irregularities which may prove fatal or injurious either to the mother or the child or both," he said.

He urged that pre-natal care begin as soon as possible and continue up to the time of childbirth.

The war service conference and 48th annual meeting of the American Osteopathic association will open at 9:30 a. m. today at the Palmer House and run thru Tuesday. Post-war as well as war time public health problems will be discussed. Dr. Walter E. Bailey of St. Louis, Mo., is president of the association.

Veterans' Ceremony to Honor Soldiers Killed at Champagne

Members of the Illinois chapter of the Rainbow Division Veterans' association will gather tonight at the Merchants and Manufacturers' club in the Merchandise Mart to pay tribute to comrades of the famous division who died at Champagne-Sur-Mer during the last World war. The memorial service, named the Champagne Hour, is observed annually by Rainbow men thruout the country at 11:45 p. m. on July 14, since it was at that moment in 1918 that the guns at Champagne opened fire on the American fighting unit, which had been rushed into action to stop that great German offensive.

There is to be an installation of new chapter officers at tonight's meeting, which will be conducted by Judge Joseph McGarry.

Stage Note

A change in the operetta schedule at the Civic Opera house holds "Wildflower" for three extra performances, closing Saturday night, July 22, and postpones the opening of "The Merry Widow" until Sunday night, July 23. There will be no Sunday matinée that week. Meanwhile, it is announced that Arthur Maxwell will sing Prince Danilo opposite Marguerite Piazza in the title role.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 13.—Of all the stories picked for Clark Gable's first picture since he's out of uniform, one he likes best is "Strange Adventure" which his pal, Victor Fleming, is working day and night on, and which he will produce and direct. It's a story the studio's had for some time. It was put aside when Clark went into the service. As I remember it, it's about a group of people somewhat like those in "Lifeboat," with a Christlike figure among them. Studio also has "Lucky Baldwin" and "The Duke of New Orleans" ready for Clark. Metro's just sorry he wasn't born quintuplets. . . . Bing Crosby met Errol Flynn at Lakeside the other day, and as a hopeful gag, Bing asked Flynn if he'd play Jim Corbett in one brief sequence in "The Great John L." Errol will, if his company permits. . . . Phil Regan had a phone call from Mayor Kelly, of Chicago, asking him to sing the national anthem at opening of the Democratic national convention. He accepted.

It's Something Different.

Fred MacMurray gave the best acting performance of his life in "Double Indemnity" with Barbara Stanwyck and Eddie Robinson. The picture holds you every minute. The touches Charlie Brackett gets into his direction are tasty tidbits in a sordid story. . . . Doesn't look as tho Dore Schary will return to Selznick. . . . Paramount is interested in Ernest Hemingway's new war story, "The Short and Happy Life of Francis Macomber." . . . Before Ann Sothern took off for her husband Bob Sterling's station, she signed a new long termer at Metro. After birth of her baby, she'll do "Maisie Goes Overseas." She'll also do a sequence in Carey Wilson's picture "The Common Sin."

He Trains Everything But.

Cecil De Mille carrying his hugging arm in a sling these days, not for the usual reason. Cecil decided grass was too high on his Paradise ranch, got out the old scythe and went to work. Almost the first swish he ran into a bevy of bees, and what Cecil got was not honey but the business. . . . Natalie Schafer and John Carradine were swimming together at the Garden of Allah when Natalie asked him why he always kept his head out of water. Said John, "In Hollywood total immersion keeps you out of the public eye too long." . . . Virginia Weidler is being paged by Dave Wolper for a New York show to play a 15 year old. But she wants grownup parts. Her new beau is Pvt. Ray McDonald. Warners is looking for a story to co-star Joan Leslie and Joyce Reynolds.

A Switch in Time.

Bob Leonard didn't want to have to give up "Thrill of a Romance" in the middle of production, so bowed out of directing to look after his health. Not that his condition is serious, but he's entering a hospital for a thoro checkup. I call that smart thinking for himself and the company. . . . It's "Early to Wed" for Jack Cummings, with Lana Turner, Gene Kelly, Lucille Ball, and Keenan Wynn. . . . Joan Davis' agent calls her "The New Joan Davis"—wants nothing but subtle comedy roles for her from now on. . . . Paul Small's "Star Time" opens in San Francisco, and he has to guarantee his players' hotel as well as traveling accommodations. . . . Alice Faye is booked to do "The Dolly Sisters" but Phil Harris [her husband] tells me she definitely won't work this year. . . . Dorothy Stickney is here with her husband, Howard Lindsay. She's already turned down two pictures. Parts weren't suited to her. She was mighty cute in "The Uninvited."

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Mrs. George K., Chicago—I wanted to give some old brass pieces a new look, change their faces completely—and I tried to enamel them. I couldn't make the enamel stick, however, until I took a tip from a neighbor, washed them with a household cleaner that had no soap in it, and then wiped them with denatured alcohol.

Mrs. Kenneth D., Davenport, Ia.—Here's a test I make when I suspect the door gasket of my refrigerator is getting brittle and doesn't seal the door tightly. I close door on piece of ordinary wrapping paper the size of a five dollar bill. If the paper pulls out easily the gasket isn't tight enough and warm air from outside is getting into refrigerator. Usually my husband can tighten hinges a little and the fit is better.

According to Culbertson

East, dealer.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	1 spade	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

South's one spade overcall was too aggressive, even not vulnerable, but he escaped with very mild punishment.

West opened his singleton heart; East won and promptly laid down the king and ace of diamonds. Declarer ruffed, led a club to the queen, ruffed another diamond, led a club to the ace, and ruffed the last diamond. This gave him five tricks, and the trump ace cut the penalty to 100 points.

Now for the correct defense. East's first duty was to attack the trump suit itself, so that declarer could not cash in low, worthless trumps by ruffing East-West's tricks. West had doubled one spade—surely he must have an excellent spade holding. He could not have expected that East would show up with such valuable cards as the jack and nine of trumps; actually holding them, East should have rushed to put them to use. His first lead, after taking the heart king, should have been the trump jack, and if declarer ducked, the trump nine should have promptly followed. Then proper defense would have let West get in with a diamond to draw the rest of declarer's trumps, and hold him to a total of three [instead of six!] tricks.

'One Is Missing' . . . . . By H. Vernor Dixon

INSTALMENT XVII.

HONESTY OF PURPOSE.

Ellen yawned and lazily ran her fingers thru her hair, her cool eyes closely regarding Mae's startled expression. Then she turned away and stepped into the shower.

Mae stared after her in stunned silence. She looked at herself in the glass. What she saw there frightened her.

Her eyes dropped and closed for a moment. When they opened again they were like the eyes of another woman, one who knows the worst, and accepts it.

Jed and Hugh St. John lay flat on their stomachs on the crest of a grassy ridge. A small native village of nipa huts was just below them at the bottom of the ridge. The village was deserted. Beyond the village was a large, flat clearing that looked like a parade ground. Tin-roofed barracks for Japanese troops covered one end of the clearing. The other end, at the edge of the sea, was given over to marine railways, warehouses, a large machine shop, anti-aircraft gun emplacements and fuel and munitions dumps. Two long, steel and concrete piers ran far out into a half-moon cove, squarely bisecting it. Eight small patrol boats were at the piers, being fueled. A tanker was anchored just beyond the cove and a Jap destroyer was being warped against the lip of a pier. It was late afternoon and there was a great deal of activity.

St. John breathed. "So this is it."

Jed nodded. "This is their base. From here they control the whole coastline. I don't know where the fuel comes from, but aside from that you can see they're pretty self-sufficient."

St. John chuckled. "Well, I had best get to work."

He spread some large sheets of paper on the grass, took a pencil from his pocket and began sketching the base. When the sketch was completed, he began drawing straight lines between various distances.

The Englishman worked in silence for another hour. He turned to Jed and asked, "How many men here?" "I'd say about 3,000."

St. John shook his head with wonder and a wry smile twisted his mouth. "And you intend blowing the whole perishing base to bits. Amazing. How do you think you can manage it?"

Jed returned his smile, but his eyes were sober. "That's the catch. I haven't been able to work it out so far. What I'm mainly after is the patrol fleet. There are 16 of them, all told; eight out and eight in. The ones that are out return at 2 a. m. on the dot and the others leave 30 minutes later. So, for 30 minutes the whole fleet is in. That's the time to get 'em."

St. John remarked dryly, "One must time it properly. Only how?"

Jed frowned and squinted over the base. "I don't know. I've had nightmares trying to work it out. You said you might be able to help me. Got any ideas?"

St. John stared at him, then looked out over the gulf. "The whole scheme is improbable, impossible, fantastic, and utterly mad, but I'm with you. In a small way, a very minute way, it would help to pay for Singapore. Yes, I'm with you. This base is well guarded."

"But loosely," Jed said. "They haven't had trouble here and don't expect any. Bart and I could take care of the outpost sentries. But once in the base, it's a different problem. Too many men around. And all of us are too tall. We're conspicuous."

"Rather. What about the water road?"

"Well, we have a dinghy hidden in the brush at the cove. But you just can't row into the place. The Japs aren't that lax. I don't know—it's a tough problem."

He nudged St. John and backed down from the crest of the knoll, the Englishman followed him.

Jed turned to look at St. John and studied his lean face. He said, "When Bart and I first came across you, we rifled your pockets to see who you were. There were a couple of pictures in your wallet—a woman and a child. Yours?"

St. John nodded, but his lips had turned white. "Yes," he replied. "My wife and child."

"That's what I thought. Are they in England?"

"No. No," he said, "they're not in England. Actually, they are not far from here. You see, they're buried in Singapore."

"O, I—I'm sorry I brought it up."

"It's quite all right. Perhaps it would be good for me to talk about it. Air raid, of course. Jap Mitsuis strafing the roads, killing everything for the sheer joy of killing. My wife and—and child and the amah were trying to reach the city when the Mitsuis came down. I heard about it in Manila. Friend of mine transferred to the concentration camp there. I think they had a decent burial."

"And you were buried with them."

"Yes, I was."

The sudden tropic darkness had settled upon the jungle like a blanket. They walked in silence, without pausing to rest, but about halfway to the cove Jed said, "You must feel odd being around Scott Banning."

"How do you mean?"

"I mean about your family. They were killed by Mitsuis, Banning's design."

"O, Well, at first it was an odd feeling, or, perhaps not so odd. It was simple enough. I wanted to strangle him to death."

"Why?"

St. John walked in silence for a few minutes, gathering his thought, then said, "Every industrialist, every business man, every politician, in all the nations, who wanted to do 'business as usual' in spite of the storm warnings, is as guilty of the death of my wife and child as are Banning and the Jap pilot who actually shot them down. To wreak vengeance upon Banning I would have to avenge myself upon them all."

Jed slowed his pace and stared at him with amazement. As a soldier, he had thought of the war in its military aspects only. He asked, "You really believe that?"

"I do. Yes, I believe it."

"Then what helps you to keep going on? The same men are still in the saddle. Legislation piles up on legislation and defeats itself."

"That isn't the answer." St. John said, "What is needed is a measuring rod, whereby one man may take the measure of another. That measuring rod, I believe, is simplicity itself."

"What?"

"Honesty. That's all. Just honesty."

A Girl Regrets Rudeness, but the Boy's Gone

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

When a high school gal decides to play "hard to get" and turns what might have been a fine friendship into a temperamental free-for-all—well, it's all over but the pouting! Here's peculiar plaint from a young character who gave a particular Joe the rude brush-off until he gave up—and now she realizes she has a glow for the boy.

on the SOLID side

Her story goes this way:

"I met him at a birthday party. I had to leave early, while he was out with another fellow getting more cokes. My sister also was at the party, and when she came home she told me that he had asked where I had gone and mentioned several times that he would like to see me again. He did try to see me, but sometimes I was out and on the other occasions I just wouldn't see him when he called.

"One day I was coming home from the library and I bumped into him. He asked if he could come to the house that evening, and I told him he could if he liked. I had lots of fun that night, but when he asked me to go out again I said no. He left for the navy a few days later and now I know I like him very much. I guess he still likes me because he wrote to one of his friends asking if I were still around and would I write to him if he wrote. I know I was foolish because I said "no" even tho I knew I liked him. Now I would like to write to him to apologize, but don't know where he is nor where I could find his address."

It wouldn't be wise to apologize—an apology would only make him realize that your discourteous attitude was intentional. Why not wait until his next leave? If he still thinks of you as "the girl he left behind him," he may ask you for a date then. But next time you break a date, neglect to answer a letter, or refuse an invitation, take time out to think how you would feel on the receiving end. You owe no one your friendship, but you do owe any one the same courteous consideration you expect yourself. A little sweetness goes a long way—and you'll go a lot farther if you remember it.

Adoption Laws Permit Rackets, Hunter Asserts

The adoption of infant children in Illinois has become a flourishing "shakedown racket" unhindered by the state's antiquated adoption laws, Joel D. Hunter, superintendent of the United Charities of Chicago, declared yesterday.

Unscrupulous doctors, midwives, and owners of private maternity institutions are able to do a profitable business in selling babies for adoption because the Illinois law allows almost any one to place an orphaned child in a foster home, he said, adding that no investigation of the child's parents or of the foster home is required, and all details of the adoption can be kept under cover.

"The adoption situation in Illinois is what might be called an 'inflation market' with more persons desiring to adopt children than there are children to be adopted," said Hunter. "It is developing into a black market with children being passed around almost to the highest bidder."

The United Charities does not attempt to investigate baby markets, but a number of rings have been uncovered by police and public welfare institutions in the last few years, he said.

A mother and her daughter were found to be running an unlicensed maternity home in which they first charged an unwed mother a fee for disposing of her baby and then taking a fee up to $150 from a couple wishing to adopt the child. They had worked out a system of installment payments such as those of an auto finance company.

A married couple ran a maternity home on Chicago's north side in which they charged a flat fee of $200 a baby to prospective adopters. Unwed mothers were directed to the home from nearby cities by an attorney.

A man and a woman, unmarried but living together, took unwed mothers into their home shortly before the birth of the child, charging the mother a fee and then selling the baby to whomever would pay the highest price.

"There probably are many baby markets thriving in Illinois," Hunter said, "but it is difficult to prove anything against the operators, and even more difficult to find grounds for a legal conviction. A law requiring a pre-adoption inspection of both parties, a waiting period before the final decree is signed, and protection of the real mother from racketeers will eliminate the practice."

FASHIONS
By Angela

Dark midsummer sheers, the lines of which reveal a hint of what will be high fashion this coming season, are among the most popular items in the dress departments at present.

The slinky black sheer one piece dress sketched at left is cool and dressy enough to be worn for any date or party. It has a fitted waist and a long torso line with a peplum effect across the front, created of braided material. Minute material buttons run from the peplum up to the base of the V neckline. Short cape sleeves are trimmed with the braid. The back of the dress is as straight and slim as an arrow.

A two piece sheer version of summer smartness is the navy blue in center. The fitted jacket, with three-quarter sleeves, has bands of stitching on the double panel at each side of the front. Lacy ruching outlines the front opening, and three sets of double buttons mark the front closing. The skirt is gored with a wide, well fitting waist band.

Educators Told Need to Teach Art of Speech

Arguing that the world often judges a person by his speech habits and that "speech is a requisite to the condition of being human," Davis Edwards, professor of speech at the University of Chicago, urged yesterday that the ability to speak well be made the goal of systematic study and practice.

"Speech is used more often and in more ways than any learned skill except the skills of mere physical existence, such as walking," he said. "It should not be left to irrational development thru subconscious imitation and uncoördinated experience."

Prof. Edwards spoke at a fourth day session of the university's annual conference on reading for teachers and school officers of elementary and high schools and junior colleges.

He deplored the proneness of many persons to ignore the fact that improved speech habits make for better communication of those ideas upon which social organization depends. "We learn to speak as well as we have to in order to get what we want—not any better," he said.

Discussing the art of reading aloud and its relationship to good speech habits, Prof. Edwards distinguished between mere vocal exercise and that type of reading which seeks to project the meaning of the written material. He urged that good oral reading take into account the purpose of the reading and the character of the audience to which it is addressed.

VALDINA FOE IS FIRST IN $11,550 TURF FEATURE

Bushwhacker 2d in Grassland.

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

John Marsch's Valdina Foe essayed the easy going of a turf strip for the first time in his two years of racing yesterday and found it so much to his liking that he not only walked away with the $11,550 Grassland handicap at Washington Park, but equalled the America record for a mile and an eighth.

Valdina Foe, a 4 year old son of Sun Briar, had Otto Grohs in the saddle and the pair put on one of the most thrilling shows of the Arlington Park season as the big bay colt negotiated the distance in 1:51, the same time that Clyde Troutt's Take Wing hung up on the same course two years ago.

Bushwhacker Runs Second.

B. H. Wise's Bushwhacker, a campaigner on the grass lanes for four years, was second, four lengths in front of C. E. Davison's Maejames, the longshot at 16 to 1 in a field of five.

Put In, owned by G. J. Stempel of San Francisco, recognized as the nation's turf champion and the 3 to 2 choice of the crowd of 15,000, came in fourth, six lengths further back as W. W. Crenshaw's Grasshopper II., secondary favorite, brought up the rear. The mutuel handle amounted to $944,808.

Valdina Foe followed Bushwhacker's pace then stayed with Maejames as he took the lead on the back stretch. Maejames, with J. W. Martin up, held the advantage until they rounded the home turn when Grohs took matters into his hands, applied the whip and Valdina Foe shot into the lead.

Sir Bim will carry the colors of Don Ameche, movie and radio star, in the $50,000 Arlington Futurity for 2 year olds tomorrow at Washington Park.

Only Five Starters.

As the field came down the stretch, Valdina Foe increased his margin to three lengths and held it as Bushwhacker made his bid and passed Maejames. The winner paid $9 and $6.20. Bushwhacker returned $6.40 to place. There was no show betting.

Take Wing was scratched overnight along with Mrs. Emil Denemark's Fire Dust. G. J. Stempel then withdrew Pirate before the race, leaving five to run out of 11 original nominations.

Jockey J. W. Martin, one of the most popular riders at all three Chicago meetings this season, was suspended for 10 days for coming over too sharply soon after the start of the first race yesterday. He was riding Tusco, which finished second to Short Shrift.

Sirius Wins McChesney.

Mrs. V. E. Smith's Sirius got up in the last stride to beat the Mill B. stable's Ended by a nose in the day's secondary feature, the $3,000 McChesney handicap, fifth race on the card. Jules Fink's African Sun was third in a field of seven for the six furlong dash.

The daily double was worth $801.80, largest return of the meeting as Short Shrift scored in the first race at $18.80 and Rockwood Jean took the second at $52.60.

Five in Roman Field.

Five nominees for next Wednesday's $15,000 Myrtlewood handicap are entered in today's feature race, the $5,000 Roman handicap at six furlongs, same distance as the Myrtlewood. The Roman is named for the holder of the track record at Homewood. The field consists of Three Dots, 115; Roman Sox, 112; Corona Corona, 110; the top-weighted With Regards, 117; War Knight, 111.

No decorations will adorn his quiet tomb—
His heart gave out is what his comrades say,
What matters? Any reason will suffice;
But those who knew him best know what it was
That sent him to this mourned untimely end.
With younger doctors gone he labored on,
This crying need and shortage to amend.
Yes, those who knew him best know all too well
The sleepless nights, the breathless, busy days,
Trying to do the work of those far off,
Serving in a hundred urgent ways;
No decorations will surmount his simple grave,
But in friends' hearts an epitaph of beauty,
For, as surely as the men on battlefronts,
He, too, gave up his life in line of duty!

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Mr. C. Grimm's Cubs were slightly delayed yesterday in the contemplated launching of their drive for the first division. Uncle Frankie Frisch's Pirates, instead of cooperating with the refugees from the National league cellar, sabotaged the planned launching by making off with a 3 to 2 decision in the opener of the five game series. The foxy Frisch engineered the trick by picking the proper spot for his pinch hit specialist, Frank Colman. The gentleman tripled.

Until the Colman fellow was aroused from the comforts of the dugout by his boss, Hank Wyse and Fritz Ostermueller, the graduate American league lefty, were having a grand duel, the former trying to protect a one run lead and the latter hoping he could keep it that way until his mates could catch up. They did in the seventh, thanks mainly to Colman, the same guy who recently pinched an eighth inning triple in Pittsburgh to tie up an affair Claude Passeau thought he had safely in hand by 3 to 1.

Novikoff in Cleanup Spot.

The Cubs were forced to carry on their day's business without Bill Nicholson, who may be absent the remainder of the week because of the effects of being plunked on the hand by a pitched ball last Sunday. The Nicholson infirmity brought the noted Lou Novikoff bouncing out of the dugout into a place in the sun.

As a cleanup hitter, however, the jolly Russian was only 25 per cent successful, his production being one hit. But the hit could have been important. It was mixed with an error and an intentional pass in the fourth, but the full house netted nothing because neither Andy Pafko nor Don Johnson could furnish the needed power. In all, the Cubs collected only seven hits for the day.

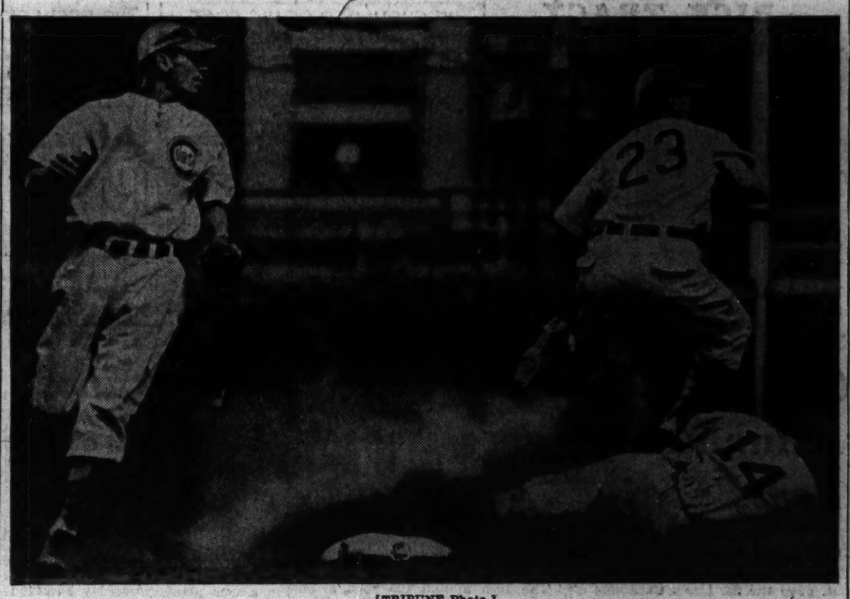
The Cubs' first inning run, that looked so impressive until the Wyse blowoff, began with Stan Hack beating out a hit to deep short and going to second on a passed ball. Roy Hughes grounded to Pete Coscarart but first base was unguarded so it went for a hit. Phil Cavarretta grounded into a double play but it wasn't hard for the Cubs to take because Hack scored. The Cubs then went into an eclipse, doing nothing for the next five innings except for that previously mentioned fourth inning fadeout.

Enough for Wyse.

Wyse fanned Bob Elliott to open the seventh and promptly encountered the disastrous shower. Babe Dahlgren and Vin DiMaggio singled. The annoying Colman, batting for Al Lopez, was next and he landed on the first pitch for his triple to right, putting the Pirates ahead, 2 to 1. Frank Zak singled to score Colman and after emerging from the inning without any additional wounds, Wyse went into retirement.

The Cubs came close, but not close enough, in their half of the seventh. Pafko singled and Johnson doubled with one out. Dewey Williams singled to score Pafko but Johnson, starting slowly from second, had to pull up at third. Pinch Man Len Merullo batted for Wyse and was passed, a full house falling apart for the second time when Hack tapped into a double play.

BUT THIS WAS ONLY THE THIRD INNING



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

JEANNE CLINE, VIRGINIA NILLES IN GOLF FINALS

Bloomington, Ill., July 13 [Special].—For the second time in four years, 20 year old Jeanne Cline, Bloomington Country club star, will compete in the finals of the annual Illinois Women's Golf association tournament here tomorrow as a result of her 2 and 1 victory over Dorothy Foster of the Illini Country Club of Springfield today.

Her opponent in the 36 hole finals will be Virginia Nilles, representing the Rob Roy Country club of Arlington Heights, who defeated Ruth More of Peoria in her semi-final match, 3 and 1.

Exceptional Approaches.

Miss Cline, who lost on the 38th hole to Ellamae Williams four years ago at Danville in the I. W. G. A., clinched today's match on the 17th hole when Miss Foster missed a three foot putt, the ball edging on the lip of the cup. The Springfield girl waited for fully five minutes in the hope that some little breath of air might give her the hole but the ball was apparently frozen and she finally conceded the victory.

Miss Nilles was outstanding in her play today. She was out-driven almost always by her foe from Peoria but she rarely failed to rally and many of her recovery shots were phenomenal. She also stymied Miss More three times to aid in winning the decision.

Yesterday's results:

Bears Haunt Owen on Full Time Basis

[This is the first of a series by National Football league coaches on the 11th annual College All-Star game between the Collegians and Chicago Bears Aug. 30 in Dyche stadium, Evanston.]

BY STEVE OWEN.
[Coach, New York Giants.]

Maybe you football fans would like to know what makes the Chicago Bears click. I believe I can qualify for the chore of explaining this, because it seems I've been getting ready to play the Bears all my life. I see 'em in my sleep, especially during the championship season.

Steve Owen.

In recent years the Bears have had a great array of stars who have been ably coached. They have fitted into the pattern of the T formation and made it click. Just as important, the coaches have imbued in the Bear players the will to win and I think this has been the most devastating factor about this club in the last few seasons. The older men on the squad spread this tradition of victory to the new men, making the Bears well nigh unbeatable. And don't think fighting spirit doesn't count on the football field.

Johnson Perches in Stands and Calls Touchdown Plays.

Perhaps you can recall watching the Bears going along easily, apparently getting nowhere, when—bam—all of a sudden one big play gives them a touchdown. More than likely Johnsos has called that one. In any man in motion offense, with its elasticity, an expert in the stands really can take advantage of a weakness which shows up in the enemy's defense. The Bears have such a wide variety of plays that it's a simple matter to call the one with which they can capitalize on an opponent's weakness.

Filling Luckman's Shoes Will Be One of Club's Big Jobs.

Of course, the Bears can't lose men like Sid Luckman and Charley O'Rourke and expect to replace them with a new boy on short notice. I think a green quarter back will affect the Bears a great deal more than it would a team using any other formation. This is because the T formation quarter back has to handle the ball on every play—and handle it efficiently. I would say that in this type of attack the quarter back is the most important player on the team.

Because of the Bears' uncertainty at quarter back, I think at present the All-Star team will rate an edge in The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.'s annual game in Dyche stadium Aug. 30.

Calls 1939 Game One of High Spots of Coaching Career.

Some of my older players still talk about our appearance in the 1939 All-Star game when we were able to bring along our team fast enough to defeat the collegians, 9 to 0. That was one of the highlights of my coaching career. We never will forget the kind treatment we received from the Chicago fans.

Looking beyond the All-Star game to our championship season I anticipate an interesting race. I think the teams will be very evenly matched with one or two exceptions—such as Washington and Green Bay, which have been able to retain several of their key men.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., July 13.—Orval Grove, the White Sox's personable right hander, who has been knocked out in all his starts since June 24, including the last game the team played prior to this evening, was mistreated by the Detroit Tigers this twilight to the extent of eight runs in the second inning. He disappeared thereafter and the affair dragged thru to a 9 to 1 finish.

Joe Haynes pitched the last six innings and retired the Tigers in order in all except the fourth. Joe yielded only one single and also made one of the three Chicago hits off Dizzy Trout.

It was the 11th defeat for the collapsed Chicagoans on their current trip against four victories. Manager Jim Dykes' boys now appear to be simply going thru the motions, praying for the season's end on Oct. 1.

It could be that home cooking will lift some of the fellows out of the lethargy that has engulfed them. Or if something were done like actually going out and buying one ball player, any ball player, some life might be made to stir in Jimmy's listless crew.

Wakefield, York Lead Attack.

They're all such fine fellows, including Manager Dykes, that it is painful to be critical, but on their recent performances Mrs. Comiskey's stalwarts have indicated that baseball is pretty much of a distraction. And they still have to play five more games in Detroit.

By the way, 12,185 paid to sit thru this evening's festival—perhaps a welcoming delegation for Dick Wakefield, late of the navy, who played left field and was credited with singles his two times up in the second inning, which wasn't quite as good as Rudy York did. Rudy knocked a homer and a double in that same inning.

The White Sox produced the first run of the evening, not that we expect you to get excited about that, after two were out in the second, Tucker walked and scored when Tom Turner dumped a spurious double into short center.

Then the Deluge!

THANE HALSTEAD AND BICKEL WIN IN NET TOURNEY

Thane [Whitey] Halstead of Wheaton, holder of the Illinois State tennis crown and seeded third in the River Forest Open tournament at the River Forest Tennis club, yesterday advanced to the semi-final round by defeating Kenneth Black of Peoria, 5-7, 6-2, 6-1.

Also joining Halstead in the semi-final bracket was fifth seeded Norman Bickel of Oak Park, former Big Ten singles title holder. Bickel swept to a straight set victory over Guy Bertrich of Chicago, 6-3, 6-2.

Talbert to Meet Wagner.

In the feature match this afternoon, Billy Talbert of Indianapolis, favorite to win the men's singles crown since Francisco [Pancho] Segura of the University of Miami withdrew because of an injury, meets Dick Warner of the University of Utah in the quarter-final round. Halstead clashes with Bickel in the lone semi-final encounter.

The women's bracket will be brought up to the semi-final round with two matches slated to be played. Dorothy Bundy of Santa Monica, top seeded player, will meet Joanne Dunn of Des Moines, Ia., and Catherine Wolf of Elkhart, Ind., will oppose Betty Ruth Hulbert of St. Louis, Mo. Play will also continue in the men's and women's doubles, and the mixed doubles.

Mary Arnold Wins, 6-3, 6-3.

In the women's singles division, Mary Arnold of Los Angeles, seeded No. 2, had little trouble advancing to the semi-final bracket when she eliminated Nancy Corbett of River Forest, 6-3, 6-3. Her next opponent will be Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, one of the top ranking national junior players. They will meet tomorrow afternoon.

31 YACHTS START TOMORROW IN MACKINAC RACE

Altho several last minute entries may be filed, a total of 31 yachts is expected to hoist canvas between 1 and 3 p. m. tomorrow for the start of the 37th race to Mackinac Island from the south gap of the outer Chicago breakwater, according to Harold Ashton, race committee chairman.

Several out of town yachts will be entered in the 333 miles contest, including the defending champion, William Lawrie's Lassie, a Milwaukee starter. This 36 foot cutter represents the South Shore Yacht club of Milwaukee.

Also racing will be Sally, 39 foot cutter of C. P. McNulty, Milwaukee, Sinbad, 45 foot yacht of Gerald Gidwitz, of the Kenosha Yacht club, and Sovereign 57 footer belonging to Charles Burbach, Detroit.

Under the rules of the race each boat is handicapped by its size, displacement and sail area so that the smallest boat entered, a 36 footer, can finish 10 hours behind a 72 foot yacht and still win on corrected time.

TRIBUNE'S SWIM RACES ATTRACT MIDWEST STARS

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The 15th annual 100 yard swimming race, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, again will have its usual quota of contestants from midwestern states as well as from Chicago and the suburbs. In yesterday's list of entries, for instance, were letters from Hammond, Gary, and Elkhart, Ind., from Peoria, Ill., and Kenosha, Wis.

Jack Strintz of Elkhart, Ind., competing in the 13 and 14 year old class for boys, will swim in the preliminary tests July 23 at California park. On that same afternoon, trials also will be held at Whealan pool. The other qualifying races are scheduled on July 22 at Cermak pool, Lyons, Ill., and Sherman park on Chicago's south side.

Hold Finals July 30.

The qualifiers from these four sections, all of whom will receive awards, will meet in the 10 championship races in California park pool, 3901 N. California av., on July 30.

Some of the swimmers have inquired concerning the age classes since their birthdays occur between the preliminary races and the championships. As in other years, the swimmer's age on the day of the qualifying races will determine his classification. If a boy is 14 years of age when he reports for his qualifying test, he will continue to be eligible to compete in class B in the finals on July 30.

Information blanks have been distributed to the board of education playgrounds, the municipal playgrounds, and the parks in the Chicago park district. These give the locations of the trials and the age classes. Supervisors and instructors may make their lists of contestants and assign them to their respective classes. It is most important, however, that the home address of each contestant be furnished and, of course, the entry must be mailed before midnight Monday.

Send Letters to Entrants.

Each contestant will receive a post card of acceptance which will admit without charge to the pool. Contestants will report at 1 p. m. to the clerks at all sectional races and the first qualifying race will start at 2 p. m. Approximately 120 boys and girls will qualify for the championship races on July 30. These successful swimmers will again be notified and receive letters of admission.

SUNSET RIDGE RETAINS GOLF LEAGUE LEAD

Sunset Ridge retained the lead in the North Shore Golf league by defeating North Shore, 6 to 3, at the Skokie Country club yesterday. In the other team matches Edgewater beat Ridgemoor, Westmoreland won over Skokie and Park Ridge beat Evanston, all by scores of 5½ to 3½.

Ted Payseur of North Shore had the low gross score, a 75, while Bert Gibson of Westmoreland had low net, 78—6—72.

Club standings after four matches, the halfway mark in the season, are Sunset Ridge, 23½ points; Westmoreland, 22; Ridgemoor, 20½; Edgewater, 19; Skokie, 17½; Park Ridge, 16½; North Shore, 15, and Evanston, 10.

Tamburrino Leads K. of C. Golf with 71

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

August Tamburrino, the whilom furniture designer who now toils in a war plant, yesterday reverted to the form of his old craft by fashioning the 71 that enabled him to lead the championship qualifiers for the 17th annual individual state golf title of the Knights of Columbus.

The 35 year old Augie put together a 34—37—71 par for the Elmhurst Country club, where 300 Knights assembled for their annual fairway joust. Last year, August won the championship with a 73, but the 1944 pattern of the tourney calls for the low 12 scorers in the big show to meet in a special 18 hole playoff over this same Elmhurst course July 23.

Charlton Also Takes 71.

The other eleven qualifiers for the July 23 showdown included Sgt. Frank McNamara, the Leo Council gendarme, 73; Tom McInerny, Perez, 75; Sid Smith, Quigley, 75; Sid Quigley, 75; Bob King, Leo, 76, and J. Patton, Springfield, 76.

While the individual title still is in abeyance, a number of other trophies were awarded at last night's dinner, attended by 500. Tamburrino was awarded the Fred B. Snite championship trophy, awarded to that member of any council who was low for yesterday. Augie's 71 will bring this prize to Feehan council's chambers.

Leo Foursome Wins.

The Albert J. Horan trophy for the low gross foursome from one council was won by a Leo quartet which consisted of Sgt. McNamara, 73; King, 76; Joe Bartush, 80, and J. O'Connor, 82, their efforts giving them an aggregate of 311.

The extra tournament battle between foursomes of the police and fire departments was captured by the former, with Sgt. McNamara, Officer King, and their associates, Ed Conrad and Bob Clifford, scoring 327 to the fire fighters' 331.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

NATIONS SHOW COYNESS OVER BANK'S QUOTAS

Willing to Forget Their 'Prestige.'

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bretton Woods, N. H., July 13.—There is no scramble among the 44 nations represented at the allied nations monetary conference here to get big quotas in the proposed 10 billion dollar world bank. Each nation's quota will determine the extent of its risk in the international credits guaranteed by the bank, commonly known as the world RFC.

The absence of competition over quotas in the bank contrasts with the lively rivalry in which countries are engaged over quotas in the 8½ billion dollar stabilization fund. The fund and the bank are related agencies but will operate in different fields. The fund will attempt to maintain stable international currency exchange rates. It will use its resources to relieve temporary strains on the currencies of individual countries. The extent to which member countries may use the fund will depend on the size of the quotas.

Russia, China Protest.

Protests were made by Russia, China, and other countries against the fund quotas originally proposed and it has been necessary to revise the figures. Considerations of "national prestige" were involved in those changes, it was explained by the official conference spokesman.

As negotiations on the bank progress, however, it develops that the countries represented are willing to forget "national prestige" and accept small quotas in the bank and the accompanying smaller risks in connection with the bank's operation.

The bank will make available long term credits to member countries for reconstruction and development purposes. The length of the loans will vary, but in most cases will be 20 to 30 years and in some cases 50 years. They will be extended only when credit at "reasonable rates" is not elsewhere available to the borrower. Under this definition it is expected that many of the credits will be of the border line character which other lenders will be unwilling to make. Thus the risks involved for the subscribers of the bank's 10 billion dollars of capital stock are not regarded as negligible.

Loans May Be Direct.

The loans may be made directly by the bank or in the form of guaranteed credit. Most of the bank's capital, 8 billion dollars, is reserved for guaranteeing credits. Two billion dollars, representing the original paid in capital, will be used for direct loans.

Whether the bank will be limited in the amount of its guarantees is undecided. As originally envisaged by United States treasury experts, the bank would be permitted to guarantee international credits up to two or three times its capital, or 20 to 30 billion dollars. An amendment has been proposed limiting the bank's commitments, direct and guaranteed, to 7½ billions.

The legal liability of subscribing countries would be limited to the stated value of their stock. However, if any large portion of the bank's guaranteed credits should go bad the subscribing countries might feel impelled for political reasons to make up the losses of investors who accepted the bank's guarantee as assurance of safety, it is held.

Russian Reply Awaited.

Final action on the stabilization fund plan awaited a reply from the Russian delegation on certain questions still in dispute. Involved is the question of initial gold contributions to the fund by member countries. Russia and other countries are asking contributions be reduced for countries who have suffered heavy war damage. The United States is opposed to granting reductions in the gold quotas in the amount requested.

The issue is expected to be decided in the next two days. Meantime other questions related to the gold problem are left hanging, including agreement on total quotas and the method of voting. Conference spokesmen said the remaining issues do not represent insurmountable problems, but they were unwilling to predict the future action of the Russians.

Jap 'Incident' One of Many at Fund Parley

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bretton Woods, N. H., July 13.—An international conference has complications other than those that get in the headlines. Among those which have developed here at the world monetary and financial parley are:

A hermit who lives several miles from the conference hotel met a group of Chinese delegation members hiking on a mountain trail. The native suspected that they were Japs and hurried to his shack to get his shotgun. He was undecided whether to shoot first or give the strangers a chance to explain. He took the latter course and an international incident was avoided.

A delegate from a Latin American republic, whose approximate dimensions are six feet perpendicular and four horizontal, was caught in a telephone booth in the conference hotel lobby and could not extricate himself. The hotel engineer was called to dismantle the booth and free the perspiring delegate.

For the plenary sessions seats in the hotel auditorium are arranged in accordance with strict protocol. However, committee meetings are informal and no seats are reserved. This was not understood clearly by some of the foreign delegates. Chairman Eccles of the federal reserve board sat in a chair at a committee meeting which had been reserved for the head of a foreign delegation at an earlier plenary session. When the foreign delegation head found Eccles in his chair he took it as offense to his country. The matter was cleared up when each member of the American delegation apologized to the offended delegate and the state department explained the informal nature of the committee meetings.

A European delegation of four members, three men and a woman secretary, arrived to find that only two bedrooms with twin beds were reserved for them. The delegation spokesman protested to the bellboy who showed them to their rooms. "But where will the young lady sleep?" the spokesman asked. "That is strictly up to you," the bellboy replied.

Newsmen covering the convention are quartered at a hotel 13 miles from the conference meeting place. This caused grumbling because of the high taxi fares. As the conference progresses, however, foreign delegations are competing with each other to hold press conferences. As a result reporters are thankful that they sleep outside the conference grounds.

NEED FOR COAL STOCKS URGENT, ASSERTS TRUAX

The need of building up stocks of coal this summer to avoid a shortage during the winter is more urgent than at any time since the war started, A. H. Truax, president of the Truax-Traer Coal company, Chicago, said in the company's annual report yesterday. Man power will determine the volume of next winter's supply, he said.

The 11 Truax-Traer mines last year produced the largest tonnage in the company's history, 5,344,657 tons, compared with 5,241,027 in 1942, the previous record. Sales totaled $12,439,261, also a new high. Net income was $1,133,504, or $2.31 a common share, against $1,025,049, or $2.10 a share, in 1942.

WHEAT FUTURES DROP ON RECORD CROP FORECAST

Weight of a record breaking wheat crop was felt in the market yesterday and prices on the Chicago Board of Trade turned downward. Altho trading lacked volume hedging sales pressure caused a decline of about 1 cent a bushel, and the close was near the bottom at losses of ⅛ to ⅞ cent. Minneapolis futures were off ⅝ to 1¼ cents. Oats finished ⅛ cent higher to ⅝ cent lower. Rye was off ⅛ to ⅞ cent. Barley finished unchanged to ¼ cent lower.

SALES SET PEAK IN 1943, BRIGGS TELLS OWNERS

Briggs Manufacturing company, Detroit, Mich., did more business, employed more people, and used more facilities in 1943 than in any other year, W. P. Brown, president, said yesterday in the annual report to stockholders.

War work expanded in the first four months of 1944, Brown said. Deliveries of fighter plane equipment in January thru April were at double the 1943 rate.

Net profit for 1943 was $5,239,350, or $2.69 a share, compared with $4,181,479, or $2.15 a share, in 1942. Taxes rose from $8,938,157 in 1942 to $18,802,405 in 1943.

SENATE GROUP PLANS AID FOR SMALL PLANTS

Urges 'Head Start' in Reconversion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 13.—A proposal that small businesses be given a "head start" over large companies in reconverting to peace time production, when this is consistent with war output needs, was made today by the senate small business committee, headed by Sen. Murray [D., Mont.].

The committee, in a report on post-war problems of little business, also recommended that government guaranteed loans be made available to small companies, including merchandise and service as well as manufacturing establishments, to keep them going during the changeover.

With the approaching resumption of output of only a limited quantity of civilian goods, the committee proposed that small distributors have access to a proportionate share of the products, so they won't be "frozen out" by sales thru large wholesalers only.

Many Firms Closed.

Warning that production concentration during the war has extinguished many companies and threatened to erase many more, the committee said:

"Small business can perhaps overcome some of the handicaps resulting from the war time concentration of production in the hands of larger concerns if it is given an early opportunity to reconvert and is assured adequate materials from stocks not needed for war production. To give small business this head start will require the most careful planning."

To assure greater government aid toward this end, the committee proposed that the Smaller War Plants corporation be made independent of its present parent, the war production board. SWPC should be authorized to facilitate "easier access to working capital and credit" for small companies, including those in distributive and service fields, it said. SWPC at present deals only with problems of manufacturing companies.

Proposes Tax Changes.

The committee proposed that post-war taxes on business be geared to encourage business expansion and technical improvements, and to permit the entrance of needed new enterprises with a chance to make reasonable profits.

Other committee recommendations to aid reconversion:

1. Modernization and vigorous enforcement of anti-monopoly legislation.

2. Prevent domination of distributors by manufacturers, or vice versa, to the detriment of free competition.

3. Permit maximum use by small companies of the fruits of scientific and industrial research, including the granting of nonexclusive licenses to use government owned patents.

4. Sound expanison of foreign trade, both export and import, with protection to smaller companies in the field.

5. Disposal of government owned surplus property in a way that will give little business a chance to buy—by offering goods in small lots on reasonable credit terms.

6. Full use of natural resources and man power in all sections of the country, including continued "healthy industrialization" of the west and south.

Railroad Use of Diesels to Test Economy

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

An opportunity to study the financial effects of full dieselization of motive power on a railroad is to be provided railroad managements as a result of a recent court order authorizing the New York, Ontario, and Western railway to replace all its steam locomotives with diesel electrics.

The railroad, which is controled by the New Haven, operates 546 miles of track, principally in Pennsylvania and New York. One line extends from Cornwall to Oswego, N. Y., and another taps the anthracite mine region near Scranton, Pa. The road has been in reorganization proceedings since May, 1937.

Orders 37 Diesels.

Under the court order the railroad will replace 89 steam locomotives with 37 diesel electrics to be built by the Electro-Motive division of General Motors at La Grange. They will cost about $6,700,000. The road, which already has five diesel switchers, hopes to get delivery of all the new locomotives by the end of 1945.

Exponents of diesel power for rail use for some years have maintained that the full effects of economies possible thru diesel operation can be obtained only thru entire replacement of other forms of power with diesel. Economies would result from a number of factors, including:

1. Elimination of costly supporting services such as ash dumping and removal, water treatment and storage, and boiler washing.

2. Reduction in track wear thru elimination of hammer blow pounding from driving wheels of steam locomotives.

Shop Costs Reduced.

3. Reduction in shop expenses because of longer periods between major overhauls.

4. Greater availability of diesel-electric locomotives, which makes possible more intensive use of equipment.

5. Faster speeds which also make possible more intensive use of equipment—both locomotives and rolling stock.

Frederic C. Lyford, trustee of the New York, Ontario and Western, told a federal District court that he estimated the annual saving thru complete dieselization would be 1½ million dollars on a basis of current operations. He estimated that new efficient steam locomotives would require immediate expenditures of about $500,000 for strengthening of bridges and $500,000 for larger turntables and other improved terminal facilities.

Lyford estimated that, on the basis of $8,686,800 gross revenues for 1943 and estimated costs of diesel operations, use of the new locomotives would make possible a net income of $548,212.

BRITAIN MAKES HEAVY DRAIN ON COAL RESERVES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 13.—Britain used 4½ million tons of its reserve coal stock last year to meet the demands of war industries and consumers, Minister of Fuel Lloyd George told the house of commons today.

He spoke in a debate on coal production in which labor members of parliament urged the industry be nationalized, and David Grenfell, former Labor minister of mines, warned that Britain could not maintain coal production for another generation unless 50 million pounds [2 billion dollars] of new capital were invested in the industry in the next 10 years.

MIDLAND STEEL.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

I notice that Midland Steel Products company first preferred stock is selling at prices to yield more than 6 per cent. By how much margin is the dividend earned? R. J.

Answer: Since conversion of the company's major facilities to war work early in 1942, profits have been somewhat below those of the three preceding years, but have continued in excess of dividend requirements on the $8 cumulative preferred stock, of which 94,925 $100 par shares are outstanding. Earnings per share on this issue were: 1943, $17.60; 1942, $14.83; 1941, $20.03; 1940, $23.91; 1939, $23.55; 1938, $15.28; 1937, $24.45.

A net loss was reported for 1932, and the first preferred dividend was not quite earned in 1933 and 1934, but in only one year since the present stock was issued in 1930 has the company failed to pay the full rate. Seven dollars was distributed in 1933, and the $1 arrearage was paid the following year. The stock is noncallable.

Normally the company's production consists mainly of automobile frames and parts, supplemented by brakes, axle housings, and various iron and steel parts, with Chrysler, Ford, Studebaker, General Motors, and Hudson among Midland's customers. Kerosene units for mechanical refrigerators and gasoline pressure stoves and burners also were produced.

Midland has no funded debt. Net working capital as of last Dec. 31 was $10,829,546.

Stock Market Closes Lower in Slow Trade

New York, July 13 (AP).—Selected stocks were higher today, but many leaders were unable to work up any real comeback ability and the market generally was lower.

Utilities were responsive to political hopes. War news and business optimism served to help individual favorites. Thoughts of a substantial technical correction of the drive to seven year peaks, however, caused potential purchasers to hold off.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 0.1 at 56.3. Transfers totaled 1,376,900 shares compared with 1,416,620 yesterday.

Chicago and North Western directors voted a $15 dividend on the reorganized road's preferred stock, sending it up 2¼ points to a new top of 64¾ just before the close. The common was down ⅝.

CHICAGO STOCKS UNEVEN.

Prices were mixed on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday on lighter trading of 39,600 shares. Volume leaders were Chicago Corporation up ⅛; Armour & Co. and Libby, McNeill & Libby, down ⅛, and Woodall Industries, up ⅛. Among the 19 new highs for the year was United Air Lines, up 1 at 32.

BOND PRICES STEADY.

New York, July 13 (AP).—With the exception of a few wide moves by individual issues in response to news developments, bond market prices were mainly steady today.

HOGS DECLINE ALTHO RECEIPTS DECREASE AGAIN

Hog prices at the Chicago stock yards averaged slightly lower yesterday despite a continued drop in receipts. The average, off 5 cents a hundred pounds at $13.00, was the lowest this week.

Most classes of cattle were steady in a slow trade. Best steers sold at $17.00, but the bulk ranged from $14.75 to $16.75.

The scant supply of sheep and lambs sold at steady prices. The top for new crop natives was $15.00.

PREDICTS PEAK CIVILIAN GOODS SALES IN PEACE

Demand Estimated at 102 Billions.

Demand for civilian consumer goods probably will reach 102 billion dollars in the first year after the war, giving business its first 100 billion dollar year in this category alone, Sumner H. Slichter, Harvard university economics professor, said yesterday.

In addition, he said, industry may find it necessary to spend 75 billion dollars in building up plant and equipment to meet unprecedented demands for a multitude of items shunted aside during the war.

Addresses Economics Committee.

Slichter spoke at the annual meeting of the Committee for Economic Development, which attracted several hundred divisional heads and members from all parts of the country to sessions in the Stevens and Blackstone hotels.

Slichter, who has been active in the program of the group which is headed by Paul G. Hoffman and supported by business men and government officials, said enough potentially favorable economic factors exist to offset the unfavorable and that if they mesh properly post-war "calamities" will be avoided. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker corporation, presided at the meeting.

One favorable factor is the 75 billion dollars of savings accumulated by individuals in the last three years, the equivalent of 11 years' savings at the 1940 rate, Slichter said. A 15 year accumulation was forecast at the war's end. Business in three years was computed to have accumulated 34 billions more in liquid assets than it would have amassed if there had been no war.

Vast Labor Needs Told.

Slichter suggested 20 to 22 million persons could be absorbed by the labor market after the war without upsetting the national economy, and that the factor of demand alone would not cause a spiral of advancing prices for consumer goods, production of which the war halted. This demand could be supplied by a working force of about 56 million, he said.

Reporting the results of a national survey, the economist said that business would probably spend about one and a half times its depreciation allowance on plant and equipment after the war, in preparing to satisfy pent-up demand.

After the war, Slichter said, the country will need 3½ million vacuum cleaners, 7½ million electric clocks, 20 million radios, 5 million electric refrigerators, 10 million irons, 3 million washers, and 4½ million electric toasters.

WPB ANNOUNCES FOURTH QUARTER PRINT SUPPLIES

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Newspaper publishers in the United States may consume an estimated 781,166 tons of newsprint in the fourth quarter of 1944, WPB's printing and publishing division said today.

Announcing possible fourth quarter allocations, WPB told the newspaper publishers industry advisory committee that newsprint supplies for the latter half of 1944 should total approximately 273,000 tons a month.

However, Harold Boeschenstein, acting director of the forest products bureau, told the industry representatives that fourth quarter newsprint supplies may drop below these estimates because exceptionally low water levels in Canada are hampering the floating of logs to pulp mills.

TIDE WATER OIL SELLS TEN YEAR NOTES TO BANKS

Tide Water Associated Oil company yesterday announced the sale of 24½ million dollars of one to 10 year notes to a number of banks. William F. Humphrey, president, said that an equal amount of debentures and notes would be retired, saving the company $2,300,375 in interest in the next 10 years.

Sterling Engine company offered 204,075 shares of common stock at $3.75 a share thru an underwriting syndicate headed by Burr & Co. and including Dempsey-Detmer & Co. and Hirsch, Lilienthal & Co.

N. W. Railroad Acts to Slash Its RFC Debt

Directors of the North Western railway moved yesterday to slash by $35,700,000 the road's debt to the Reconstruction Finance corporation and declared a special dividend of $15 a share on the preferred stock.

After the payments are made to the RFC the railroad will owe the agency only $11,100,000.

They voted to pay the RFC approximately $24,200,000 by Aug. 10, which will reduce the company's indebtedness to approximately $22,630,000, all represented by notes secured by collateral.

Arranges to Pay for Stock.

The board also arranged to pay the RFC $11,500,000 to secure the return of pledged Superior Coal company and Sioux City Bridge company stock.

In return for the payments the RFC will return to the North Western $7,833,100 of 4 per cent first and general mortgage bonds, $12,114,500 of income bonds, $11,500,000 of 4 per cent notes, approximately 155,434 shares of preferred stock, and about 233,598 shares of common stock, all of which are securities of the new company.

Will Save 1.3 Million Yearly.

Liquidation of the RFC debt will save the road approximately $1,318,476 annually in interest charges besides a potential saving of approximately $772,170 in preferred stock dividends. The preferred stock is on a 5 per cent basis altho payments are made only if earned.

The special dividend of $15 a share will be paid Sept. 1 to stock of record at the close of business on Aug. 11 from net income of the road available as of Dec. 31, 1943. The payment will approximate 16 million dollars. Future payments will be made only as earned, it was indicated.

NEW FRISCO PLAN

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—A supplemental plan for reorganization of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway company has been approved by the interstate commerce commission, the ICC announced today.

The plan replaces a former proposal approved by the ICC in 1940, but which the federal District court ordered opened for further consideration. It differs only in relatively minor respects from the plan presented by the three bondholders' committees at a commission hearing Feb. 16, 1944, the ICC said.

The program increases the capitalization by approximately $7,800,000 and the fixed charges by approximately $1,600.

"The management, which owns more than 90 per cent of the shares of Advance corporation, wishes to retire the small number of its shares in the hands of the public, in preference to liquidation," Advance said in a letter to stockholders.

War Output Lags

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—The army said today that war production fell 400 million dollars, or 8 per cent, behind schedule in the second quarter. Acting Secretary of War Patterson told a news conference the lag resulted primarily from man power problems. He said there seemed to be "a prevalent, but grossly mistaken feeling that the war is about over."

Washington, D. C., July 13 (AP).—Government sources today disclosed the full list of 124 scarce consumer articles tentatively given "preferential treatment" under WPB Chairman Nelson's program for limited civilian production, starting Aug. 15.

The list was drawn some days ago, however, and officials emphasized that it may be changed before the program, subject of bitter intra-governmental controversy for the last week, finally goes into effect.

Typical Items Listed.

Kitchenware, knives and forks, heating pads, lunch boxes, spray guns and vacuum bottles are typical of most of the items considered by WPB to be so scarce as to warrant special action increasing or resuming production. However, some more complicated items are included—bicycles, typewriters, moving picture projection equipment, shotguns, vacuum cleaners, and sewing machines, for example. Missing from the list are the heavier consumer goods articles, such as washing machines, mechanical refrigerators, motorcycles, and oil burners.

The Nelson order would empower WPB field offices to give "spot authorization" for civilian production to those manufacturers who have labor and plant facilities not needed for war. As each manufacturer applied, he would be offered the "preferred" list, to determine whether he could make any of the goods on it. If he could, but refused to do so, the field office could refuse to let him undertake any civilian manufacturing.

Local Decision Made Final.

As tentatively drafted, the order would make the decision of the field office final in the cases of plants requiring less than 50 workers on the west coast, 100 workers in acute or serious labor areas [group 1 or group 2 cities], and 250 workers elsewhere.

If more employes were needed the manufacturer's application would go to Washington for final action.

Some items on the preferred list are general categories and are to be replaced later with specific listings of the more important items within each group.

General Groups Outlined.

Cooking and heating appliances, including cooking utensils of glass, aluminum, enamelware and stainless steel, both commercial and domestic; commercial cooking and heating electric appliances; other commercial electric appliances; electric wiring and lighting devices and supplies; commercial food preparation and serving fixtures, equipment, and appliances; builders' hardware; kitchen utensils; office machinery; office supplies; photographic equipment and accessories; plumbing fixture fittings and trim, and sanitary ware.
